Section One: Antiquarian Books

1. Addison (Joseph) Cato. A Tragedy. Done into Latin Verse [by Joseph Reeve]. Without the love scenes. Printed by R. Balfe. 1764, FIRST EDITION, facing pages of Latin and English, just some slight browning, pp. v, [3], 167, [1], 8vo., contemp. spotted calf, backstrip with five raised bands between double gilt fillets, red morocco label in second compartment, gilt stamp of an earl's crown atop a 'moor's head' in profile to front board, large armorial bookplate to front pastedown, small modern booksellers' stamp below, front joint cracking but sound, with a little wear at top, rubbed at extremities, sound (ESTC T27016) £225.00

The first edition of this translation of Joseph Addison’s play ‘Cato’ into Latin, omitting the love scenes, which were nearly as controversial as the political content (vide ‘What’s Love Got to Do with Addison’s Cato?’ by Freeman, SEL 1500-1900, Summer 1999): The ODNB compares its 1713 opening night to that of Stravinsky’s infamous Rite of Spring. This copy has the unusual gilt crest of the earls of Newburgh, a heraldic ‘moor’s head’ beneath an earl's crown, stamped on the binding, and their large bookplate with the motto ‘si je puis (here mis-spelt ‘pius’). The original owner was most likely James Bartholomew Radcliffe, 3rd Earl of Newburgh (1725-1787), son of Charles Radcliffe, who was executed for Jacobite treason in 1746.

2. (Africa.) PARK (Mungo) Travels in the interior districts of Africa. Performed under the direction and patronage of the African Association, in the years 1795, 1796 and 1797 … with an appendix containing geographical illustrations of Africa by Major Rennell. G. and W. Nicol. 1799, FIRST EDITION, frontispiece portrait slightly foxed, pages browned towards beginning and end of text, 3 folding maps, 2 folding and 3 full-page plates, pp. xxviii, 372, [92], 4to., contemp. tree calf, rebacked and re-cornered, smooth backstrip with rope roll and double fillet gilt bands, orig. gilt lettered black morocco label in second compartment relief, sides with decorative gilt border, ownership signature in contemp. hand on front pastedown, good (PMM 253; Lowndes p. 1775) £1,200.00

One of ‘the most important books of modern times’. Park was selected at the age of 24 by the African Association, through the influence of his friend Sir Joseph Banks, to lead an exploring expedition into the African interior. He set out from Senegal and was the first European to reach the Niger. He wrote, ‘looking forwards I saw with infinite pleasure the great object of my mission – the long sought for majestic Niger, glittering in the morning sun, as broad as the Thames at Westminster, and flowing to the eastwards. I hastened to the brink, and having drank the water, lifted up my fervent thanks in prayer to the great Ruler of all things, for having thus far crowned my endeavours with success.’ This first journey revealed many secrets of the Gambian hinterland, and the African Association were so grateful for his work that they published his account, insisting that it should be in the form of a narrative, for his benefit. ‘Until the publication of Park’s [first] book in 1799 hardly anything was known of the interior of Africa, apart from the north-east region and the coastal areas. Park’s Travels had an immediate success and was translated into most European languages. It has become a classic of travel literature, and its scientific observations on the botany and meteorology of the region, and on the social and domestic life of the negroes, have remained of lasting value’ (PMM).

3. (Africa.) Patterson (Lieut. Col. J. H.) In the Grip of the Nyika. Further Adventures in British East Africa. Macmillan. 1909, general map of British East Africa, 8 full-page route maps and over 100 illustrations, pp. xiv, [ii], 389, [2], 8vo., orig. dark blue cloth, backstrip with gilt lettering, the front covers embossed with a gilt medallion of a tribesman and camel, t.e.g., back hinge splitting, good £110.00
Lieutenant-Colonel Patterson ventured into relatively unexplored and dangerous areas of East Africa, where he encountered The Man-Eaters of Tsavo, which proved to be a popular title. On this expedition he was accompanied by a nobleman and his attractive wife on a long safari deep into the wilderness, hunting various game including the Rhino, Eland, Zebra, Thomson’s Gazelle etc. The husband was ‘missing’ when they returned to Nairobi, and in the ensuing scandal, Patterson abruptly left Kenya and spent the next several years in Europe. He was later to explain the shooting accident, and gave health as his reason for returning to England.

4. (Alps.) Freshfield (Mrs. Henry [Jane]) A Summer Tour in the Grisons and Italian Valleys of the Bernia. Longman, Green, Longman, and Roberts. 1862, First Edition, 2 coloured folding maps and 4 coloured lithographic plates, first leaf (blank) and last two leaves (ads) foxed, pp. [x], 292, 32, 8vo., orig. dark green vertical ribbed cloth with binder's label of Edmonds and Remnants, backstrip lettered in gilt, boards with a decorative blind panel, central gilt crest to front board, slightly rubbed, front hinge cracked (but sound), upper corners and spine ends bumped, good, (Neate 295; ACLC p. 121; Coolidge 195) £650.00

Jane Freshfield, whose son Douglas would go on to be president of the Royal Geographical Society and edit the Alpine Journal, was herself a keen mountaineer. With her husband Henry she travelled extensively in the Alps, and wrote Alpine Byways (1861) and this book, which was largely responsible for making the then-unknown (in Britain) Grisons and Engadine into popular travel destinations.

5. (Ancient Dress.) Ferrarius (Octavius) Analecta De Re Vestiaria siue Exercitationes ad Alberti Rubenii Commentarium de Re Vestiaria, & Lato Clauo. Accessit Dissertatio de Veterum Lucernis sepulchralibus. Padua: typis Petri Marie Frambotti. 1670, 2 parts in one vol., title printed in red and black and with printer’s device (on both titles), 19 engraved plates, one or two with the edges trimmed, ink ownership signatures on the title and endpaper, one half-page engraved illustration, pp. [xvi], 155, 39, [16], 4to., contemp. vellum, yapp edges, slightly soiled, the edges a little chipped, rear pastedown stained, bookplate of Randall Hatfield, good (Colas 1056; Lipperheide 151) £450.00

Octavius Ferrarius (1607-1682) first published his study of ancient costume in 1642 and 1654. In 1665 Albert Rubens (the son of the painter) printed his own treatise on Roman outfits, which sparked this new edition from Ferrarius, incorporating a response to Rubens. Hallam called it ‘the best work on Roman dress’ (Intr. Lit. Europe). The plates show Greek, Roman and Byzantine costume, including an intriguing one of footwear with sandals equipped with spikes.

6. (Anthology.) Loftie (The Rev. W. J.) The Latin Year. With illustrations by Robert Bateman. A scarce printing of 'the golden chain,' or Aquinas's commentaries on the Four Gospels, with all the elegance of early sixteenth Century Venetian printing. Outside of Italy, we have been able to trace only one copy in COPAC – Edinburgh – and six in Worldcat – the Folger, University of Illinois, Catholic University of America, and Xavier, St Bonaventure, and Southern Methodist Universities.

Item 8
9. (Arctic.) FIALA (Anthony) Fighting the Polar Ice. With ... Reports by William J. Peters, Russell W. Porter and Oliver S. Fassig. [Second Edition]. *New York: Doubleday, Page. 1907, large folding coloured map, 9 plates, one folding and 8 of them coloured, pp. [iv], xxii, 296, [6], large 8vo., orig. green vertical ribbed cloth, the backstrip lettered in gilt and with extremities bumped, the upper cover embossed with an image of a sledge in blind, good £250.00

Fiala set out from Norway in 1903 commanding the second Ziegler expedition to the North Pole (1903-5). Although it ended in failure to reach the North Pole, as intended, and with the loss of the expedition’s ship America, the expedition recorded meteorological and astrononcal observations, and perhaps, most significantly its survey work led to improvements in maps and charts. The party remained stranded for two years because of severe weather, yet all but one member survived, and were rescued by the Terra Nova.

10. (Arctic.) HARRISON (Alfred H.) In Search of a Polar Continent 1905-1907. *Arnold. 1908, FIRST EDITION, 33 plates from photographs, folding coloured map of Arctic America, small tear neatly repaired, pp. xvii, 292, 8vo., temp. red half calf, the backstrip panelled in gilt with repeated tools, green morocco label in the second compartment with gilt lettering, the upper cover with a medallion of Stonyhurst College (school prize binding), and the prize label inside the front cover, t.e.g., very good £280.00

The author spent two winters in the neighbourhood of the Mackenzie delta, surveying and mapping a portion of the Arctic coast. As well as geographical data the narrative includes interesting and valuable information on the Eskimos. He was educated at Stonyhurst College.

11. (Arctic.) Nansen (Fridtjof) ‘Farthest North’ being the Record of a Voyage of Exploration of the Ship Fram 1893-96 and of a fifteen month’s sledge journey. ... [Two Volumes]. *Archibald Constable. 1897, FIRST ENGLISH EDITION, engraved frontispieces, 136 plates, 16 in colour, numerous illustrations on the letterpress mainly taken from photographs, 4 large folding colour lithographed maps, occasional light foxing, pp. xiii, [ii], 510; xiii, 671, 8vo., orig. ribbed green cloth with minor stains, extremities rubbed, backstrip and frontcover gilt lettered direct with author and title, gilt blocked illustration on upper sides (the Fram on vol.i, dog sleigh on vol.ii), hinges cracked, rough trimmed, sound £350.00

The first edition to appear in English, this production has a larger complement of plates than the later and more common 1898 Newnes edition. Nansen's own account of his highly successful expedition to the Arctic which proved his theory that the Arctic could be traversed on revolutionary lines. Through his early whaling experience and the 1888-9 Greenland expedition, Nansen became convinced of a regular ice-drift from Alaska to Greenland. Defying accepted opinion, Nansen's audacious plan was to allow his ship to be frozen in the ice-pack, then drift in the ice across the Arctic. In a vessel of his own design, weighing 400 tons and strong enough to withstand the crushing ice, the expedition sailed from Norway in June 1893, the Fram successfully returning to Norway in August 1896. In a second element to Nansen's expedition, he and the Stoker Johansen struck out from the Fram in March 1895 with huskies and sledges across the ice to reach the pole. Within a few weeks they had reached the farthest northern latitude then attained by man (86 degrees 14') however, the deteriorating condition of his dogs forced Nansen to turn back. On his return Nansen received worldwide acclaim, gaining recognition for his efforts through honours from the Royal Geographical Society and Oxford and Cambridge universities, among other accolades.

