ACOSTA, Christoval o Cristóvão da Costa (1515-1594).

Tractado de las drogas, y medicinas de las indias orientales, con sus plantas debuxadas al bivo port Christoval Acosta medico y cirujano que las vio ocularmente.

Burgos, Martin de Victoria, 1578.

4to (mm 183x125).

Contemporary vellum, recased.

24 unnumbered pages, including the beautiful title page with a title inserted inside an elegant architectural newsstand and full-page portrait of the artist. 448-38- (2) numbered pages

46 woodcut illustrations in the text, of which 41 full page depict botanical subjects, 2 full page depicting two elephants and 3, smaller, depicting leaves. The illustrations are executed by drawings by Christoval Acosta. From page 417 to the end of the volume there is the "Tractado del Elephante", the first monographic study on this animal. FIRST RARE edition of a work that had great importance and several translations and which led to the knowledge of many Asian plants of importance both from a medical point of view and as spices, such as nutmeg, cinnamon, cardamom and opium.

Exemplary in fair condition, from page 337 to the end, a gap integrated by restoration at the lower outer corner, which goes on to increase up to page 409 with the loss of some text lines.

ALDINI, Giovanni (1762-1834).

Essai théorique et sperimental sur le galvinisme, avec une sérier d'expériences faites en présences des commissaires de l'institut nationale de France.

Paris, de l'Imprimerie de Fournier fils, an XII (1804).

2 voll. 8vo (mm 200x121)

Contemporary green quarter calf.

First vol.: (6), XVI, 350 numbered pages; 7 folding engraved plates.

Second vol.: (4), XII, 330 numbered pages; 3 folding engraved plates.

FIRST OCTAVO EDITION, published in the same year as the quarto edition, of Aldini's best -known work.

"In the controversy over Galvani's "animal electricity" and Volta's "galvanic current" it was not the modest Galvani but his lusty nephew [Aldini] who wrote, lectured, and published in Italian, French and English on the theories and experiments of both his uncle and himself ... the effervescent Aldini became his uncle's champion - so much so that Volta addressed his arguments to Aldini instead of Galvani ... Some of his more dramatic experiments [illustrated here] involved motion in the anatomical members of a just-executed murderer and induced muscular contraction in dissected parts of sheep, oxen, and chickens' (DSB).

Without final blanks in both volumes, l.4.4. with small chip due to paper flaw, tear to l.16.3 in text but without loss, large marginal tear to ll.22.1, plate numbers cropped, occasional light browning and spotting, heavier to gatherings l.20-21.

Provenance: inscription on half-title in vol. I.

Commedia.

Venezia, Vindelino da Spira, 1477.

Folio (mm 320x210).

XX century morocco binding, signed by Charles Meunier (1865-1948).

Collation: á 68; a-i K10 l8; m8 n-s10 t v8 x y10; aa-gg10 hh ii8 KK-OO10 PP.. ( á2r lfe of Dante, a2r table of Inferno, a3r Inferno with commentary, m1r table of Purgatorio, m2r Purgatorio with commentary, aa1r table of Paradiso, aa2r Paradiso with commentary, PP8-11 verses by Busone da Gobbio and Dante's son Jacobo, the Credo of Dante and colophon, 373 leaves (of 376, without the 3 blanks á1, a1, and PP12). Type 5:90G.

SIXTH EDITION of the Divina Commedia and first edition with commentary, edited by Cristoforo Berardi of Pesaro. The first Venetian edition of Dante's poem was also the first to be printed with a commentary. In this case, the commentator is Jacopo della Lana (ca. 1278–ca. 1358), a contemporary of Dante. Della Lana wrote his commentary sometime after Dante's death, but before 1328. It is considered among the best of the early criticisms along with those of Benvenuto da Imola, Guido da Pisa, and two of Dante's three sons, Jacopo and Pietro. In this edition, however, the colophon incorrectly attributes della Lana's commentary to Benvenuto da Imola, perhaps to increase sales through name recognition (cf. Cachey, et al.). This edition also contains the first printing of Giovanni Boccaccio's Vita di Dante, or Life of Dante. Boccaccio (1313–1375), who was only eight years old when Dante died, was among the first of the poet's defenders to extol his virtues through a combination of commentary, teaching, and textual editing. Attempting to reclaim its exiled native son, the City of Florence commissioned Boccaccio to deliver a series of lectures on Dante beginning in 1373.

