3 [ANBUREY, Thomas]. Travels Through the Interior Parts Of America In a Series of Letters by An Officer. London: Printed for William Lane, 1789. Two volumes. Illustrated with eight plates (including the rarely present facsimilies of American currency), five of which are folding. Lacking the folding map. Octavo, three-quarter later brown calf over marbled boards, lettered in gilt on spines with raised bands. Dampstains on edges (not affecting leaves), light occasional browning, else fine. First edition with half titles and list of subscribers.

Anbury was an officer in Burgoyne's Army. He gives an interesting and valuable account of that General's unfortunate expedition from Canada which ended with the surrender at Saratoga. It describes his captivity by the Americans, and the march of the British troops to detention in Charlottesville, Virginia.

The engravings which are quite large when unfolded are based on drawings expertly done by the author. The scenes are of Canada and New York during Burgoyne's campaign as well as in Virginia.

4 ANDRE, John, Major. Andre's Journal. Edited by Henry Cabot Lodge. . Boston: The Bibliophile Society, 1903. Two volumes. Illustrated with facsimiles of original maps and drawings, with an extra engraved frontispiece after an original drawing by Andre himself, signed by the engraver William F. Hopson, and an additional signature by E.D. French who designed and engraved the title pages. Volume two contains an etching by W.H.W. Bicknell, after a painting by Copley, signed by Bicknell. Royal octavo, full cream vellum, decorated and lettered in gilt, top edges gilt, in publisher's red cloth felt lined pull off box with paper label. Fine. One of 487 copies printed by the Riverside Press.

A military journal by a man, although hung as a spy, considered a fine officer and gentleman. The journal was discovered in London in 1902, and had never previously been published. John André was born in London to a Swiss father and French mother. He attended the University of Geneva and in 1771 purchased a commission as a second lieutenant in the Royal Welsh Fusiliers. In 1774, he was assigned to Canada and in the following year was present at the siege of St. John's during the American invasion under Richard Montgomery. André was taken prisoner and transported to Lancaster, Pennsylvania. In 1776, André rejoined the British in a prisoner exchange. He counseled General William Howe on American military matters and also became a fixture in Loyalist social circles. His charm, skill with languages, drawing ability and poetry made him immensely popular. André purchased a captaincy and served under General Charles Grey, the British commander at the so-called Paoli Massacre of September 1777. André developed a reputation for bravery and ruthlessness, a stark contrast to the man who also designed gowns and coiffures for Tory socialites.

In 1778, André was named adjutant-general and joined the staff of Henry Clinton, Howe's successor. The following spring, André became the chief intelligence officer for the British and soon opened communications with Benedict Arnold, perhaps the patriots' most talented military leader, and the commandant of the fort at West Point. Unfortunately for André, he was returning from his meeting with Arnold in civilian clothes and under the pseudonym of John Anderson when he was apprehended. After his true identity was quickly determined, he was brought before a military tribunal on charges of spying, since he had not been in uniform. André was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. Alexander Hamilton and other American officers urged a prisoner exchange or other means to spare André's life. A direct exchange of André for Arnold was rejected by Clinton. As his fate became clear, André appealed in writing to Washington, asking that he be shot as a gentleman rather than hanged as a spy. Memories of the earlier hanging of Nathan Hale made that request impossible to honor. On October 2, 1780, displaying great composure to the end, John André was hanged -(US-History.com).

34 BURGOYNE, [John] Lieutenant-General. A State Of The Expedition from Canada, as Laid Before the House of Commons London: J. Almon, 1780. Illustrated with folding map and 5 folding plans, drawn by Medcalfe and engraved by William Faden. Large quarto (10.5 x 8.25 inches), full polished calf, ruled in gilt, lettered in gilt on spine with raised bands, all edges gilt, marbled endpapers. Edges a little rubbed, a few preliminary and terminal leaves with a little foxing, else fine. First edition.