12. (Arctic.) Peary (Robert E.) The North Pole. With an introduction by Theodore Roosevelt. *Hodder and Stoughton. 1910, FIRST ENGLISH EDITION, photogravure frontispiece with tissue guard, 3 other photogravure plates, 112 photographic illustrations on 64 plates, and colour folding map (small reinforcement at mount), light foxing to page edges and endpapers, prize bookplate to front pastedown, pp. xii, 326, 4to., orig. greenish-blue cloth, front board and backstrip lettered in gilt and bordered in a double white rule, polar bear blocked in white to backstrip and rear board, front board with gilt medallion, just a touch scuffed at extremities, very good £225.00
'My dream and goal for twenty years... It seems all so simple and commonplace.' The words of Robert Peary, who has been described by Fergus Fleming as 'undoubtedly the most driven, possibly the most successful and probably the most unpleasant man in the annals of polar exploration' (Ninety Degrees North). Whether one believes Peary made it to the Pole and back at the breakneck speeds indicated in this book, or not, the work still remains a classic in Polar literature.

13. ARIOSTO (Ludovico) Orlando Furioso. ... Revisito et ristampato, sopra le correzioni di Ieronimo Ruscelli. In Lyone: appresso Gugliel. Rouillo. 1570, woodcut device to title page and woodcut illustrations to each section, small hole to margin of O1, some light foxing, final blank stained, ink ownership inscription to title and front endpaper and note to rear binder's blank, pp. 1148, [26], 12mo., eighteenth century polished brown calf, backstrip with five raised bands, morocco label in second compartment, the rest decorated with floral and other tools, marbled endpapers, all edges red, old repairs to upper joint, spine ends chipped, a little cracking to lower joint, housed in a later mottled paper slipcase, sound (CNCE 2771; Adams A1672) £550.00

A pocket edition of Ariosto's enormously popular chivalric romance, which had been printed nearly one hundred separate times between 1540 and 1570.

14. Armstrong (John) Miscellanies; In two volumes. Printed for T. Cadell. 1770, FIRST COLLECTED EDITION, just a little faint toning, the final three gatherings of vol. ii bound at the end of vol. i, pp. vii, [1], 216; iv, 279, [1], 8vo., contemp. tan calf, backstrips with five raised bands, red morocco labels in second compartments, label lost from third, the rest with central gilt floral and leaf tools, rubbed, joints cracking (but sound), a touch of wear at corners, contemp. bookplates of Peter Du Cane, Esq., sound (ESTC T39447) £150.00

15. (Asia.) Hedin (Sven) Through Asia. [Two volumes]. Methuen. 1898, FIRST ENGLISH EDITION, 2 folding coloured maps, photogravure frontispieces and nearly 300 plates and illustrations, from photographs or drawings, 6 coloured, small ownership labels to half-titles, and a gift inscription on the half-title of vol. i, endpapers foxed, pp. xx, 663; xii, [665]-1278, 8vo., orig. dark green cloth, the backstrips lettered in gilt, upper covers with pictorial desert scene blocked in gilt, t.e.g., others uncut, cocked, labels inside front covers, good £350.00

16. Austen (Jane) Emma: a Novel. Richard Bentley. 1851, engraved frontispiece by Greatbatch after Pickering, half-title with contemporary ownership signature of Anne Macbeth, pp. [iv], 435, 8vo., orig. brown morocco grain cloth, the backstrip decorated with stylised foliage encircling the title in gilt, the sides with blind borders, yellow endpapers, bookplate of Pamela Lister, small split to the lower joint, extremities of backstrip bumped and with one or two small nicks, good (Gilion D7) £500.00

As Gilson says: ‘few of these reprints survive in libraries.’ Bentley first reprinted Emma in 1833, and the novel was reprinted several times until the 1860s.

17. Austen (Jane) Sense and Sensibility. A Novel. Richard Bentley. 1856, engraved frontispiece and additional title with vignette by Greatbatch after Pickering, half-title discarded, stain on pp. 161-2, pp. ii-xv, [i], 331, 8vo., slightly later half calf, the backstrip ruled with gilt fillets, red morocco label with gilt lettering, terracotta endpapers, sound (Gilion D7) £350.00
Sense and Sensibility, Austen’s first novel, did not appear in print between the second edition in 1813, and Bentley’s first publishing of the title in 1833. It proved so popular then that he reprinted it several times as part of his series of the novels, but re-using the frontispiece and undated additional title from the 1833 edition.

18. Austen (Jane) Sense and Sensibility; Mansfield Park; Pride and Prejudice. [Together three volumes.] Richard Bentley. 1856, engraved frontispieces, additional engraved titles with vignettes, all by Greatbatch after Pickering, half-titles discarded, pp. ii-xv, [i], 331; [ii], 424; [ii], 340, 8vo., uniformly bound in contemp. plum calf, rebacked in maroon calf, flat backstrips, ruled in gilt, plum morocco labels with gilt lettering, marbled endpapers, good (Gilson D7) £800.00

In Bentley’s post-1833 reprints of his series of Jane Austen’s novels, the date is invariably missing from the engraved frontispiece and the title of Sense and Sensibility, while all the other novels retain 1833 in this position and show the actual date of publication on the printed title. Although these three volumes represent the first, third, and fifth volumes of the series, they were issued separately, with just volume numbers on the original cloth spines to indicate that they could be assembled as a set.

Loosely inserted is an undated autograph letter donating the books, signed by Edith Brittain, possibly a relation of Vera Brittain.

19. (Balkans. 20. (Balkans.) HUTCHINSON (Frances Kinsley) Motoring in the Balkans. Along the highways of Dalmatia, Montenegro, the Herzegovina and Bosnia. Chicago: A. C. McClurg & co. 1909, FIRST EDITION, PRESENTATION COPY, EXTRA-ILLUSTRATED with 61 photographs taken by the author with all but two hand-coloured by her, these beyond the normal quota of 118 photographic images on 47 plates, pp. [xvi], 17-341, 8vo., contemp. vellum, boards with a gilt rolled border surrounding a triple gilt fillet and an elaborate gilt frame, the front frame enclosing the recipient’s initials (C. Frances Kinsley Hutchinson toured the Balkans with her family in a motorcar in 1908, and produced this lively account, illustrated with her own 'kodaked' photographs, the following year. This copy, specially bound and extra-illustrated with numerous additional photographs, almost all hand-coloured, was inscribed and presented to her husband 'with many a loving thought on this happy day', on their 29th wedding anniversary in 1910. Charles L. Hutchinson was a notable Chicago banker and philanthropist, serving as president of the Chicago Board of Trade, a founding member of the Art Institute of Chicago, and a founding trustee of the University of Chicago; the family not only travelled widely but also maintained a large estate in Wisconsin, about which Frances wrote several other books.

21. Bancroft (Edward) Experimental Researches concerning the Philosophy of Permanent Colours; and the best means of producing them, by dying, callico printing, &c. ... Vol. I [all published in this edition]. Printed for T. Cadell, Jun. and W. Davies. 1794, first edition, half-title discarded, title toned and dusty, some light toning and spotting elsewhere, pp. [iii]-xlvi, [1], 456, 8vo., recent half black sheep with marbled boards, backstrip with five raised bands between gilt fillets, red label in second compartment, fourth and sixth gilt lettered direct, patterned endpapers, edges untrimmed, a little rubbed, good (ESTC T78907) £500.00

The first edition of the dye-maker, chemist, and spy Edward Bancroft’s (1744-1821) significant book on colours and dying. The more philosophical side of his writing did not see wide acceptance by the practically-oriented printing and dying industry in the nineteenth century, but he was practically much more influential: herein he defined several technical terms for the first time, applied new Continental developments in chemistry to dying, and developed influential theories of dye attachment to fabric.

Although the title page states this is ‘Vol. I’, Bancroft’s circumstances prevented the appearance of a ‘Vol. II’ until the second edition, which was issued in two volumes some twenty years later.

22. Berkshire. HUMPHREYS (Arthur L.) East Hendred a Berkshire Parish historically treated. A Suggestion for a compete Parochial Survey of the Kingdom. Hatchards. 1923, large folding map at the end, photographre frontispiece of Hendred House, title printed in black and red, scattered small foxmarks, pp. xv, 446, thick 4to., orig. qtr. light grey buckram, red boards, backstrip with printed label, a little rubbed and darkened, the upper cover with printed label, corners bumped, untrimmed, good £130.00

23. Bertrand (M. Elie) Memoires sur la structure interieure de la terre ... Zurich: chez Heidegger. 1760, title-page printed in black and red, slightly foxed, pp. 166, 8vo., contemp. unlettered vellum, lightly soiled, very good £175.00

Bertrand’s studies included Cartesian philosophy, English natural history, and the Linnaean classification system. Although trained as a theologian and committed to a theocentric view of nature he was nevertheless an empiricist and constantly urged the expansion of the understanding of geology. His Dictionnaire Universel de Fossiles (1763) was the most widely read scientific book of his day. He published articles in the Encyclopédie, and corresponded with Voltaire. His subsequent relative anonymity may be because his work was so clearly underpinned by theology – an approach which became increasingly unfashionable in scientific circles.

28. (Birmingham.) Beale (Catherine Hutton) Memorials of the old Meeting House and Burial Ground, Birmingham. Birmingham: For the Subscribers by White and Pike. 1882, lithographed frontispiece, 3 plates, 5 plans, 4 of them folding and numerous illustrations, pp. [7], 60, 4to., orig. dark blue cloth, the backstrip vertically lettered in gilt, the sides with black borders and bevelled edges, gilt lettering to the upper cover, extremities of the backstrip rubbed, good £50.00

Blackstone (William) Commentaries on the Laws of England in Four Books. The Fourth Edition. [Three Volumes.] Oxford: Clarendon Press. 1770, 2 engraved plates, one folding, in vol. ii, each vol. with ink ownership inscription by Mr. Kynnersley to Thomas Sneyd, dated 1803 on the front free endpapers, pp. [xii], 485; [viii], 520, xix; [viii], 455, xxvi; [viii], 436, vii, [40], 4to., contemp. calf, the backstrips with five raised bands and red morocco labels with gilt lettering, very slightly rubbed, lower joint of vol. i just starting but strong, near fine (ESTC T57758; Eller 5) £3,500.00

An attractive copy of this early edition in a fine contemporary binding. ‘Until the Commentaries, the ordinary Englishman had viewed the law as a vast, unintelligible and unfriendly machine; nothing but trouble, even danger, was to be expected from contact with it. Blackstone’s great achievement was to popularize the law and the traditions which had influenced its formation’ (PMAM 212). Blackstone was an Oxford man, educated at Pembroke College and made a Fellow of All Soul’s in 1744; he then divided his time between college and university business and practice at the Bar.