Good condition, probably composed with leaves from different copies and refreshed at the time of binding. First leaf with fully integrated margins around the text; the leaves with pencil numbering 56 and 57 postponed to 58 and 59; as well as the 74 and 75 are postponed to 76 and 77, the leaf numbered by pencil 322 slightly shorter at the lower edge.

Provenance: "Ex. Bibl. Ios Ren. Card. Imperialis" stamp. Some contemporary handwritten notes at the final leaf:

3 parts in 1, Folio (mm 343x215).

Contemporary calf, gilt spine (gilt worn, small wormhole to head of spine, corners slightly bumped).

17 volvelles over 5 figures, of which 3 retain marker threads, woodcut devices to titles.

First part: (4), 12, with 3 figures. Second part: 57, (1bl.) with 2 figures. Third part: 26, (2bl.).

A total of 17 volvelles over 5 figures, of which 3 retain marker threads, woodcut devices to titles. Collation: e2, A-C2, A-O2, [1], A-F2, G1
Second edition of this curious astrological work, printed the same year as the first. After the predictions contained in the first edition led to many copies being condemned and burned, this edition was published without the offending volvelles relating to Christianity, Islam, England, France, and Spain, but retaining 5 volvelles including those relating to Henry IV of France and the disposition of the sky at the moment of creation. "The first two parts are attributed on their title-pages to a Francisci Alleius and comprise an explication of his 'new method of astrology' and comments and observations on 'the fate of the universe.'

The third part is a commentary on the preceding two sections by the Capuchin Yves de Paris, who is presumed to be the true author of the entire work. Expurgated editions, themselves very rare, were printed in Paris in 1654--56 and Rennes in 1658." (Sotheby's).

Scattered spotting and soiling, bottom margin of B2 torn, small burn hole bottom margin of I1. Without final end paper, otherwise good copy.

Provenance: Some contemporary underlining – engraved bookplate. Cfr. Cf. Brunet I, 185; Caillet III, 11557; Dorbon, Bib. Estoterica 61; Houzeau and Lancaster 5217.

APULEIO (II cent. ME) with commentary by BEROALDO Filippo il Vecchio (1453-1505).

Commentarii a Philippo Beroaldo conditi asinum aureum Lucii Apuleii. Mox in reliquia opuscula eiusdem annotationes imprimentur.

Bononiae, B. Hectoris, August 1st 1500.

Folio (mm 310x210)

18th century full vellum, Gilt author and title on top spine along with publishing information in two frames; red edges. (4) -282 numbered pages including frontispiece.

Collection: a4 A-Z6. Publisher's notes on the bottom of the verso of page 280 followed by the recto of p. 281 with a text addressed to the reader and on the verso two poems in Latin by Calio Calcagnini and Filippo Beroaldo. Elegant Latin round type with abbreviations for Apuleius' text surrounded by commentary notes noted in the margins. White spaces with reference letter. Ancient Owner's note on frontispiece written in pen. Modest marginal notes and underlining in pen by different hands but elegantly calligraphic dating XVI-XVII cent. This is the fourth edition for Apuleius' Metamorphoses, and it may be considered a postincunable as per its publishing date, but it is the first with the commentary by Bolognese humanist Beroaldo. The volume is a clear testimony to Apuleius' fortune during the Renaissance. Good copy, moderate wear to spine and partial detachment of the first two unnumbered leaves after the frontispiece.

Types: 1:146Gk, 7:114Gk, 2:114R.

Rare EDITIO PRINCEPS.