This is Burgoyne's defense of his conduct as the commander of the British expedition down the Hudson Valley from Canada in 1777. Intended to cut off the New England colonies from the rest of rebellious America, the expedition ended in disaster in Saratoga, where American forces soundly defeated Burgoyne and forced his capitulation. Herein Burgoyne answers the inquiry of the House of Commons, demonstrating that the forces he was given were not sufficient to accomplish the task. This is the most important source for information about the campaign, illustrated with excellent maps and plans. The "Plan of the Encampment and position of the Army under his Excellency Lt. General Burgoyne at Swords House on Hudson's River near Stillwater ..." depicts, among other particulars, the "First and Second Positions of that part of the Army engaged on the 19th of September." .

45 CLINTON, Sir Henry and [CORNWALLIS, Earl]. Narrative of Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Clinton, K. B. Relative to His Conduct During Part of His Command of the King's Troops in North America; Particularly to that Which Resects the Unfortunate Issue of the Campaign in 1781. With an Appendix Containing Copies and Extracts of those Parts of His Correspondence with Lord George Germain, Earl Cornwallis, Rear Admiral Graves, &c.

.... London: J. Debrett, 1783. Four items. Octavo, three-quarter burgundy calf over marbled boards, gilt lettered spine, marbled endpapers. Spine ends a little worn, slight rubbing to edges, interior fine. Bound without the half title. First edition. With errata leaf.

This is a series of pamphlets issued during the Clinton-Cornwallis controversy which was, in turn, fuelled by Clinton's certainty that the Commissioners had always favoured Cornwallis, and that it was Cornwallis' ineptitude and opinions that led to the catastrophic termination of the above-mentioned accusations. The question of leadership of the British troops during the Revolution, and the competition between Cornwallis and Clinton, led to its own "war" of correspondence between the two men.

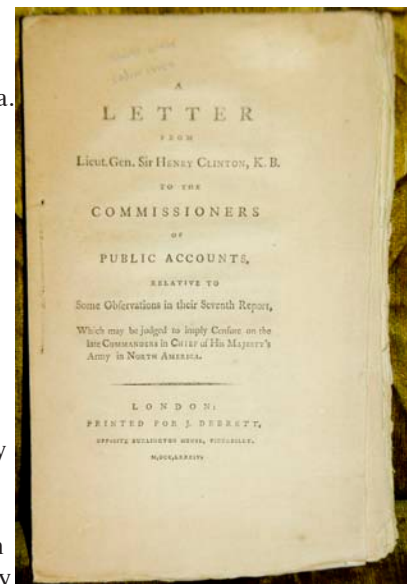

2.) An Answer To That Part Of the Narrative of Lieutenant-General Sir Henry Clinton, K.B. Which Related to the Conduct of Lieutenant-General Earl Cornwallis During the Campaign in North-America, in the Year 1781. Together with: A Reply To Sir Henry Clinton's Narrative Wherein His Numerous Errors Are Pointed Out and the Conduct of Lord Cornwallis Fully Vindicated from All Aspersions ... London: J. Debrett, 1783. First edition with the errata leaf and folding leaves. Two volumes bound in one. Octavo, expertly rebacked, three-quarter brown calf over marbled boards, red gilt lettered spine label, preserving original endpapers. Slight rubbing of edges and corners, very light fading at gutter of title leaf, else fine.

The two works were written as a response to Sir Henry Clinton's claim that Cornwallis was in the main responsible for the disastrous campaign that ended in defeat at Yorktown with the final loss of the American colonies. "Cornwallis' acrimonious answer" and reply consists in large part of the correspondence between Lieutenant-General Clinton, Lord George Germain and Lieutenant-General Cornwallis and intercepted letters from Genral George Washington. In all, a fine account of the events that led up to the final victory in America's war for independence.

