30. `Sacchin` and `Taiyo (The Sun), July 1964`

Nobuyoshi, Araki.

A two-book set showcasing Nobuyoshi Araki’s monochrome photographic debut work, `Apa-to no kodomotachi`, retitled to `Sacchin` after he won first prize at the photography competition run by Magazine `Taiyo`. This set includes the July 1964, No.13 issue of Taiyo in which Nobuyoshi’s works were first displayed as prize-winner on a full 16 pages. The editor of the magazine later lost the negatives of the photographs, so the images in the magazine which won first prize do not appear in the book `Sacchin`. Therefore the magazine plus `Sacchin` make a full set of the debut work of Nobuyoshi, `Apa-to no kodomotachi`. The book `Sacchin`, this copy published in 1994, is one of 9 volumes in the Photo Musee series. `Sacchin` comes with the original silver obi and advertisement slip by the publisher. Obi slightly worn at edges. Original dust jacket very slightly dirt-stained. Otherwise contents in fine condition and photographs clean and bright. `Taiyo` magazine cover has a few scratches and spine has some slight dirt stains. Edges browned. Faint foxing on back endpaper. Slight browning to edges of some pages. Includes original questionnaire card inserted by publisher. Includes clean and bright colour and monochrome photographs and illustrations, of course including Nobuyoshi’s work. Both texts in Japanese. Very difficult to find as a set.

60. `Chikuhou no Kodomotachi [The Children of Chikuho]` and `Rumiechan wa Otousan ga Shinda [Rumie's Father is Dead]` (2 v. set)

Domon, Ken.

A very clean and bright two volume set of photo-books by celebrated Japanese photojournalist Ken Domon (1909-1990). `The Children of Chikuho`, published in January of 1960, follows the lives of the children of miners living in Chikuho, Fukushima, in the late 1950s. While the Japanese government at the time insisted that Japan’s economy was strong, the photos Domon took of children living in decaying houses proved otherwise. There is some minor rubbing to the corners and edges of this book, as well as some foxing. The covers are very bright and without any foxing or major damage. The second book, `Rumiechan wa Otousan ga Shinda` was published in November of the same year as `The Children of Chikuho`. After leaving Chikuho to publish the first book, he returned late in 1960 only to find that the father of Rumie-chan (a girl he had photographed for his first book), had died in a mining accident, leaving Rumie-chan and her sister without parents (their mother had died a few years earlier). The photos show Rumie-chan and her sister adjusting to their new lives in an orphanage. There is a small tear to the spine and to the margin of p.9-10. There are also occasional small nics to other page edges, light browning to the contents, and a little bumping to the corners of the covers. Copies as clean and undamaged as these are extremely rare. Text in Japanese. 95 p., 96 p.
