300.00

Nansen, one of the most significant figures in the history of Arctic exploration, was originally a naturalist. He decided in 1888 to attempt the crossing of Greenland, and with five companions, including Otto Sverdrup, set off in June of that year. The crossing, by small boat, ski and sledge, achieved many important scientific objectives, including meteorological observations, as well as illustrating the ideal methods of Arctic travel. His most important achievements were on the Fram Expedition of 1893-96. He established the nature and drift of the Arctic Ice-pack, having deliberately allowed the ship, built to his own design, to be frozen into the ice. During the expedition, Nansen, with one companion and 3 dog sledges, achieved the highest latitude yet attained (86°14').

Waterston. Hardy focuses on the old-style Indian guides, ingenuous, sagacious, respectable, but regrets the new-style hunting, an undignified massacre of moose. The memoir gives details of other ethnic groups, gold hunters and emigrants in the Atlantic provinces. (Waterson). The author, 1831-1919, was an officer in the Royal Artillery. He served for fifteen years in the Maritimes and was stationed principally at Halifax. He spent his leaves hunting and studying animal life. He wrote articles for sporting papers and was the author of two books that were highly regarded by contemporary sportsmen. Sporting Adventures in the new world... London 1855, and the present title. A study of the woods, animals, and fish in the Maritime provinces combined with accounts of camping and sport and a chapter on caribou hunting in Newfoundland. (Story).

Masson, Henri Leopold, Ottawa, Ontario, Painter and Engraver. He emigrated from Belgium in 1921. His early work is described and illustrated by "Barbeau. Painters of Quebec, 1946", Masson's approach to pictorial art so far has been of the imagery of naive medieval kind, with a bent for mild irony and caricature. ... - Masson has a fluid vigorous style that easily conveys movement in his genre scenes. (McKendry). Several of his paintings are in the National Gallery and also several in Agnes Etherington Art Centre.

Milton and Cheadle arrived in Quebec in the spring of 1862. They made their way to Edmonton where they formed a party to cross the Rockies via Yellow Head Pass. After weeks of hardships and privations in the mountains they finally reached Kamloops. From Kamloops they journeyed to Westminster and Victoria, but they returned to the mainland to visit the Cariboo gold diggings before sailing for England via the Isthmus of Panama. The fact that the book attracted immediate attention may be attributed in part to its literary merit". Lowther.

111. [NOVA SCOTIA]. Manuscript Letter.

MAUGER, Joshua (sea-captain, businessman, and politician) and Brook WATSON (merchant).

Autograph Letter, Signed to Joshua SHARPE, (attorney) and to Edward HUGHES (captain).

London, 28th and 30th, March, 1772.

A two part autographed letter addressed to Captain Edward Hughes and his attorney Joshua Sharpe from Nova Scotia notables, Joshua Mauger and Brook Watson, on behalf of Lieut-Governor of Nova Scotia, Michael Francklin. The letter is addressed London 30 March 1772 on Francklin's departure for Nova Scotia. The letter relates to a debt owed to Captain Hughes and Francklin's difficulties in paying it. "Mr. Mauger's... Offer of making good the Provincial Notes of Nova Scotia to the amount of Capt. Hughes Demand on Mr. Francklin... has been rejected." The letter is docketed "Capt. Edward Hughes Commanding His Majesty's Ship Sommer-sett." London. 1772. folio, 30x 19cm, 4p. (1 page ms letter, & docketed on page 4), paper somewhat toned, script is all clear and legible, very good to fine condition

Michael Francklin (1720-1782) was the Lieutenant- Governor of Nova Scotia from 1766 to 1773. He had been involved in mercantile ventures since 1752 in the colony and although wealthy in land ownership, was noted for being cash-poor. Joshua Mauger (1725-88) was a entrepreneur in Halifax from 1749 to 1760 and became the largest ship-owner in the Colony. Returning to England, he was appointed Nova Scotia's Agent in London in 1762. Brook Watson (1735-1807) served as a commissary with the British Army and was prominent in the expulsion of the Acadians as well as serving at Louisbourg with Wolfe. He was involved in Halifax with Francklin hence the reference in the Hughes letter. Captain Edward Hughes was the captain of the HMS Somerset in 1758 to 1762 and again in 1771 to 1774. He served at Louisbourg in 1758 and at Quebec in 1759 and retired as an admiral after amassing a fortune in prize money. An interesting manuscript from the early days of Halifax and Nova Scotia.