The Commentaries were an immediate and lasting success and were reprinted from the first edition in quarto, into octavo, and quarto again a dozen times in as many years. They were translated into several languages and remained the standard textbook for many years. They were indispensable to the Justice of the Peace if not to his clerk, and for that reason it is unusual to find them in good, authentic condition, in a contemporary binding.

The Mr Kynnersley and Thomas Sneyd of the inscriptions in this copy were probably of the Kynnersley family who owned Loxley Park in Staffordshire and the Sneyd family of Keele Hall, Staffordshire. A branch of each at one point united into the Sneyd-Kynnersleys. The family papers of the Sneyd family of Keele is of particular significance to local historians, especially the correspondence, held by Keele University.
30. Blackstone (William) Law Tracts, in two Volumes. Oxford: At the Clarendon Press. 1762, first collected edition, 2 engraved plates in vol., one folding and one included in the pagination, 8 engraved illustrations, contemp. ownership signature of Thomas Burgh, pp. [iv], 257, [5]; [iv], cxv, [v], 135, [8], 8vo., contemp. calf, backstrips with five raised bands, red morocco labels with gilt lettering, the sides with blind borders, engraved bookplates of William Cruise, fine (ESTC T56691; Carter 176.2; Eller 238) £2,700.00

An attractive copy of the first edition of a collection of tracts which had appeared separately. Only one thousand copies appear to have been printed according to Carter’s analysis of the OUP records. At his bookseller’s request, Blackstone made corrections and additions to the tracts and allowed them to be republished. They are: ‘An essay on Collateral Consanguinity’ (Blackstone’s first legal publication), ‘Considerations on Copyholders’, ‘A treatise on the law of Descents’, and ‘The Great Charter and Charter of the Forest’. The first three of these are now very difficult to obtain in first edition.

This copy has an interesting association in that it bears the ownership marks of the legal writer William Cruise (1751-1824). As a Roman Catholic Cruise was prevented from practicing at the bar (under the statute 7 & 8 Will. III, c. 24), and he practiced instead as a licensed conveyancer. Cruise was the author of numerous works on legal subjects.

‘Lord Bolingbroke will be more known to posterity as a writer and philosopher than as a statesman.... [He] is much the best writer of the age’ (Pope).

32. Bossut (John [i.e. Charles]) A General History of Mathematics from the earliest times to the middle of the Eighteenth Century. Translated from the French. J. Johnson. 1803, first English translation, just a little faint spotting, blank corner of second leaf torn, pp. xxvi, 540, [4], 8vo., contemp. marbled calf, recently rebacked in a different style, smooth backstrip gilt-lettered direct, new endpapers, old leather a little cracked at edges, corners a touch worn, good £350.00

The first English translation of this history of mathematics by the Abbot Charles (not John) Bossut (1730-1814), who also edited the works of Pascal and taught hydrodynamics at the Louvre. The form of the history is largely biographical rather than technical, and Dauben and Scriba (Writing the History of Mathematics, 2002) call this translation the first historical account of mathematics to appear in English. The ODNB attributes the introduction and chronological table to the mathematician John Bonnycastle, and the actual translation to T.O. Churchill.

33. Boyer (Abel, Editor) Letters of Wit, Politicks and Morality. ... Also select Letters of Gallantry out of the Greek. J. Hartley, Tho. The fruits of that are born out in this interesting compilation of letters which includes by many renowned writers of international standing.

The first book on psychoanalysis by an American, Abraham Arden Brill (born in Vienna but naturalised after emigrating at age 13), who studied at NYU and Columbia before visiting Jung in Switzerland. He was the first to translate a number of Freud’s works, and dedicates this volume to him. This is the second printing of the first edition, following one of 1912.

38. [Brontë (Charlotte)] Jane Eyre: an Autobiography. By Currer Bell. ... A new edition. This is actually the seventh edition: the first was in 1847, there followed two editions in 1848, the fourth in 1850, the fifth in 1855 and the sixth in 1857. The printed covers still bear the date 1857 and the pagination is the same as the previous edition. The 1857 edition is the first in which the author’s name appears in the advertisements.

The collected Latin writings of George Bull (1634–1710), who was appointed bishop of St David's in 1705. A collection of Bull's English works would appear after his death, but the majority of his theological writing was in Latin, for the educated audience of his time. Among his works are the controversial Harmonia Apostolica and Examen Censurae, which earned him charges of heresy from some quarters but also led to the appointment of the prebend of Gloucester; they attack solaﬁdeism and argue that good works are required for justification.

43. Burns (Robert) Poetical Works ... complete. Chronologically arranged, with notes, glossaries and index by W. Scott Douglas. Edinburgh edition. [Three Volumes.] James Thin. 1893, 3 engraved frontispieces, pp. xvi, 283; x, 267; xii, 271, sm. 8vo., contemp. polished half calf, marbled boards, spines with five raised bands, fully panelled in gilt, red morocco title labels with gilt lettering in the second compartments, one label slightly rubbed, marbled and gilt endpapers, t.e.g. fine

44.  [Burton (Robert) i.e. Nathaniel Crouch.] Admirable Curiosities, Rarities, & Wonders in England, Scotland, and Ireland. Printed by Tho. Snowden for Nath. Crouch. 1682, first edition, frontispiece and five other plates, browned (mostly lightly), a few page edges slightly chipped, old library stamp to verso of title, pp. [iv], 232, [4], 12mo., modern Cambridge-style panelled calf antique, backstrip with five raised bands, red morocco label in second compartment, backstrip sunned, good (ESTC R21061) £850.00

Nathaniel Crouch was a bookseller and writer whose greatest success came from small volumes like this one, which condensed history and legend into simplified versions suitable for popular consumption. He wrote these under the pseudonym R.B. (for Robert Burton, after the author of the Anatomy of Melancholy), producing four general works between 1681 and 1685 (of which this is the third) and a number of more specific works in the following years. Of Crouch’s works, John Dunton wrote ‘He has melted down the best of our English Histories into Twelve-Penny-Books, which are fill’d with Wonders, rarities and Curiosities’ (quot. in ODNB).

There were frequent reprints (at least half a dozen of this volume in the first half of the 18th century), and the 1737 printing refers to itself as the tenth edition. Of this, the first edition, ESTC records five copies in the UK and six in the United States.

45.  (Byzantine Empire.) Pachymeres (George) Michael Palaeologus, sive Historia Rerum a Michaelae Palaeologo; Andronicus Palaeologus, sive Historia Rerum ab Andronico Seniore. ... Interpretate Petro Possino e Soc. Jesu. [2 volumes.] Venice: Ex Typographia Bartholomaei Javariae. 1729, titles with engraved vignettes, text in facing columns of Latin and Greek, a few tiny spots but generally very fresh and amply margined, pp. [iv], 295, 195, [13]; [iv], 377, [3], 134, [26], folio, half calf with contemp. marbled boards and modern chocolate calf spine and corners, backstrips with six raised bands between blind fillets, red morocco labels in second compartments, vol. number direct in gilt in third, edges red, old paper a bit rubbed with some small repairs, hinges neatly relined, very good £750.00

The major work of the Byzantine historian George Pachymeres (1242-1310), a history of the first two members of the final Byzantine dynasty, Michael VIII Palaiologos and his son Andronikos II Palaiologos. Pachymeres was 17 when Michael VIII took power, and provides a valuable contemporary account of a tumultuous time: Michael VIII recaptured Constantinople in 1261, reinstated Byzantine customs, rebuilt the navy, united the Orthodox and Catholic churches, reduced Jewish persecution, and established the longest-lasting dynasty in Byzantine history; Andronikos dismantled the navy, ended the church unification, smoothed relations with Europe, and would go on to fight a civil war with his grandson (though this was after Pachymeres’ death and thus outside the scope of his history).

These volumes were published as part of the massive Corpus Scriptorum Historiae Byzantinae, and come from the Venetian reprint of 1729-1733. The Corpus was first printed in Paris in 23 volumes between 1645 and 1702, with contributions from significant scholars including Du Cange and a number of Jesuits; this text was edited by Pierre Poussines (1609-1686). The whole Corpus was reprinted again in Germany the early nineteenth century, filling some 50 octavo volumes.

46.  (Cambridge.) Farren (Robert) Cambridge and its Neighbourhood. Cambridge: Macmillan & Co. 1881, 55 etched leaves, including title and 25 small plate titles, etched head-piece to first page of letterpress, all with tissue-guards, pp. 6, folio, orig. blue cloth, front board blocked in gilt with title and vignette of Hobson’s Conduit, a little scuffed at corners, a few small light marks, edges untrimmed, very good £200.00

‘Mr Farren’s charming etchings might well be published without any letterpress whatever’ (Preface), but to provide some historical background for the illustrations of Cambridge scenes and landmarks John Willis Clark contributes a brief printed introduction.
47. (Canada.) [Warburton (George Drought)] The Conquest of Canada. By the Author of ‘Hochelaga’. In Two volumes. Richard Bentley. 1849, first edition, engraved frontispiece portraits slightly foxed, half-titles discarded, both volumes inscribed on the endpapers as leaving presents from Eton, errata-slip, pp. xxxi, 432; 508, 8vo., slightly later damson polished calf, the backstrips panelled in gilt and with tan morocco labels lettered in gilt, the sides with double gilt fillets, marbled edges, good (Sabin 101274) £200.00

Warburton ‘provided a good narrative history and showed an awareness that the basic difference between the British and French colonial systems was an important factor in the struggle for control of the continent’. The Conquest of Canada passed through several editions and was widely read for its mixture of careful research, exotic descriptions, and lively style (ODNB).