3.) A Letter from Lietu. Gen. Sir Henry Clinton, K.B. to the Commissioners of Public Accounts, Relative to Some Observations in their Seventh Report, Which May Be Judged to Imply Censure on the late Commanders in Chief of His Majesty's Army in North America. London: Printed for J. Debrett, 1784. Octavo, four signatures hed by silk thread. Outer leaves browned, else fine.

Sir William Howe, On a Pamphlet, Entitled Letters to a Nobleman: In Which His Misrepresentations are Detected, and Those Letters are Supported, by a Variety of New Matter and Argument. To Which is Added An Appendix* London: Printed for G. Wilkie, 1780.

Octavo, original gray wrappers. Spine a bit cocked, missing paper at ends, wrappers a little foxed, interior fine. First edition. During the British occupation of Philadelphia in 1777-1778 Galloway was a “Superintendent” and Loyalist. In this volume he replies to General Howe’s Observations, and elaborates how Howe could and should have won the war. Galloway counters Howe's claim that he was forced to fight in forest by pointing out that in many place more than three quarter of the land and at a minimum two thirds of the land in question was cleared farm land. Even though Galloway sounds hostile there is important information and details on the Revolution, the nature of the countryside and more.

123 LAFAYETTE, Marquis de. Autograph Letter, signed. La Grange: 17 Novembre, 1828. Approximately 8-3/4 x 14-1/2 inches, lettersheet written in brown ink on tan paper, with remnants of original seal, and post office cancels. With some folds, light foxing, slight loss of paper on "address" half not affecting lettering or seal. With transcription of the French text.

A letter written by Lafayette (1757 - 1834) to Msr. Jules Dupont regarding a visit paid to Lafayette. He states that he and his family always take great pleasure in the visits and that he [Lafayette] hopes he [Dupont] does not mind him saying so.

Marie Jean Paul Joseph Roche Yves Gilbert du Motier,

Marquis de Lafayette, having been commissioned a captain of artillery in a regiment stationed at Metz, toward the end of 1776 happened to meet at dinner the Duke of Gloucester, brother of King George III, and heard of the Declaration of Independence and other events that had lately occurred in the United States. An enthusiastic sentiment of devotion to "liberty" and the "rights of man" was then growing up among youthful Frenchmen in all classes of society. Many young officers were eager to go to America, some from an intelligent interest in the cause at stake there, others from a love of romantic adventure or a desire to strike a blow at the English in revenge for the disasters of the Seven Years' War, including the Marquis. rh 26993

165 MOULTRIE, William. Memoirs Of The American Revolution, so far as it Related to The States Of North and South Carolina, and Georgia, Compiled from the Most Authentic Materials, The Author's Personal Knowledge of the Various Events, and Including an Epistolary Correspondence on Public Affairs, with Civil and Military Officers, at That Period. New York: Printed by David Longworth, 1802. Two volumes.

Frontispiece portrait (repaired in margin not affecting image). Octavo, expertly rebaced to style, original tree calf over boards, lettered in gilt, preserving original endpapers. Slight rubbing of edges and covers, endpapers and a few leaves a little browned, else fine. First edition.

Moultrie was a politician at the outbreak of war and his narrative is considered a most valuable first hand account of the American Revolution in the South. He was also an officer in the South Carolina colonial regiment and was eventually promoted to Brigadier-General in the Continental Army. He fought in several of the important battles in the South, including the defense of Fort Sullivan in 1776, also helped lead the defense of Charleston from the British until his forces were overcome in 1780. Moultrie was kept prisoner for more than one year by the British, who then offered him a command in Jamaica trying to bring him over to their side.

“The author's position as Governor of South Carolina, afforded him ample facilities to consult original authorities, and the result of his research is a good book” -Sabin.

Pratt. Minor rubbing, a fine copy. First edition.