In this first edition, Aldo presents to the most refined lovers of ancient letters of the Italian Renaissance 9 of the 11 complete comedies of Aristophane taken from the manuscripts received. It would have been Aldo's intention to also include a tenth comedy, Lysistrata, but he did not because he could not find a manuscript containing the complete text.

A total of 6 additional titles and 616 fine hand-coloured engraved plates, all but the last few by N.F. Eisenberger, many heightened with gum arabic.

The expanded German edition of Elizabeth Blackwell's "Curious Herbal", with superb plates by Nikolaus Eisenberger. A fine copy of one of the most important early German works on medicinal plants. Conceived and initially overseen by Christoph Jakob Trew, who wrote the text for the first 90 plates. Following Trew's death, Georg Rudolph Böhmer and Ernst Gottlob Bose, both leading botanists from Leipzig, continued the effort under the editorship of Christian Gottlieb Ludwig. Nikolaus Friedrich Eisenberger was responsible for re-engraving Blackwell's original 500 plates, providing an additional 100 and embellishing them with added details. Eisenberger is also known for his work on Trew's masterwork, the "Hortus Nitidissimis".

BUONAIUTI, Serafino - LERBERGHI, P. van - GODBY, James.

Italian scenery; representing the manners, customs and amusements of the different states of Italy; containing thirty-two coloured engravings by James Godby, from original drawings by P. Van Lerberghi. The narrative by M. Buonaiuti.

London, Edward Orme, 1806.

Folio (mm 352x250)

Contemporary full morocco red. 1 blank, (4), 2 numbered pages, (2), 3-74 numbered pages; 1 bl. 33 plates out of text, 32 of which are printed in "pointillé" and handcoloured; one, instead, is in black and white and represents the musical score of a Neapolitan song, La Tarantella (often missing).

Text in English and French.

First edition and first issue with watermark paper "Whatman 1801".

The subjects represented belong to the Italian popular culture. The text is the work of Buonaiuti, the plates engraved by James Godby from the original drawings by P. van Lerberghi. Cf. Choix (10995): "superbes gravures ... ouvrage rare On y remarque e a 4 planches here ont trait à la musique: Dance of Lazzaroni children, Dance of the Tarantella, the Street Singers, at Piedmontese Dance"; Fiammetta Olschki: "Important work for the history of local and popular costume"; Brunet (II, 1639): "Ouvrage assez bien execute, tant dans les gravures que dans le texte". A valuable monograph on Italian costumes of the time, with particular regard to those representative of Naples, Rome and Piedmont.

Good condition, very slight damage to the corners of the binding; slight foxing to the leaves, as usual.

BONATUS DE FORLIVIO, Guido (1230-1296).

Decem tractatus astronomiae. (Additions by Jacobus Canter. Edited by Johannes Angeli).

Augsburg, Erhard Ratdolt, 26 March 1491.

4to (mm 213 x 163).

Early 20th-century calf-backed boards with slipcase. 422 leaves (first quire containing the register possibly supplied) 44 lines. Woodcut illustrations and diagrams, initials, large printer's device printed in red. FIRST EDITION of a beautifully printed incunabulum. This work relies heavily on the writings of the Arab astrologers as well as those of Ptolemy and writers of the classical period. Bonatti was the author of several astronomical works and one of the most famous and influential astrologers of the 13th century. In 1260 he held the tilte "Astrologus Communis Florentiae de Forolivio" (Astrologer of the Florentine community Forli).

Title and last leaf tipped onto endpaper, device soiled and with a few marginal tears (with holes and wormhole touching one letter), few small wormholes in first few leaves, occasional light marginal waterstaining, wormtrack in upper margin of last 4 leaves. Very rare with the register, often lacking.

Della contemplatione anatomica, sopra tutte le parti del corpo humano, libri cinque.

Venezia, Vincenzo Valgrisi, 1564.

8vo (mm 160x100).

Modern full vellum.

24 unnumbered pages, including the title page; 490- (6), numbered pages.