48. Carroll (Lewis) Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland. With forty-two Illustrations by John Tenniel. Macmillan. 1866, second (first published) edition, first issue, frontispiece (with tissue guard) and illustrations on the letterpress, half-title present, one or two closed tears to the blank margins, three leaves with repaired tears to the text, N4 shorter and possibly from another copy, the last leaf mounted on a guard, a little abrasion to two leaves, minor marks, pp. [x], 192, 8vo., [with]
—. Through the Looking-Glass and what Alice found there. Macmillan. 1872, first edition, frontispiece (with tissue guard), illustrations, pp. [xii], 224, bound as a set in full crushed red morocco, the backstrips ruled and panelled in gilt with various gilt ‘Alice’ tools, the sides with the Mad Hatter (Wonderland) and Queen of Hearts in gilt, a.e.g., morocco doublures, by Bayntun-Rivière with their stamp, marbled endpapers, slipcase, good (PMM 354; Williams et al.[Crutch] 46 and 67) £4,200.00

As is well-known, the reproduction of the illustrations in the first printing of Alice failed to find favour with Tenniel. Dodgson agreed and cancelled the publication of the two thousand copies printed. The suggestion is that only the 50 presentation copies for Dodgson’s use, and possibly a further 20 (‘Went [on 15th July 1865] to Macmillan’s, and wrote in twenty more copies of Alice to go as presents to various friends’) left the office of the publishers. On the assumption that only two thousand were printed ‘Dodgson seems to have regained all but 10 copies, having sent out 46 and retained two himself. He sent thirty-four to hospitals, where all but one copy perished.’ (Williams p. 31; see also W. Weaver, ‘The First Editions of Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland: A Census’ in Papers of the
This first published edition was reset by Clay the printer from a copy of the suppressed ‘edition’. There is some uncertainty as to whether two or four thousand were published. An inverted ‘S’ in the last line of the ‘Contents’, which is later corrected, is taken to be evidence of first issue. The precise date of publication is unknown. Dodgson received the first copy of the ‘new impression’ on 9th November 1865; the British Museum Library received their copyright copy on the 14th; the first review trace was in the _The Reader_ on the 18th. (See William H. Bond, ‘The Publication of Alice’s Adventures in Wonderland.’ _Harvard Library Bulletin_, Vol.X, no.3, 1956.)

49. Carroll (Lewis) _Aventures d’Alice au pays des merveilles_. 50. Carroll (Lewis) _The Game of Logic_. Macmillan. 1877, _FIRST PUBLISHED EDITION, PRESENTATION COPY_, inscribed by the author on the half-title in his customary violet ink, ‘W. H. Laverty from the Author Mar./87’, including the original printed envelope for the game (with the title and imprint), the original ‘board’ to play, on buff card (the design of which is repeated on the frontispiece) the nine original counters, four pink and five grey, and a mourning card also addressed to Laverty (in another hand), pp. xii, 96, 8vo., original publishers’ red cloth, the backstrip lettered vertically in gilt, the upper cover title in gilt, the backstrip lightly soiled, lower edges touched by damp, red crushed morocco solander case, marbled lining, very good

(Williams, Madan & Green 196)

£1,950.00

The presentee, Wallace Hay Laverty (1847-1928), was a Fellow and mathematical Lecturer at Queen’s, Oxford. Carroll was lecturer at Christ Church, and it is obvious the two knew each other well. Laverty was author and editor of many mathematical works and involved in the London Mathematical Society. Not only does he appear in Carroll’s diaries, but the Berol Collection contains three letters to Laverty, two on logic (dated April 2nd 1878 and April 19th 1882) and one other (dated March 28th 1878).

51. Carroll (Lewis) _The Hunting of the Snark. an Agony, in Eight Fits._ Macmillan and Co. 1876, _FIRST EDITION_, frontispiece with tissue guard, engravings in the text, half-title present, a little minor spotting, pp. xiv, 84, [2], 8vo., deep red morocco, backstrip panelled in gilt, gilt lettered direct in second and third compartments, a.e.g., morocco doublures, by Bayntun–Rivière with their stamp, original buff cloth front cover bound in at end, marbled endpapers, fine

(Williams, Madan, Green 115)

£350.00
inscribed by Carroll to Miss Cooper

53. Carroll (Lewis) The Nursery “Alice”. Containing twenty coloured enlargements from Tenniel’s illustrations [...] The cover designed and coloured by E. Gertrude Thomson. Macmillan and Co. 1890, second (first published) edition, presentation copy, 20 colour illustrations, author’s presentation inscription (in characteristic purple ink) to half-title, a little light finger-soiling in places, pp. [xii], 56, [8], 4to., orig. cloth-backed pictorial paper boards, somewhat scratched and soiled, corners worn, good (Williams et al. [Crutch] 216) £5,000.00

As with the original Alice in Wonderland, the first set of sheets Macmillan printed of this adapted edition for children were rejected, and a number of them later found their way to America with a new title page. After an adjustment of the colouring and a second print run, which Carroll approved (calling the sheets ‘a great success’), it was published around Easter 1890, with the usual 100 presentation copies being inscribed on March 25th.

This presentation copy is inscribed to ‘Miss Cooper’, most likely Alice J. Cooper, then the headmistress of Edgbaston High School for Girls, with whom Carroll had been collaborating on a edited version of Shakespeare for schoolgirls. Carroll thought Bowdler too lenient: ‘looking through [Bowdler’s edition], I am filled with a deep sense of wonder, considering what he has left in, that he should have cut anything out!’ (Sylvie & Bruno, preface p. xvi). Despite corresponding on the subject with Miss Cooper from 1883 and engaging her help in 1885, he seems not to have gone through more than a few plays and by 1894 had ceased expecting to finish.

54. Carroll (Lewis) Phantasmagoria. Macmillan and Co. 1869, first edition, second issue, half-title present, pp. viii, 202, [2], 8vo., crushed red morocco, backstrip ruled and panelled in gilt, gilt lettered direct in second and third compartments, a.e.g., morocco doublures, by Bayntun-Rivière with their stamp, marbled endpapers, fine (Williams et al. [Crutch] 69) £450.00

The second issue, mentioning Alice on the title page (and otherwise identical to the first), of these poems, the first half amusing and the second half serious, most previously printed in magazines.

55. Carroll (Lewis) Rhyme? And Reason? With sixty-five illustrations by Arthur B. Frost and nine by Henry Holiday. Macmillan and Co. 1883, first edition, frontispiece with tissue guard, engraved illustrations in text, half-title present, a little minor foxing in places, pp. xii, 214, [2], 8vo., crushed red morocco, backstrip ruled and panelled in gilt, gilt lettered direct in second and third compartments, a.e.g., morocco doublures, by Bayntun-Rivière with their stamp, marbled endpapers, fine (Williams et al. [Crutch] 160) £600.00

The first edition of this collection, containing the first (nonsense) part of Phantasmagoria, as well as ‘The Hunting of the Snark’; only a few pieces of writing are previously unpublished, but the accompanying illustrations by Frost are entirely new.

56. Carroll (Lewis) Sylvie and Bruno. Macmillan and Co. 1889, first edition, frontispiece with tissue guard, half-titles present, engravings in the text, pp. xxiv, 400, [4], 8vo., [with:] —. Sylvie and Bruno Concluded. Macmillan and Co. 1893, first edition, frontispiece (with tissue guard), illustrations, pp. xxxii, 424, [8], 8vo., matchingy bound in crushed red morocco, backstrip ruled and panelled in gilt, gilt lettered direct in second and third compartments, a.e.g., morocco doublures, by Bayntun-Rivière with their stamp, marbled endpapers, fine (Williams et al. [Crutch] 217, 250) £250.00

Carroll’s last major work, a long fairytale in two parts with illustrations by Harry Furniss.

57. Carroll (Lewis) Three Sunsets and other poems. With twelve fairy-fancies by E. Gertrude Thomson. Macmillan and Co. 1898, first edition, frontispiece and 11 other illustrations of fairies included in pagination, one or two foxtspots to title, pp. [xii], 68, [4], 4to., orig. green cloth, boards blocked in gilt, the front with title and vignette of a fairy, the rear with a setting sun, the cloth somewhat faded (especially to spine), a touch of wear to tail of backstrip, good (Williams et al. [Crutch] 286) £250.00

The poems are mostly reprinted from Phantasmagoria, though two, and all of the illustrations, are new. Collingwood writes of the illustrations: ‘though they are entirely unconnected with the text, they are so thoroughly in accordance with the author’s delicate refinement, and so beautiful in themselves, that they do not strike one as inappropriate.’

58. Carroll (Lewis) Through the Looking Glass. And what Alice found there. Macmillan and Co. 1872, first edition, first issue with ‘wade’ on p. 21, frontispiece with tissue-guard, the half-title removed, a few light spots, pp. [x], 224, [2], 8vo., orig. red cloth, boards and backstrip blocked in gilt, e.g., binder’s ticket to rear pastedown, hinges cracked and reinforced with archival tape, slightly shaken, cloth a little marked, bumped and scuffed at extremities, sound (Williams et al. [Crutch] 67) £500.00

A largely unsophisticated copy of the first edition of Through the Looking Glass, in the original cloth. This copy has had the half-title removed at some stage, and the cracked hinges have had a single line of archival tape applied, but copies of the Alice books in their original cloth bindings, not rebacked, recased, or rebound, are scarce.

59. Caucasus.) Golovin (Ivan [Gavrilovich]) The Caucasus. Trübner and Co. 1854, first edition, inscribed by the author, handcoloured engraved regional map as frontispiece, small 12-page Trübner catalogue bound in rear, pp. vi, 5-191, [1], 8vo., orig. wave grain navy blue cloth, orig. gilt decorated and lettered backstrip laid down, sides ornately blind panelled with centrally-placed vase vignette in gilt on front board (in blind on lower board), corner tips lightly rubbed, yellow chalked endpapers, inscribed in presentation “A. B. Richards from Ivan Golovin”, very good £450.00

In the early 1850s Turkey and Russia were engaged in fierce conflict over this remote area, as a result Russia directed ‘once more the attention of Western Europe to the Caucasus, and to the nations which inhabit the country around that mountain range.’ So wrote the staff of The Eclectic Review who commented that this now scarce volume ‘contains valuable information about the native inhabitants of the Russian dominions between the Euxine and the Caspian, and many important facts on Shamyl and the wars of the mountaineers with Russia. As he is a foreigner, we make, with pleasure, some allowance for the abruptness of his style.’ As well as sections on Ossetia, Dagestan, Mounts Elbrus and Ararat, and Armenia, Golovin discusses at length the military situation in the region which developed into a war of attrition that was to last some 47 years. Only in May 1864, after the Muslim leader Imam Shamil defected to central Russia, did hostilities formally cease. Conflict in the region continues to this day.