London 30th March 1772

Mauger's offer of making good the Provincial Notes of Nova Scotia to the amount of Capt Hughes Demand on Mr Francklin and depositing the same with him as collateral security, for the payment of Mr Francklin's Debt for His Debt, has been rejected
We have now to inform you that Capt Hughes may, very possibly further on our part will be done, and we do verily believe no equally good security can be given by him, on Monday Morning eleven o'clock we shall attend with Mr Francklin at your Office to discharge our obligation to Capt Hughes, leaving him to act as may be second purpose
We are Sir
Yours most Obedt Servants

1,500.00

This is Justin Winsor's (1831-1897), copy with his signature on the front endpaper, dated 1896 and his personal stamp on the half title and rubricated title page. He was a prominent American historian, writer and Harvard librarian and is renowned for Critical and Narrative History in America. 1896. In 8 Volumes.

Primarily consisting of "Radisson's Voyages" edited by Gideon D. Schull, and bound in are: 2 articles - "Radisson's Journal" by (Henry Colin Campbell, State Historical Society of Wisconsin. Madison. 1895, pp88-116, printed wraps & "Relations of the Voyages of Pierre Esprit Radisson in 1682, 3 and 4" by Douglas Brymer, Canadian Dominion Archivist. Ottawa. 1896. 83p., printed wraps. Winsor has tipped-in documentation regarding each item; notes from the Prince Society (1891) for Schull's "Voyages", and two letters from Campbell ("may I have the benefit of any criticism that comes to mind") and laid-in a two-page handwritten letter from William Bryce dated 1896 ("I have been able to trace him (Radisson) to 1708 & have found some striking episodes in his life after 1685." An interesting collection of scarce Radisson material uniquely bound in one volume.

T.P.L. 92. Lande 1404. Howes R-6. Printed for the first time, in an edition of 250 copies, the three journals cover the travels of Radisson and his brother-in-law, Chouart, so-called Sieur de Groseilliers, between 1652 and 1684; except for the last, they were written, in English of confused construction and erratic spelling, difficult, at times, to interpretation. The first, in four parts, was composed in 1665 from rough notes, apparently for George Cartwright, colonial commissioner under Charles II: the ms. passed into Samuel Pepys' hands, was dispersed with his mss. in 1703 for waste paper, reclaimed by Richard Rawlinson, and deposited finally in the Bodleian library. It describes Radisson's two sojourns among the Iroquois, 1652-58, a trip to the Mississippi, 1658-59, and another west of the Great Lakes and, possibly, north to Hudson's Bay, whence developed a scheme to trade with the Northwest Indians from the Bay. The adventurers fell out with French authorities and in 1664-65, led an ill-starred expedition north from Boston. Through the colonial commissioners they interested the English court in the possibilities of the Bay trade and in 1668 undertook a voyage in two ships outfitted by Prince Rupert, the sequel of which was the founding of the Hudson's Bay company in 1670. Radisson was turned back by storms and the record of Groseilliers' trip by Zachariah Gillam, his ship-captain, was used in Account of Six Years' residence in Hudson's Bay by Joseph Robson. Radisson and Groseilliers broke connection with the Hudson's Bay company in 1674 and in 1682-83 led a French expedition into the Bay, of which the Radisson's ms. account, in the British Museum, is here printed as the second journal. The last, translated from the French ms., acquired by the Museum with Sir Hans Sloane's collection, describes Radisson's final return to the Hudson's Bay company's service and his trip to the Bay in 1684.

A French text of the journals for 1682-83 and 1684 with a translation by Douglas Brymmer were printed from mss. copies in Hudson's Bay House, London, in the Canadian Public archives, Report for 1895, p1-83. Included in this copy.
