63. D'ATHANASI, Giovanni. A Brief Account of the Researches and Discoveries in Upper Egypt, made under the direction of Henry Salt, Esq. By Giovanni D'Athanas. To which is added a detailed catalogue of Mr. Salt's collection of Egyptian antiquities; illustrated with twelve engravings of some of the most interesting objects, and an enumeration of those articles purchased for the British Museum. London: John Hearne, 1836 Contemporary half-calf, 8vo. xvi,261pp. 12 lithographed and engraved plates, (2 folding).
Giovanni D'Athanas was a pseudonym for the Greek born Demetrio Papandriopulo, and referred to by his contemporaries as Yanni. He was employed by Henry Salt alongside Belzoni and at Thebes for Salt between 1817 and 1827. The first part of this book is his autobiographical account of working and travelling in Egypt and the second part is a reproduction of the Sothebys catalogue of the 1835 sale of Salt's collection of Egyptian Antiquities. This catalogue "On Monday, 29th of June, 1835, and Eight following Days." documents Salt's third and last collection sold, the previous two had been bought by the British Museum and the King of France respectively; mostly collected by D'Athanas. The sale comprised 1270 lots. However unlike the actual catalogue this facsimile contains the prices realised and eleven of the twelve plates show objects from the catalogue. The frontispiece shows one of a pair of Sphinxes excavated by D'Athanas and placed in the Hermitage at St.Petersburg. Frontispiece chipped along the fore-edge and brittle with an archival tape repair to the upper outer corner, library stamp of King's College London on the title page, corners rubbed, the spine rebacked in dark green calf, a very nice copy. £ 900.00

Nebst einer Specialkarte und XXVII Originalzeichnungen Wilhelm von Harnier’s, ausgeführt in Farbendruck von J. M. Bernatz. Darmstadt & Leipzig: Eduard Zernin, 1866 Later cloth backed boards, oblong Roy.4to. ix,84pp. extra chromolithographed title page and 27 chromolithographed plates (1 double-page), lithographed map with the author’s route in red, each plate with a leaf of descriptive letterpress.

The German explorer von Harnier came to the Sudan in 1859 and ascended the Blue Nile as far as Roseires. After a brief respite in Germany he returned to the Nile in the company of F. Morlang, a Roman Catholic missionary and explored the White Nile to a point upstream of Rejaf in 1861. He died in the Sudan as the result of an attack by a buffalo. The fine coloured plates were prepared for publication by Johann Martin Bernatz and many show members of the Shilluk, Nuer and Dinka tribes. In a later cloth-backed paper covered boards, leather label to spine, with a previous ownership stamp of Dott. Lidio Brunetti to the corner of the title page, the text spotted and foxing to the plates, a nice copy from the library of Quentin Keynes.

314. PRICHARD, J. C. An Analysis of Egyptian Mythology: To which is subjoined, a Critical Examination of the Remains of Egyptian Chronology. By J. C. Prichard, M.D. London: Printed for John and Arthur Arch, 1819 Nineteenth century quarter calf with paper covered boards, Roy.8vo. ii,xviii,427,ii,138pp. hand-coloured frontispiece and 5 plates.
Prichard, James Cowles (1786-1848), physician and ethnologist was one of the important figures in the history of anthropology. Prichard's main ethnological aim was to prove the unity of mankind and to vindicate the veracity of the anthropology laid down in Genesis. He perceived that traditional accounts of difference in skin colour were flawed, and eighteenth-century environmentalism was empirically false. In 1819 he found time to publish 'An Analysis of Egyptian Mythology,' in which he traced the early connection between the Hindus and the Egyptians, and made public his hieroglyphic alphabet. Champollion's 'Précis' of the latter was not published till 1824. In this he also asserts that the myths of all human cultures were so similar that they all necessarily had to share the same primeval history. Many of his carefully worked-out theories were controversial at the time but gradually became generally accepted. New end-papers, late nineteenth century quarter calf with raised bands and black leather label, old embossed library stamp to the title page, slight offsetting of frontispiece to title, a very nice copy with the edges uncut. 426. YOUNG, Thomas. Hieroglyphics, Collected by The Egyptian Society. Arranged by Thomas Young, M.D. F.R.S. London: [Howlett and Brimmer, Printers, Frith Street, Soho.], 1823 Contemporary maroon half calf, Imperial folio. 5 introductory pages printed on rectos only comprising: title-page, Subscribers' list, Plan of the Work, Advertisement to the First Fasciculus, Advertisement to the Second Fasciculus, and Contents; followed by 57 lithographed plates numbered 1 to 60, index (the index being plates 38-40).
The first 15 plates (First Fasciculus) were drawn by M. A. Nicholson and Printed by Ackermann; Plates 16-37 drawn by J. Netherclift and printed by Rowney and Forster; Plates 40-60 drawn by G. Scharf and printed by Hullmandel, apart from plates 46, 52, 53, 54, 55 which were drawn and printed by J. Netherclift for The Royal Society of Literature. According to various collations there were two volumes of this work, published in 1823 and 1828; the first volume with 37 plates and the second with 57 plates; this copy would seem to consist of the first 60 lithographs. Young founded the Egyptian Society in 1819 to publish these hieroglyphic inscriptions, the cost being met by subscription, due to lack of funds this ceased in 1827. Young states in the introduction that no more than 200 copies of the plates were lithographed. An ex Reference Library copy with their bookplate, small ink stamp to margin of last plate and withdrawn stamp to front free end-paper. Previous to this in the Norwich Castle Museum with their small circular plate. With the signature of Hudson Gurney, one of the original subscribers, and the author of a memoir on Young's life published in 1831. A couple of plates have slight browning, the spine is frayed and splitting at the head, an very good copy with an important association. £ 2,500.00