FIRST AND ONLY EDITION. Prospero Borgarucci became professor of anatomy and surgery in Padua, some 20 years after Vesalius. He published several treatises on anatomy, pestilential disease, and materia medica. Prospero Borgarucci became physician to Queen Catherine de Medici in France, and to Archduke Karl II of Habsburg in Graz. The text is divided into five chapters. The work is based on the knowledge of contemporary anatomists such as Fallopio, Colombo, Sylvius, Valverde and above all Vesalius called "divine" in many parts of the text.

Good condition.

Commentariorum del bello gallico libri VIII.

Venetii, in aedibus Aldi et Andreae soceri, april 1513.

8vo (mm 159x95)

Contemporary Italian brown morocco paneled in blind with small flowers and leafy volutes, title gilt-stamped within central gilt cartouche on upper cover, repeated on lower cover with supralibros.

(29), 296 numbered pages, handcolored double-page map of Gaul, 5 plain full-page woodcuts, index of places names in Latin and French. FIRST ALDINE EDITION. The antiquarian and architect Fra Giovanni Gioconda of Verona returned to Italy from France in 1504 to become military engineer to the Republic of Venice, bringing with him detailed notes on the ancient grammarians, Roman agricultural writers, and the text of Caesar, copied from manuscripts in France, which were considered better than any known in Italy.

Upper board detached, lower corner of lower board defective, boards rubbed otherwise very good condition.

Venice, (Vincenzo Coronelli), 1698.

Folio (mm 480x350)

Contemporary full calf.

Title-page, 3, (1bl.), 138 numbered pages, 25 numbered plates (24 of which in double page). Numerous woodcuts in the text depicting astronomical, navigation, coastal altimetric profiles, small views of ports and cities.

Re-edition, by Vincenzo Coronelli, of the famous Atlas published by Francesco Levanto in 1664 and 1679, here is re-edited with little variations in the text and in the plates.

This is the last volume by Coronelli to compose his Atlante Veneto, in the title the author also mentions the publication of a second part never published. The beautiful work describes the islands and the coasts of the Mediterranean through twelve "demonstrations"; the rich iconographic apparatus begins with two general portolans of the Mediterranean, one dedicated to the western part, the other to the eastern one; follow 25 plates with nautical charts showing the stretch of coast described in the demonstration that follows it. Each "demonstration" is accompanied by useful tables showing distances in Italian leagues.

Boards rubbed, tears close to the hinges. Pale waterstain at Q2; S2 slightly soiled and five little repaired scrapes. Tear on the top corner right of X1, far from the text. Dd1 and Dd2 slightly soiled. Ee a bit shorter. Plates well inked, fresh and without defects.

30, 2bl., 8 unnumbered leaves. On the first bl. handwritten note in pencil "Anatomia dal vero disegnata da Gio. Fran.co Ferrero" (Anatomy in real life drawn by Gio. Franc.co Ferrero). Anatomical watercolor pasted down on 8v. 39 drawings finely executed on the first 30 leaves most in pencil and sanguine depicting anatomical details with a particular attention to the musculature. Curiously, the drawing on the 29v depicts an armor. After the blanks the drawing, in pencil and grey watercolor are focused on academic subjects.

Prolific engraver, mainly active in Rome in the second quarter of the nineteenth century, the Piedmontese Ferrero was author of important work such as "Raccolta delle migliori composizioni di Raffaello, Pussino, Domenichino e di altri celebri pittori" (Rome, 1820). Two of his prints, from Raphael and Annibale Carracci, were owned by Stendhal (Colasanti (2002), catalogs 151 and 153).

Full vellum, recased. New endpapers, 61, (3) numbered pages. Handwritten note on title page. Renowned work of Marsilio Ficino reprinted by Giunti when in Italy and Florence in particular when a severe epidemic of plague had returned again. The first edition of this work was published in 1481, following the terrible fever epidemic of 1478. This treatise discusses causes, diagnosis, and concentrates on therapies employed for its cure. In that time the plague was endemic through Europe, and Ficino recommends casting off magic and witchcraft but to cling to some concepts of astrology.

The Execution of Felice Orsini.