The scarce first edition of David Humphreys' celebrated and lasting biography of Revolutionary war General Israel Putnam. Humphreys himself performed heroically during the Revolution, and was much beloved by George Washington. The book is still a useful source, containing a storehouse of firsthand anecdotes regarding Putnam's wartime exploits. Humphreys "had a natural talent or military science, and there are few more intelligent contemporary pictures of certain important campaigns, notably the battle of Long Island and the retreat from Harlem, than those contained in his Essay. In this he wrote as he fought, coolly and vigorously, and the book remains a testimonial to Putnam, to the effort and sacrifice of those stirring days, and to Humphreys own victorious good sense" -DAB.

Edges and boards a little scuffed, bookplates on front pastedown, old inscription in brown ink on verso of front free endpaper in vol. I, occasional light foxing. A very nice set. First edition.

First edition of a work that is fundamental to any collection of books relating to the American Revolution. This work is "generally considered the best contemporary account of the Revolution written from the British side" - Sabin. The beautifully engraved maps (the largest of which is approximately 20 x 30 inches) constitute the finest collection of plans assembled by an eyewitness. The depict the sieges of Savannah and Charlestown, plus the battles of Saratoga, Camden, Guilford, Hobkirk's Hill, and Yorktown.

Stedman was a native of Philadelphia, a Loyalist who served as an officer under Howe, Clinton, and Cornwallis, and later became an examiner of Loyalist claims for the British government. He had first-hand knowledge of many of the campaigns and persons involved in the effort. He is critical of Howe, and describes all the major theaters of war, as well as individual battles from Bunker Hill to Yorktown. [Gephart 1033. Sabin 91057. Howes 914, "b". JCB II:372. Slight rubbing of edges, front hinge weak, else fine. First edition. With the two pages of advertisements.

Tarleton, infamous for his brutal tactics, was commander of a Tory cavalry unit, the British Legion, and served in America from May 1776 through the siege of Yorktown. His is one of the principal British accounts of the revolution. Tarleton's use of original documents sets this narrative apart, many of which are included as notes following the chapters.

Tarleton served under Cornwallis and one of his primary missions was the capture of Charleston in 1780. He was highly critical of Cornwallis and the British High Command. He attributed his defeat at Cowpens to lack of co-operation from Cornwallis. [Howes T37, "b". Church 1224. Clark I: 317. Sabin 94397]. rh 27504

A RECOGNITION OF FEMINISM IN THE AMERICAN EXPERIENCE

A visit to RANDALL HOUSE RARE BOOKS in Santa Barbara is an experience that will make you forget about time and just enjoy the moment. Step into the historic adobe built in 1825, start reading a first edition of Captain Cook's Voyages from 1777 and you will think time has gone backwards. Take Audubon's Birds of America into the cactus garden and see the hummingbird illustrated in the book, drinking nectar from the flowers.

RANDALL HOUSE RARE BOOKS was founded in 1975. The first location for the bookshop was on Post Street in San Francisco. The Gonzalez-Ramirez adobe at 835 Laguna Street in Santa Barbara became the new home of Randall House a decade later. The building is a National Historic Landmark, and gives a wonderful ambiance to the collections of rare and distinguished books housed therein.

The bookstore keeps regular hours and is open to the public. Many collectors have found their way to Santa Barbara over the years, as have fine collections of books. Since Randall House deals with books and art, we also travel extensively to acquire rare and unusual items.

RANDALL HOUSE's name is associated with many famous books, such as the Coverdale Bible, the Gutenberg Bible leaf containing the Ten Commandments, as well as manuscripts by Joseph Conrad and Mark Twain. It has established itself as one of the pre-eminent rare book businesses in the country. In addition, Randall House performs appraisals and specialty consulting work. Randall House also represents customers at major auctions in the United States and abroad.