60. Ceylon map.) Tirion (Isaac) Nvoua Carta dell’ Isola Ceilon fatta in Amsterdam per Isaac Tirion. Amsterdam: [Tirion] [c. 1734], engraved map, showing mountains and forests, 293 x 374mm., unframed, good £120.00

Tirion (1705-69) was a prolific Amsterdam based publisher during the mid-18th century. His output includes a number of atlases with maps usually based on those of G. Delisle, which were finely engraved, and he also produced extensive volumes of Dutch town plans.

61. Chaloner (Thomas) De rep. Anglorum instauranda libri decem [...] Excudebat Thomas Vautrollerius typographus. 1579, first edition, woodcut portrait on verso of title leaf, woodcut device on title-page, wood-engraved strapwork head-pieces, early owner’s name on title-page
Deciphering the inscription at the head of the title-page is made difficult because it has been cropped, probably by the eighteenth century binder. It appears to be ‘Dno. Gulielm. Levesono, [indecipherable] Jno Charles [indecipherable]’; and another cut off at the fore-edge reads ‘Mori malim, Guliel. Ma ...’ (presumably Malin - see below).

Chaloner is particularly known for his translation of Erasmus’s ‘Moriae Encomium,’ and it is something of a puzzle that his ‘De republica Anglorum,’ his chief original work, is not better known. A long didactic poem of some eight thousand Latin hexameters, it was published posthumously and written while Chaloner was serving as ambassador to Spain. The volume includes other shorter poems and epigrams. Latin poetry of the period produced works on the continent of considerable value – Petrarch, Vida, Fracastorius et al. In England both the amount and quality was inferior. While there is a line of Latin versifiers from More to Cowley, the rule in England was for short poems or isolated extracts; Chaloner’s De rep. Anglorum instauranda stands out as a poem of ambitious scope. A recent scholar has described it as ‘a landmark in English humanism’ full of ‘political precepts and examples.’

Chaloner was a friend of scholars such as Cheke, Haddon, and Ascham. Many thought that on grounds of ability and connections he was destined for high office but he died young. Nevertheless he served as a Member of Parliament, clerk of the Privy Council, and for a few months in 1553 until the accession of Mary as ambassador to France.

Sir William Cecil, Lord Burghley, a friend of Chaloner from his early days at court, sponsored the work, placing the task of editing the poems in the hands of William Malin. The editor added a verse argument to each book of the poem. The dedication to Lord Burghley was written by Chaloner’s only son, also Thomas.

He was hung at the tender age of twenty-four. A prominent and colourful local figure, he was renowned for his wit and charm, and became known as 'Sixteen String Jack' for the 16 coloured strings he wore on the knees of his silk breeches among other eccentric costumes.

'A compilation from the accounts furnished by the missionaries' (Lowndes). Abbot Grosier successfully completed his 12-volume history of China in 1785. In 1786, he added a supplement (intended as the thirteenth volume) to the work: Description générale de la Chine..., published in Paris in 4to. This early travel account of a largely unknown country was considered a triumph, with five editions appearing in England, France, and Germany by 1820. John Lust considers the work 'very rich in the observation and detail amassed by the Jesuits. A picture of an attractive country before semi-colonization set in.'

This set was once in the ownership of Mr Paul·Ourry Treby (1786-1862) of Goodamor and Plympton House, Devon. Treby was a well-known and deeply respected sportsman, and one of the four rangers of Dartmoor.

£250.00

The first printing of this compilation of church articles by Anthony Sparrow (1612-1685), later bishop of Norwich, which was reprinted several times in the 17th century. The collection was 'constructed broadly to evince that the reform of the church had been, and rightly ought to be “orderly and synodical”' (ODNB). Reproductions of the earlier title pages appear before all of the sections.
65. Cicero (Marcus Tullius) Opera. Ex Petri Victorii codicibus maxima ex parte descripta, viri Docti et in recensendios authoris huius scriptis cauti & perilisentis ... Eiusdem Victorii explicationes suarum in Ciceronem castigationum. [5 parts in 2 volumes]. Paris: ex officina Roberti Stephani. 1538/39, 6 titles with large woodcut printer’s devices, woodcut initials, pages hand-ruled in red, a little light soiling, general title slightly creased, one or two edges dampstained, pp. [xvi], 288, 640, [6]; 416, 450, [2], 158, [100], folio, modern speckled morocco, backstrips with six gilt-rolled raised bands, red morocco labels in second and third compartments, the rest panelled with central floral lozenges and corner stamps, very good (Renouard p. 48; Adams C1640; Ebert 4255; Schweiger II 103; Moss I 291) £3,000.00

The Estienne folio edition of the works of Cicero, and ‘an elegantly executed edition’ (Moss). The text mostly follows the edition of Vettori, which was printed in Venice in 1534 and which soon earned a reputation as the best, textually speaking; Dibdin criticises the following Estienne edition (1543) for reverting to readings of the editio princeps, ‘for which no just reason is assigned’. The first four parts are Cicero’s works, and the last contains Vettori’s commentary: Rhetorica (Pt. 1), Orationes (Pt. 2), Epistolae (Pt. 3), Philosophica (Pt. 4) and Explications.

66. Clarendon (Edward Hyde, 1st Earl of) The History of the Rebellion and Civil Wars in England, begun in the Year 1641. With the precedent Passages, and Actions, that contributed thereunto, and the happy End, and Conclusion thereof by the King’s blessed Restoration, and Return upon the 29th of May, in the Year 1660. [3 Vols.] Oxford: at the Theater. 1702-04, FIRST EDITION, 3 engraved portrait frontispieces, engraved vignettes on titles, a little faint toning in places, one spot of marginal worming at beginning of vol. 2, pp. [iv], xxiii, 557; [xvi], 581; [xxiv], 603, [xxii] (index), folio, contemp. sprinkled calf, backstrips with six raised bands, slightly later red morocco labels in second compartments and vol. numbers gilt lettered direct in third, the rest with gilt central lozenges and cornerpieces, gilt rubbed, some cracking to hinges and splitting to joint leather (but boards firmly held) with loss to endcaps, sound (Lowndes 467; Davies 305; ESTC N9847, N9850, T147811) £1,200.00

Described by Lowndes as ‘one of the noblest historical works of the English nation.’

‘The first edition was printed, not from the originals, but from a transcript of them made under Clarendon’s supervision by his secretary, William Shaw. This was copied for the printers under the supervision of the Earl of Rochester, who received some assistance in editing it from Dr. Aldrich, dean of Christ Church, and Sprat, Bishop of Rochester. The editor, in accordance with the discretion given them by Clarendon’s will, softened and altered a few expressions, but made no material changes in the text’ (DNB).

67. Claudianus (Claudius) Opera quam diligentissime castigata, quorum indicem in sequenti pagina reperies. Venice: in aedibus Aldi et Andree Asulani Soceri. [Colophon: Mense Martio, 1523], large woodcut printer’s device on the title and last leaf (Aldine anchor) ff. 176, 8vo., early vellum, the spine lettered in ink vertically, remnants of ties, a little soiled, upper edges rubbed, very good (Renouard 96; Adams C2073; Ebert 4745; Moss I, 375; CNCE 12668; Dibdin I 468) £1,600.00

An unspoilt copy of this beautifully-printed edition of Claudian, notable for its new corrections to the text, edited by Asulanus, and for being the first and only Aldine edition. ‘In fine condition, it is of rare occurrence’ (Dibdin). The editor asserts that two poems in this edition are printed for the first time from an ancient manuscript, though it seems he must have been unaware of a 1510 Vienna edition by Camertes (the first edition to consult several ancient manuscripts) which included those very poems. Nevertheless this is only the second critical edition of any part of Claudian and an early edition overall, being preceded only by the very scarce Camertes and several incunabula.

A handsomely bound collection of four titles, including a first edition of Coleridge’s Zapolya. There has been much analysis of the variants of Byron’s Manfred. This copy tallies with Wise’s second issue, with no quotation on the title and the imprint on the verso of the half-title.

‘The miscellaneous receipts ... have been drawn from a great variety of sources, and all of them selected with such circumspection, in point of utility and authority, as to warrant the assertion, that a similar body of useful directions ... has never yet been presented to the public’ (Preface).

This popular work of domestic science was repnted circa 1860.
71. Cookery. RAFFALD (Elizabeth) The Experienced Housekeeper, for the use and ease of ladies, housekeepers, cooks &c. written purely from practice: dedicated to the Hon. 72. Cornwall. THOMAS (Richard) Report on a Survey of the Mining District of Cornwall, from Chasewater to Camborne. *Printed for John Cary. 1819, FIRST EDITION, 2 folding hand-coloured aquatint cross-sections, the geological view in the second state dated 1824, advertisement leaf at the end featuring Smith’s ‘Geological Map’, a touch of spotting and dustsoiling, small library blindstamp to base of title, the folding cross-sections mounted and with a few neat repairs (in the second map occasionally just touching image), pp. 77, [3], 4to., modern navy-blue half long-grained morocco, marbled boards, backstrip with two gilt-hatched raised bands, central long compartment gilt-lettered direct, the others with a small central circular tool, good £1,200.00

The civil engineer Richard Thomas (1779-1858) produced this report in 1819, along with the included cross-section map, which was very popular and saw several editions on its own (this example being from the second impression). The first map locates the mines between Chasewater and Camborne and gives their depths, while the second shows the cross-courses and inclinations of the lodes. Cornwall is the most important metal mining county in the UK, and has the longest history of continuous production; this report and its maps are an invaluable record of its state in the early nineteenth century, an important time in the development of scientific geology.
73. Corinca. Benson (Robert) Sketches of Corsica; or, a journal written during a visit to that island, in 1823. With an outline of its history, and specimens of the language and poetry of the people. Benson went as one of the commissioners to carry into effect the bequests of the Corsican patriot General Paoli. Lowndes comments: ‘This interesting work is spoken of with much approbation by Sir Walter Scott in his life of Napoleon.’