Autograph manuscript signed.

n.p. (before 1864).

8vo (mm 185x110)

Black morocco.

53 pages on letter paper.

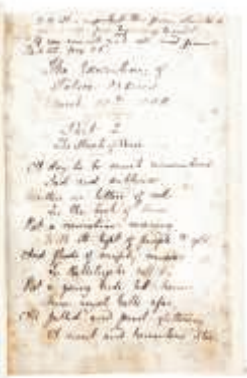

The poet and writer Harriet Hamilton King became interested at a young age in Italy and the Italian struggle for independence: her parents sent her away to Scotland without delay when they learnt of her plans to travel to join Giuseppe Mazzini in the fight of unification. She was later able to publish several poems in support of the cause, including this one, which pays tribute to the revolutionary leader of the Carbonari who tried to assassinate Napoleon III.

"The Execution of Felice Orsini" has beauty; but it is, I think, injured by the fault one might expect to find in young work—want of condensation. But the book shows Mrs. King's style formed, if not matured; so much so that such a poem, for instance, as "Many Voices" might have been written by her this very year. Several of the poems in the book are purely English."

FIRST ALDINE EDITION of Lucanus' epic poem on the struggle between Caesar and Pompey, with the commentaries of Joannes Sulpicius and a life of the author. Printed in italics.

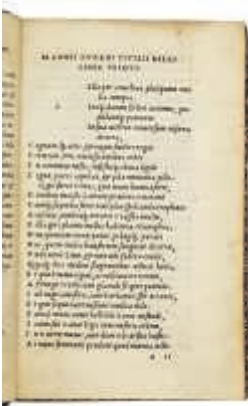

The Editio Princeps of Lucano was printed in Rome by Sweynheym and Pannartz in 1469. This edition is based on the text of the Venice incunabulum of 1493 and improved by Aldo Manuzio after the acquisition of an old manuscript donated by Marco Antonio Mauroceno. The short life of Lucan added at the end is taken from Tacitus.

Old vellum, recased, new endpapers (splits to front cover, slightly bowed, spine restored).

(14), 115 numbered pages - missing the last blank. Engraved title, woodcut astronomical diagrams, initials and decorations.

FIRST EDITION of this treatise on the cosmos by the "professor of mathematics at Bologna, an outstanding astronomer and a correspondent of Tycho Brahe and Kepler. He made a thorough study of the writings of Copernicus whose calculations of the celestial movements he considered far more exact than those of his predecessors. However, as he could not accept Copernicus' theory of the movement of the earth, he collated the ideas of Ptolemy and Copernicus, adding new hypotheses of his own where they seemed necessary and wrote his theory of the planets along these lines" (Offenbacher, 26/159).

Title tipped onto preceding endpaper, marginal soling, Ffr with neat repair at the bottom margin).

(12), 2bl., 384 numbered pages; title page, (4), 2bl., 88 numbered pages.

FIRST EDITION of the first work and RARE FIRST EDITION of the second work.

The first part deals with practical medicine and defines illnesses and their cure. The second is a treatise on syphilis by Geronimo Capivaccio. With his De Lue Venerea Acroasei Capivaccio joined the ranks of those who dealt with venereal diseases. (D.B.It., XVIII, 649-651) "He had become a specialist in their cure and it was thought he had a secret means to manage even the most complex of cases...; through field experience he had become certain that guayacan decoctions or fumigations with mercury were essential when dealing with serious cases, where antimony remained way less effective in his opinion". Ink oxidation caused a tiny lack on frontispiece, even lighter on the following page with a few letters missing., otherwise good condition.

MARTIALIS, Marcus Valerius (39/40 - 104). Aldine Edition.
Epigrammata.

Venetis, in aedibus Aldi, mense decembri 1501.

8vo (mm 156x92)

Stunning red morocco by Capè (Charles Francois Capè, 1806-1867). Covers gilt with beautiful Aldine dolphin and anchor and floral tools at the corners, edges gilt, marbled endpapers. Modern suitcase.