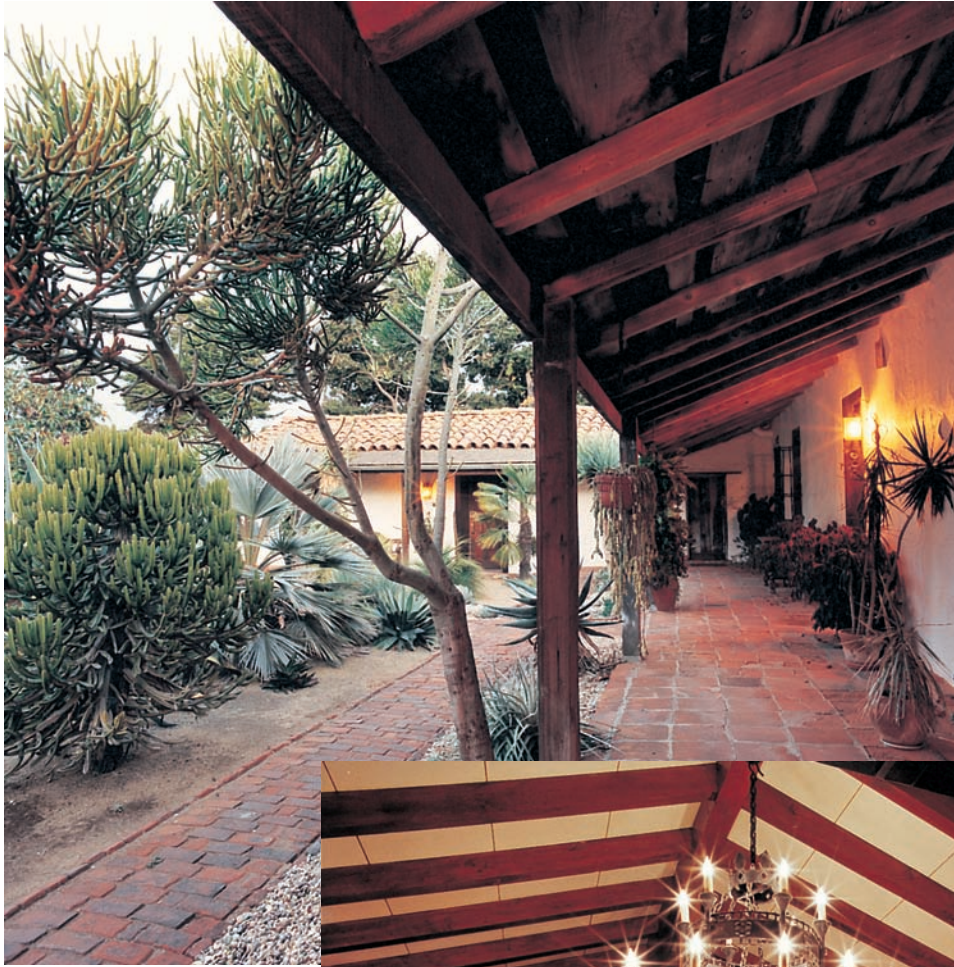

The book store prides itself on having something for everyone. Whether you collect nineteenth century literature, presidential autographs, fine press books, and bindings, books and maps about explorations and voyages, books illustrated by famous artists, western Americana or rare bibles, you may be certain to find something of interest to you.

Our fine art department handles only paintings and prints of the highest quality. Works by famous American artists and illustrators are on display, John James Audubon, Edward Borein, Will James, William Merrit Chase, John Falter, William Keith and Howard Pyle, among others. Randall House owns the N.C. Wyeth painting which became the title page for Robert Louis Stevenson's The Black Arrow and which is on exhibit at the bookstore.

Catalogues and "short title lists" of books are issued from time to time. If you would like to be on our mailing list, via U.S. mail or email, let us know. The more specific you can be about your interests, the more efficiently we can help you find items worthy of consideration. If your interests change, please let us also know.

We maintain a website: www.RandallHouseRareBooks.com and keep lists by subject and most of our books from current stock posted there. The site is fully searchable by author, title, or keywords. Many of the items are illustrated, and all are fully described. We can also post items or pictures specifically for your viewing online, if you are not able to come into the store, or we can email you descriptions and illustrations.