74. Crete. Mosso (Angelo) The Palaces of Crete and their Builders. Fisher Unwin. 1907, FIRST EDITION, 2 double-page plans of the Palace of Knossos and numerous photographic illustrations, many full-page, pp. 348, 8vo., orig. dark blue cloth, gilt lettering to the backstrip, front cover also lettered in gilt and with inset panel showing a part of a palace in gilt, extremities a little knocked, very good

Robinson. 1789, FIRST EDITION, half-title, engraved folding frontispiece map (small handling tears expertly repaired), 6 engraved plates (some folding), pp.vi, 328, 4to., mid-twentieth century quarter tan calf, backstrip divided into six compartments by raised bands between gilt rules, gilt lettered leather label in second, marbled sides with vellum corner tips, cream endpapers, red speckled edges, ink ms. notes on blank preceding half-title, very good (ESTC T134670; Blackmer 424; Blackmer Sale 527; Brunet II, 411; Ebert 5417; Cox I, p. 197; Robinson Wayward Women, p. 87)

Craven had separated from her husband and travelled extensively on the Continent. Her journey was undertaken alone and is recounted in the present work in the form of letters to the Margrave of Brandenburg, to whom she dedicates the work and was eventually married. Lady Craven is said to have been the first woman that descended into the grotto of Antiparos. ‘She has fear, been “infinimente” indiscreet, but what is that to you or me?’ said Horace Walpole, a close friend. She was also the author of several dramas produced at Drury Lane and Covent Garden theaters (Cox).

78. Da Vinci (Leonardo) A Treatise on Painting ... translated from the original Italian, and adorn’d with a Number of Cuts. To which is prefix’d the Author’s Life; done from the last Edition of the French. For J. Senex. 1721, first edition in English, engraved frontispiece portrait and 35 engraved plates, 4 folding, including a variety of diagrams to aid drawing and perspective, views and line drawings of the human form, title printed in red and black, pp. [xvi], 189, [19], 8vo., attractively bound in panelled calf antique, Cambridge style, the backstrip panelled and infilled in gilt, red morocco label with gilt lettering, line (estc T174885) £2,400.00

Leonardo’s Trattato della Pittura was first published in Paris by Raphael Dufresne in 1651. It is a systematic attempt to define and understand the laws of painting, and one of the earliest and most influential to treat painting as a science. As such it is a landmark in the history of art.

The original manuscript draft of the work has been lost, though a great number of notes for it are scattered through the various extant volumes of Da Vinci’s manuscripts notebooks and journals. It includes chapters providing practical direction and criticism on all branches of art, and is a major source for Leonardo’s works on such topics as perspective, colour, light and shadow, as well as on plant physiology and human anatomical studies.

The English translation has been attributed to John Senex.

79. [Defoe (Daniel)] A New Voyage Round the World, by a Course never sailed before. Being a voyage undertaken by some merchants, who afterwards proposed the setting up an East-India Company in Flanders. Printed for A. Bettesworth. 1725 [but Nov. 1724], first edition, frontispiece map and two plates (of three, with the third supplied in poorish facsimile), some light spotting and dustsoiling, pp. [ii], 208, 205, [1], 8vo., contemp. Cambridge-style panelled calf, rebacketed with old backstrip laid down, backstrip with five raised bands, orange morocco label in second compartment, the rest plain, some old chips and small repairs, unnamed armorial bookplate to front pastedown, sound (estc T70641; Moore 469; Sabin 19291) £450.00

The first edition of Defoe’s last novel, the account of a supposed voyage around the world travelling east, a route similar to that of Captain Cook some 50 years later.

80. (Denmark.) Laing (Samuel) Observations on the social and political State of Denmark, and the Duchies of Sleswick and Holstein in 1851. Longman, Brown, Green and Longmans. 1852, ink presentation inscription on the front free endpaper, endpapers spotted, pp. xvi, 446, 8vo., contemp. polished calf, the backstrip elaborately panelled in gilt, with black morocco label with gilt lettering and slightly faded, the sides with double gilt fillet borders, marbled edges, very good £180.00

‘Laing’s work commands interest for its views of Scandinavian society in general, and in particular of peasant proprietorship and its relation to population growth and to the distribution and increase of wealth’ (ODNB). His widely read accounts of his journeys were less travel books than works of political economy and attracted notices comparing him to Arthur Young and von Humboldt.

81. [Desfontaines (Pierre Francois Guyot)] The Travels of Mr. John Gulliver, Son to Capt. Lemuel Gulliver. Translated from the French by J. Lockman. [Two volumes.] *For Sam Harding. 1731, engraved frontispiece portrait after Hogarth, ownership signatures of John Arden dated 1817 on the endpapers, pp. [vi], iv, 10, vi, 212; [ii], iv, 198, [12], 12mo., contemp. panelled calf, skillfully rebacked preserving the original backstrips, divided with gilt fillets, red and black morocco labels (restored), bookplates of the Rt Hon.ble Charlotte Viscountess Hone, good (Teerink 1238) £500.00

The first edition of this piece of Gulliveriana, in imitation of Swift, was published in French, Paris, 1730. It proved to be the most popular of the genre.

82. Dickens (Charles) The Life and Adventures of Nicholas Nickleby. With illustrations by Phiz. *Chapman and Hall. 1839, FIRST EDITION, bound from the parts, half-title discarded, steel engraved portrait frontispiece (in the first state) with tissue guard, and 39 etched plates (the first four in second state without the imprint), later parts not from the earliest issue (errors on p. 123 and p. 160 corrected), faint toning and one or two spots, but generally a very clean copy with the plates unusually free from foxing, a short closed & reinforced tear to one plate (facing p. 332), pp. [iii]-xvi, 624, 8vo., early twentieth-century half pebble-grain maroon morocco with marbled boards, binder’s stamps of Edmonston & Douglas and Henderson & Bisset, backstrip with five raised bands between a thick and thin double gilt fillet, second compartment gilt-lettered direct, marbled edges and endpapers, backstrip lightly sunned, a touch rubbed, a Marquess’s armorial bookplate, good (Eckel pp. 64-66; Gimbel A40; Sadleir 695; Smith I 5; Wolff 1806) £700.00

Smith specifies that the parts always had the first issue of the frontispiece (containing the imprint, as here) and that the first four plates will vary on that point. The errors on p. 123 and p. 160 (‘latter’ for ‘letter’ and ‘visiter’ for ‘sister’) are sometimes cited as marking the parts issue off from the book-form issue, but Smith records that they mark only the ‘early issues’ of the parts. They have been corrected here, but all other signs point to this being bound from parts, though not the earliest issues thereof. The plates in Dickens first editions are often rather foxed but in this copy have only suffered some slight toning.

83. Dickens (Charles) The Posthumous Papers of the Pickwick Club. *Chapman and Hall, 193, Piccadilly. [n.d.], FIRST BOOK-FORM EDITION, LATER ISSUE, title-page undated but plates without imprint, 43 etched plates including frontispiece and vignette title (these two lightly foxed), one gathering partly sprung, some minor spotting elsewhere, pp. xiv, [ii], 609, 8vo., orig. green cloth, boards blind-stamped with a three-line border enclosing a chain design, backstrip gilt-lettered inside blind rectangular panels, backstrip faded and a little creased, bumped at extremities, cloth lightly mottled and rubbed, short splits at joints, sound (Smith 3 note 1) £300.00

Smith notes that ‘Chapman and Hall continued to publish issues of the first edition of Pickwick ... including a rather late one’, and this copy agrees in most particulars with the late issue he describes: the title pages are undated but have the Piccadilly imprint, while the plates are re-etched without page locations but also without the imprint which was added after the first issues. Unlike Smith’s description, this copy has errata on p. [xvi]. The blind decoration of the original cloth binding on this copy matches the original cloth binding of book-form copies of Dombey and Son. This suggests that this copy may have been issued around the time of Dombey’s publication in 1848, just over a decade after the initial issues but well before the new ‘corrected’ editions began appearing in the 1860s.
84. Dickens (Charles) [Works]. [Ten volumes]. [Including Our Mutual Friend, Bleak House, Little Dorrit, Martin Chuzzlewit, Sketches By Boz, Nicholas Nickleby, Pickwick Papers, Oliver Twist, David Copperfield and Barnaby Rudge.] Chapman and Hall. 1865 and later, first book-form edition of Our Mutual Friend, additional lithographed titles, frontispieces and 38 plates by Marcus Stone, (the other vols. with plates by H. K. Browne), pp. ix, 309, [2], [etc.], 8vo., uniformly bound as a set in later full dark green calf, the backstrips panelled in gilt with gilt fillets, rope tool borders, cornerpieces and central lozenges, red and brown morocco labels with gilt lettering, the sides with double gilt fillet borders, marbled edges and endpapers, bookplates of Colin and Maud Laing, near fine

£800.00

85. Dolben (J.) A Sermon preached before the King, Aug. 14. 1666. Being the Day of Thanksgiving for the late Victory at Sea. For Timothy Garthwait. 1666, engraved title vignette of a sailing galleon, title-page a little browned, pp. XXXIII, sm.4to., stitched in later grey wrappers, slightly creased, good (Wing D1833; ESTC R15031)

£300.00

Dolben, who became Archbishop of York, was immortalized in the famous group portrait of Alstreame, Dolben, and Fell by Sir Peter Lely, painted at the time of the Restoration and now in the possession of Christ Church, Oxford. He was a student there in 1640, had a distinguished military career, though his youthful royalism had resulted in serious injury, and returned to Oxford after the Civil War. Dolben began his ministry in the context of proscribed prayer book services, held in the house of Dr Thomas Willis opposite Merton College, in collaboration with Richard Alstreame and John Fell, who was Willis’s brother-in-law. These services attracted wide support from Church of England loyalists at the time. Only three of his published Sermons survive, though they certainly possess an admirable clarity and directness along with an underlying note of passion, which could have had a powerful effect on the hearers, even at the court of Charles II.

86. Drummond (William) The Oedipus Judaicus. A. J. Valpy. 1811, 16 engraved astological plates by T. Baxter, ink ownership signature on the title and inscription on endpaper, pp. [viii], lxxxii, 384, 8vo., contemp. diced russia, the backstrip with infilled gilt panels, five raised bands, and gilt lettering, the sides with single gilt fillet outer borders and inner borders of repeated tools, a.e.g., fine

£375.00

After his Academical Questions of 1805, Sir William Drummond, of Logiealmond (1770–1828) was threatened with prosecution for his religious speculations, but ‘in 1811 he printed for private circulation his Oedipus Judaicus, in which he attempted to prove that the Old Testament was an extended astrological allegory’ (ODNB). It was reprinted in the 1980s by the Research into Lost Knowledge Organisation.