191 (of 192, missing last bl.), collation: A-Z8, &8.

FIRST RARE ALDINE EDITION, the first work printed in italic letter.

The Martialis, together with Virgil, Juvenal-Persius, Horace and Petrarch, all published in 1501, is one of the first works of classical authors printed by Aldo before he began to use the famous typographic brand with the anchor and the dolphin. Aldus began publishing his "Libelli Portatiles" (pocket books) in April 1501 with an edition of Virgil, 1501 was a truly extraordinary year for the publications of the great printer. The text is divided into 12 books containing more than 1500 short compositions. The Editio Princeps of the Epigrammata was printed in Venice by Vindelinius de Spira between 1469 and 1473. "The series of editions of classical Latin and Greek authors and Italian vernacular published as pocket-sized books (enchiridia) was Aldus's most successful editorial innovation and they immediately caught the eye of wealthy European literati and collectors. Their slim and elegant proportions contributed to a permanent change in the physical appearance of Western books, and secured elegance of the book proportions and the beauty of the printing in the elegant new founts designed for Aldus by Francesco Griffo assured an immediate success" (University of Cambridge online).

(14), 201, (5) numbered pages, final end-paper entirely manuscripted. Engraved frontispiece, title in red and black, with vignette, 37 plates (of which 2 folded), engraved head- and tail-pieces.

FIRST EDITION of this work with fine engravings by the physician Oligerus on the royal cabinet of curiosities collected by King Christian V. The Museum, one of the only two present in northern Europe at the time, was founded by Frederick III of Denmark and in 1655 was enriched by the famous Wormiana collection. The text is divided into two parts: the first, describes the natural wonders such as mummies, skeletons, elephant tusks, plant, exotic animals and precious stones; the second deals with artificial wonders, those produced by human hand. Good condition.

Primitiae anatomicae de humani corporis ossibus.

4to (mm 197x140)

18th century sprinkled paper boards.

(16), 188, (4) numbered pages. 4 engraved folding plates, 22 engravings in the text.

FIRST EDITION of this illustrated work on osteology.

"...In 1615, Pieter Paaw was the first to describe the sesame-shaped fourth ossicle in the middle ear of oxen within the stapes tendon, sometimes related as the "oval ossicle" [5]. Soon after his initial description, other anatomists began to write regarding this sesamoid bone in both humans and nonhuman mammals, although it does not exist in humans. Descriptions of this additional ossicle in the stapes tendon have been misinterpreted by authors, confusing its terminology. Also it was referred as "ossiculum Pavius". Paaw re-issued and added his own annotations to the necessary for that time handbook for medical students "De humani corporis fabrica libri septem" by Andreas Vesalius. His notes contributed for clarifying of many issues. The interesting sketches were revealed in his anatomical masterpiece "Primitiae anatomicae de humani corporis ossibus", published in 1615. Besides the detailed description of the bones of the body, including the bones of hand and foot, the pictures with sections of the frontal, maxillary and sphenoid bones show that he was familiar with the presence of paranasal sinuses, including maxillary one, discovery attributed erroneously to British surgeon anatomist Nathaniel Highmore (1613-1685), who described it 36 years after Pauw" (Russian Open Medical Journal 2017; 6: e0309).

PICO DELLA MIRANDOLA, Giovanni (1463-1494);
ARCANGELO, [PAGANINI] da Borgonuovo (secolo XVI).

Cabalistarum selectiora, obscurioraque dogmata.

Venice, apud Franciscus Franciscium Senensem, 1569.

Small 8vo (mm 143x95)

Contemporary vellum, gilt spine and red edges .

(28), 219, without final blank. Woodcut on title, woodcut initials and head- and tailpieces.

RARE FIRST EDITION 'de la plus insigne rareté'. Pico's work on the Cabala, it contains various passages on the hierarchies of angels and the soul as a source of life; it questions why the moon is considered a magic planet, it discusses demons taking possession of animals during the night and the reason why light is their main enemy.

A few pages shaved with minor loss, some light staining to bottom margin, occasional light browning and spotting from 97 to 110.

Otherwise good condition.

Provenance: John Brande Morris (inscription on front endpaper dated 1634) — J.S. (book ticket) — early ink and later pencil annotations.

Venice, in aedibus Aldi et Andrea Asulani soceri, mense Iulio 1522.

4to (mm 203x135)

18th century full vellum.

(14), 284 numbered pages. Aldine device on title and at end, blank spaces for capitals with printed guide letters.

THE FIRST AND ONLY ALDINE EDITION of Plautus' comedies, printed by the heirs of Aldus. The volume was edited by Giovan Francesco Torresano from Asola, on the basis - as he states in his dedicatory epistle to Nikolaus Schönberg, Archbishop of Capua - of previous editorial work undertaken in 1508 by Aldus Manutius, and the leading humanist Erasmus of Rotterdam, when he was living in Venice. Printed in Aldus's types 2:114R and 7:114Gk. Variant at leaf 1r ("et" instead "&").

FIRST EDITION of one of the handsomest products of the Aldine press. Angelo Ambrogini (1454-1494) was known as Poliziano or Politianus or Politian, from the name of his birthplace, Montepulciano.

Aldus's edition of Politian consists of twelve books of "Epistolae" which form about one third of the quarto volume, the rest of which contain the Opuscula. Among the latter is the Miscellanea, essays on philology and criticism, dedicated to Lorenzo de' Medici. This is followed by translations of and commentaries on several ancients, among them Herodian, Epictetus, Alexander of Aphrodisias, Plutarch (Amatoriae Narrationes), Aristotle (Lamia), Homer, Suetonius, et al. The volume concludes with Latin poems - Nutritia, Rusticus (on the pleasure of country life), Manto (on Virgil), Ambra (on the Tuscan landscape), metrical Latin and Greek epigrams.

Good condition.

4to (mm 205x120)

18th century full vellum. Modern suitcase.

(4), 230 numbered leaves.

SECOND ALDINE EDITION. The Roman rhetor Marcus Fabius Quintilian was the first state teacher of rhetoric in Rome at the time of Vespasian, and liber X contains a profile of Greek and Roman literary history. The "Institutio Oratoria" of Quintilian was known throughout the Middle Ages, especially in the works of synthesis of the encyclopedists such as Cassiodorus and Isidore of Seville. The treaty influenced authors such as Erasmus and Vives. His educational ideas were absorbed by Piccolomini, Agricola, Erasmus (De pueris instituendis) and Melanchthon. It was also used by Ben Jonson, Alexander Pope, Du Bos and Goethe.

Second edition of this compilation of the botanical knowledge of the period by one of the very earliest of the French botanists. Ruel was physician to Francis I and is more widely known in the field of botany for his translation of Dioscorides. The first part of this work is devoted to a general treatment of botany and is based largely on Theophrastus's De historia et causis plantarum; the remainder contains approximately 600 plant descriptions taken primarily from classical authorities, arranged in alphabetical order and supplemented with plant names in the vernacular. The book stands out more for its achievement in book design than for its contribution to botanical classification. Mortimer states "it is generally cited as one of the handsomest books of its time." Stunning red morocco by Capè (Charles Francois Capè, 1806-1867). Covers gilt with beautiful Aldine dolphin and anchor and floral tools at the corners, edges gilt, marbled endpapers. Modern suitcase. (16), 279 numbered pages.

FIRST ALDINE EDITION, rare like all the editions from 1506 to 1511, where the end of the Venetian Republic certainly influenced Aldus in his book production, only 8 were published during those years. The work is dedicated by Aldus to the Venetian general Bartolomeo d'Alviani, protector of scholars. The first part focused on Sallust is followed (from page 160) by writings of Cicero ("Oratio contra C. Crispum Sallustium", wrongly attributed to him, and the "Orationes quatuor contra Lucium Catilinam"), by Marcus Porcius Latrus ("Declamatio contra Lucium Catilinam") and by the same Sallustio "Orationes quaedam ex libris historiarum".