‘To think of shadows is a serious thing’

Le Dessinateur au Cabinet à l’Armée. [Second edition.] Paris: chez Charles-Antoine Jombert. 1760, 18 folding engraved plates, half-title, pp. xvi, 92, [2], iii, [1], 95-168, [4], 8vo., contemp. French mottled calf; the smooth backstrip divided with triple gilt fillets, each panel with gilt fleurons, etc., red morocco label with gilt lettering, the upper joint just starting at the head, but still strong, marbled endpapers, red edges, good (Berlin Katalog 4737) £450.00

Dupain de Montesson (c.1720 -1790), was a geometer and military tactician, teacher of the Duc de Berry, and the author of various works on military architecture, perspective, and mathematics. This popular manual on shadows for the use of artists and draughtsmen was first published in 1750, and has a second section dealing with military draughtsmanship, including four engraved plates on the subject showing fortifications.

Davenport on the front free endpaper and pastedown, pp. xiv, [ii], 324, small 4to., contemp. red morocco, the backstrip panelled and ruled in gilt with five raised bands and gilt lettering, the upper cover with double gilt fillet borders and an elegant interwoven gilt strapwork design, decorated with fleur-de-lys and gilt cornerpieces, enclosing ‘Science and Art Department Queens Prize for Art’ in gilt at the centre, the lower cover to the same design in blind, a.e.g., marbled endpapers, bookplate repeating the information on the front cover dated 1871, slightly rubbed, good £250.00

89. Dyche (Thomas) A new general English Dictionary; peculiarly calculated for the Use and Improvement of such as are unacquaintied with learned Languages. ... Together with a Supplement of the Proper Names of the most noted Kingdoms, Princcesm Cities ... &c. The Third Edition, with the Addition of the several Market Towns in England and Wales; giving a general Description of the Places ...&c. For Richard Ware. 1740, printed in double columns, title slightly soiled and mounted on a guard and with ownership inscriptions crossed through, pp. [xvi], [912], thick 8vo., modern quarter calf, the backstrip with four low raised bands, green morocco label with gilt lettering, marbled boards, sound (estc T113329; Alston V, 145) £450.00

Dyche, Thomas (d. 1722), schoolmaster and writer on language, first published this dictionary in 1723. Eight editions were published up until 1756, and in the text Dyche proposed some spelling reforms to simplify the written language. The third is an important edition, incorporating the names and descriptions of hundreds of English and Welsh towns, with their market-days, government, manufactures, distances from London, etc. It was partially due to this gazetteer-like entry that the work remained popular with the public, but also to Dyche’s insistence on proper pronunciation.
90. (East Indies.) HAMILTON (Alexander) A New Account of the East Indies. With numerous maps & illustrations. Now edited with Introduction and Notes by Sir William Foster. In Two Volumes. The Argonaut Press. 1930, 31/975 Copies, printed on japon vellum, frontispiece in vol. i, 8 folding maps, pp. xxxvii, [1], 259; vi, 225, [3], 4to., orig. qtr. vellum, green cloth boards with gilt medallion to front boards, backstrip lettered in gilt, edges uncut and unopened, green cloth slipcase (somewhat faded), fine £350.00

‘The importance of Hamilton’s account of his experiences in the East (1688-1723) is shown by the fact that one can scarcely find a modern work dealing with the history or geography of Asia for that period which does not contain references to his book; and it may appear strange that, since the reprint of 1744, no attempt should have been made ... to place so valuable a work at the disposal of a wider circle of readers’ (Preface).

91. (Egypt.) LEGHT (Thomas) Narrative of a journey in Egypt and the country beyond the cataracts. John Murray. 1816, FIRST EDITION, folding map, plate, pp. viii, 157, 4to., orig. dark grey paper boards, minor (expertly carried-out) repairs to backstrip, paper spine label, engraved bookplate of Holland House pasted to upper side, corners rubbed, Holland House bookplate on front pastedown, good (Abbey Travel 267; Weber I49; Blackmer 999) £500.00

On publication in 1816, the work attracted many favourable reviews, including that in The Quarterly Review which noted that: ‘It is rather a phenomenon, in these days of bookish luxury, to encounter a volume, and more particularly a volume of Travels, destitute of the usual garniture of fine prints or aquatinta sketches, without a single head or tail-piece, vignette or even portrait of the author, but sent naked into the world without any other embellishment or illustration than a fair type, excellent paper, and a style as plain and free from tawdriness, as the sheets on which it was written.’ The book must also have appealed to the keepers of Lord Holland’s library, where the book was no doubt housed up until the events of September 1940. The Holland House library had been collected by generations of the Fox family, but was sold off after German bombs destroyed most of the great house during the Blitz. A famous photograph exists of the bombed-out library with the treasures still on the shelves, being picked over by booksellers. These remains of the collection were sold on behalf of the family, by the Earl of Ilchester, a leading British twentieth-century aristocratic bibliophile.

92. (Egypt.) WILSON (Robert Thomas) History of the British Expedition to Egypt; to which is subjoined, a Sketch of the present State of that Country and its Means of Defence. ... Second Edition. T. Egerton. 1803, engraved frontispiece portrait of Sir Ralph Abercrombie after I. Hopnner, 4 folding maps including a large map of the Western branch of the Nile and one of Cairo, and 2 folding tables, half-title discarded, light spotting to the title, pp. xxi, 387, 4to., contemp. half russia, smooth backstrip with gilt fillet panels and lettering in the second compartment, neatly repaired, marbled boards, the upper cover with a central red morocco gilt ownership label, the marbled boards with faint traces of newsprint, engraved bookplate with cypher, good (Atabey 1346) £700.00

On 28 June 1800 Wilson purchased a majority in Hompesch’s mounted riflemen, then serving under Sir Ralph Abercrombie in the Mediterranean, and in the autumn he travelled across the continent to Vienna on a mission to Lord Minto, by whom he was sent to the Austrian army in Italy. He then went to join Abercrombie, landing at Abu Qir Bay on 7 March 1801, and taking part in the action of the 13th and in the battle of Alexandria on the 21st. Upon Abercrombie’s death Major-General (later Lord) Hutchinson succeeded him and employed Wilson on several missions. In July Wilson entered Cairo with Hutchinson, and was at the siege of Alexandria in August and its capitulation on the 25th. For his services in Egypt he was made a knight of the order of the Crescent of Turkey.

This work went through several editions and derived especial popularity from its charges of cruelty against Napoleon, towards both his prisoners at Jaffa and his own soldiers at Cairo.

Emblems of seventeenth-century Meteorology

93.
(Emblem Book.) REINZER (Franz) Meteorologia Philosophico-Politica, in duodecim Dissertationes per Quaestiones Meteorologicae et Conclusiones Politicas divisa, appositisque Symbolis Illustrata. Augsburg: Jeremiah Wolf. 1698, dramatic engraved frontispiece by A. M. Wolfgang after W. J. Kadoriza showing thunder, allegorical figures and a battle scene, 83 large round engraved emblematic illustrations (circa 13 x 13cm.) by the same artists and J. Müler, J. Striedbeck and J. S. Krausen, showing all the extremes of weather and their various effects, including comets, lightning, meteors, deluges, shipwrecks, earthquakes, etc., a few leaves uniformly, but not unattractively browned, blank corner of OO2 repaired, pp. [vi], 297, [5], folio, slightly later vellum over stiff boards, rebacked, the hinges weakened, good (Landwehr, German Emblem Books, 495; Praz pp. 193 & 468; De Backer/Sommervogel VI, 1640) £750.00

This unusual and striking emblem book was first published by Anton Nepperschmid in 1697. It attempts to draw appropriate philosophical and political lessons from meteorological and other natural phenomena, whilst depicting them in vivid form, and is partly derived from the writings of Athanasius Kircher. Reinzer, a Jesuit, taught rhetoric at Vienna, philosophy at Linz, and moral theology at Passau and Graz. This copy appears to have one of the digits of the date (1698) supplied in ink, probably correcting a printing error, as it collates as the 1698 edition and has the correct imprint for that edition.
94. Epistolae Clarorum Virorum, selectae de quam plurimis optima, ad indicandam nostrorum temporum eloquentiam. Nunc demum emenadata, auctæ, ... Cologne: apud Ioannem Gymnicum. 1586, woodcut printer’s device on the title, woodcut initials, small area of wear and paper adhesion on the blank inner edge of the title, pp. [viii], 320, 8vo., nineteenth century diced dark green morocco, the backstrip ruled in gilt, with four raised bands and gilt lettering in the second compartment, the covers with gilt arms lettered ‘J. Gomez de la Cortina et Amicorum Fallitur Hora Legendo’ and double gilt fillet borders, inner dentelles, marbled endpapers, a.e.g., good (Adams E280)

This collection of letters by famous men has a distinguished provenance: inside the front cover are the bookplates of Henrici Deodati des Salles, in original ink and watercolour with the inscription beneath: ‘A Monsieur l’abbé Paquier en souvenir d’Aléandres et de la journée du 25 Avril 1900, F. de Salles’, and the printed bookplate of l’abbé Paquier. This copy, as is evidenced by the binding, also belonged to the famous collection of the Spanish bibliophile J. Gomez de la Cortina (1805-1868).

The First Printed Account of Cook’s First Voyage (Exploration.) [COOK (Captain James) First Voyage:] Hawkesworth (John) An Account of the Voyages undertaken by the Order of His Present Majesty for making Discoveries in the Southern Hemisphere, and successively performed by Commodore Byron, Captain Wallis, Captain Carteret and Captain Cook in the ‘Dolphin’ the ‘Swallow’ and the ‘Endeavour’. Drawn up from the journals which were kept by the several Commanders, and from the Papers of J. Banks ... in Three volumes. W. Strahan & T. Cadell. 1773, FIRST EDITION, 52 engraved maps, charts and plates, including the large folding map of the Magellan Straight (not always present), page 139 in vol. i. misnumbered as usual, the first chart, of the South Seas, creased, a few closed tears to folding charts at folds and mounts, occasional minor browning and spotting, one or two edges in vol.i dampstained, pp. [xii], xxxvi, 670; xvi, 410; [vi], 411-710, 4to., modern imitation morocco, backstrips with gilt ruled raised bands and contemp. black and red morocco labels with gilt lettering laid down, good (ESTC T74465; Mitchell 648; Hill 139; Sabin 30934; PMM 223) ‘Cook did more to clarify the geographical knowledge of the southern hemisphere than all his predecessors had done together. He was really the first scientific navigator and his voyages made great contributions to many fields of knowledge’ (Hill). Cook’s first voyage included visits to Tahiti and New Zealand, and the tracing of the east coast of Australia was one of the most perilous feats of navigation in the whole recorded history of exploration.

£5,500.00

Cook’s Third Voyage (1776-1780) by the Surgeon’s Mate (Exploration.) [COOK (Captain James) Third Voyage:] Ellis (William) An Authentic Narrative of a Voyage performed by Captain Cook and Captain Clerke, in His Majesty’s Ships Resolution and Discovery during the Years 1776, 1777, 1778, 1779, and 1780; In Search of a North-West Passage between the Continents of Asia and America. Including a faithful Account of all their Discoveries, and the unfortunate Death of Captain Cook. [Two volumes in one.] For G. Robinson. 1782, FIRST EDITION, engraved folding chart showing the discoveries in the Pacific Ocean, torn and repaired at lower fold, and 21 engraved plates, with Directions to the Binders leaf, half-titles discarded, tear to N3 repaired, pp. [viii], 338, [2]; [vi], 347, 8vo., modern mottled calf, the backstrip panelled in gilt, with four raised bands, and red morocco label with gilt lettering in the second compartment, good (ESTC T144684; Hill 95; Sabin 22333; Holmes 42)

£5,500.00

This account, whose fine plates are among the earliest published on the subject of the Hawaiian Islands, Alaska, and the Northwest, was published two years before the official account. Ellis was a surgeon’s mate during Cook’s third voyage, first on the Discovery and later on the Resolution, and a skillful amateur artist. The plates are after his original drawings. Cook’s third voyage began in July 1776 and concentrated on the North Pacific. His death on 14th February, 1779, of which this is the first account, overshadowed the two most important achievements of the voyage: the discovery of Hawaii, which Cook considered to be his greatest feat, and the disproval of the theory of a North East passage.
With him travelled George Vancouver who later charted the North West Coast of America and also the artist John Webber who provided Europe with many of the popular contemporary images of the Pacific.

97. Gandee (R. F.) The Artist, or, Young Ladies' Instructor in Ornamental Painting, Drawing, etc., Chapman and Hall. 1835, Baxter print frontispiece, chromolithographed decoration to the title-page, 17 lithographed plates, pp. viii, 253, [2], sm.8vo., orig. blue cloth, gilt wreaths enclosing title on both covers, spine lettered in gilt with trailing foliage in gilt, spine faded, extremities of spine bumped, good

98. (Geography.) Cluverii [Clüver] (Philippi [Philipp]) and Josephus Vorstius (editor) Introductionis in Universam Geographiam, tam veterem quam novam libri VI. Leiden: apud Elsevier. 1629, SECOND EDITION, engraved title, woodcut initial letters, 3 engraved folding plates, pp. 252 [i.e. 352], [8], 24mo., contemp. vellum, smooth backstrip with somewhat later gilt lettered brown morocco label, marbled endpapers, remnants of silk ties, red speckled and polished edges, very good (Willems 309; Sabin 13805 [for ed. list])

£350.00

First published by Elsevier in 1624 at Leiden (see Willems and Sabin), the present work follows this format with three folding plates. It would be reissued once more at Leiden in 1641, before Elsevier's production transferred to Amsterdam. Clüver (who Latinized his name as Philippus Cluverianus, as was the fashion of the time) was appointed geographer to Leiden University. He also fulfilled the role of librarian. His life's project, however, was the study of the geography of Antiquity and he is widely cited as the founder of historical geography. He wrote important works on the Rhine region, Germany, and Sicily. Introductionis in Universam Geographiam would become a standard geographical textbook.

99. Gibbon (Edward) A Vindication of some Passages in the fifteenth and sixteenth Chapters of the History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire. First Irish edition. Dublin: W. and H. Whitestone, J. Williams, W. Colles [etc.] 1779, half-title discarded, a few leaves browned, pp. [ii], 158, 8vo., cont. calf, rebacked. spine panelled in gilt with five raised bands, red morocco in the second compartment with gilt lettering, very good (ESTC T80353; Norton 32)

£800.00

This first Irish edition, including the corrections, of what has been judged a classic of literary polemic. On the publication of The Decline and Fall there were various vociferous critics, who attacked it on religious grounds. Gibbon saved his powder until young Henry Davis, only twenty-one and a member of Balliol College, Oxford, launched a more personal attack impugning both Gibbon's literary and his moral character. Gibbon was stung into action and produced this, his only public engagement with his detractors. It was a victorious riposte which Horace Walpole praised as 'the feathered arrow of Cupid, that is more formidable than the club of Hercules' (Gibbon, Miscellaneous Works).

100. (Gibraltar.) Drinkwater (John) A History of the Late Siege of Gibraltar. With a description and account of that garrison, from the earliest periods. Printed by T. Spilsbury, Snowhill. 1785, FIRST EDITION, folding frontispiece map, 3 other folding maps/diagrams and 6 folding plates (some with short closed tears at folds, neatly reinforced), some light browning and spotting, pp. vii, [9], 360, 4to., modern quarter dark brown calf with marbled boards, backstrip with five blind-milled raised bands between double gilt fillets, red morocco label in second compartment, very good

John Drinkwater (1762-1844) was only 15 when he joined a volunteer regiment in Manchester which was soon after posted to Gibraltar (instead of America, where the excitement seemed to be). In 1779, however, the action came to him when Gibraltar was besieged by a combined French and Spanish force. Over the duration of the four-year siege Drinkwater kept careful notes, publishing this account, with its attractive plates and detailed maps, in 1785. Four editions in as many years attest to its immediate popularity.
101. Giles (Herbert A.) Chinese Poetry in English Verse. Bernard Quaritch. 1898, first edition, title printed in red and black (toned), one or two light spots, pp. [iv], 212, [2], 8vo., early Italian paper boards stamped with red and black design, backed in brown buckram, smooth backstrip with red morocco label, Italian bookseller’s ticket to front pastedown, very good £50.00

The first edition of these translations from the Chinese, by the prolific Herbert Allen Giles (1845-1935), whose other works included several anthologies of translations, phrase books and language guides, substantial dictionaries, and a transliteration system for Chinese into English which was until recently the standard. His professorship at Cambridge, on account of his combative personality and a lack of student interest, did not involve much teaching; ironically this enabled the writing that would do so much to ignite interest in Chinese studies.

102. Gilpin (William) Remarks on Forest Scenery and other Woodland Views, relative chiefly to Picturesque Beauty illustrated by the Scenes of New Forest in Hampshire. ... The Third Edition, in Two Volumes. Printed for T. Cadell and W. Davies. 1808, 31 tinted plates and one folding map, with half-titles and bookseller’s catalogue, edges untrimmed, a little spotting, pp. xvi, [1], 344; [iv], 362, [2], 8vo., modern quarter russet calf, marbled boards, backstrip with five raised bands, red morocco label in second compartment, gilt vol. number direct in third, the rest plain, good £250.00

The unusually styled plates – tinted in order to ‘take off the glaring rawness of white paper’ and ‘harmonize, by a mellow tint, the unpleasant opposition of black and white’, and depicting simplified and idealised elements of picturesque beauty – were misunderstood and underappreciated by his contemporaries, who expected more precise drawing of specific scenes. Nevertheless, Gilpin was the defining influence on the picturesque ideal and negative critical attention did not diminish his popularity or importance.

103. Gilpin (William) The Lives of John Wicliff; and the most eminent of his disciples; Lord Cobham, John Huss, Jerome of Prague, and Zisca. Printed for J. Robson. 1765, first edition, five engraved plates, ownership inscription of Charles Gibbon (1865) to title, pp. xvi, 368, [4], 8vo., contemp. mottled calf, boards bordered with a dotted gilt roll inside gilt fillets, backstrip with five raised bands, red morocco label in second compartment, the rest with gilt tools (now chipped), gilt turn-ins, marbled endpapers, rubbed and flaked, joints cracked (but boards soundly held), a little loss to leather at head of backstrip, bookplate removed from front pastedown, sound (ESTC T99002) £100.00
The first edition of William Gilpin’s biographies of John Wycliffe and several precursors to the Reformation. Gilpin is perhaps better known for his influential artistic works on ‘picturesque beauty’ (e.g. the previous item), though he published a number of biographies of religious figures and asked his publishers to promote his religious writings rather than his artistic ones.

104. (Gloucestershire.) MARSHALL (William) The rural Economy of Gloucestershire; including its Dairy: together with the Dairy Management of North Wiltsire; and the Management of Orchards and Fruit Liquor, in Herefordshire. In two volumes. Gloucester: By R. Raikes for G. Nicol. 1789, FIRST EDITION, folding engraved map including the neighbouring counties, pp. xxviii, 332, [4]; iv, 401 [11], 8vo., contemp. half calf, the smooth backstrips panelled with gilt fillets and chain tools, red morocco labels with gilt lettering in the second compartments, marbled boards, armorial bookplates of Charles Acton, fine (ESTC T94236; Austin 1884; Fussell p. 118) £550.00

According to his own account Marshall could trace his blood through the veins of agriculturists for upwards of four hundred years. He was to leave his mark on the subject. Modern agricultural historians have generally held that his works on English farming are superior to those of his rival, Arthur Young, as they are more systematically arranged and based on a more thorough knowledge of a district by personal residence there. In addition, in his Rural Economy of the midland counties Marshall proposed the establishment of a board of agriculture, a suggestion which the influential Sir John Sinclair (1754–1835) persuaded Pitt to adopt in 1793 (ODNB).

105. Goring (C. R.) & Andrew Pritchard. Microphobia: containing practical Essays on reflecting, solar, oxy-hydrogen gas Microscopes; Micrometers; Eye-pieces, &c. &c. Whittaker and Co. 1837, FIRST EDITION, folding engraved frontispiece, 2 engraved plates and one full-page illustration, pp. viii, 231, 8vo., slightly later dark blue half calf, the backstrip ruled with gilt fillets, red morocco, label with gilt lettering, marbled boards, good £420.00

Pritchard (1804-1882) began his professional career as an optician but his attention was on microscopy. In 1824, while still an apprentice, at the instigation of Dr Goring he ground a single lens out of a diamond. He also fashioned simple lenses of sapphire, ruby, garnet, and spinel. Later he sold more old-fashioned microscopes, though his slide design – using a gum and isinglass mixture, with edges filled with red sealing wax – was innovative: ‘His practical work on the microscope, however, was less important than his books on the applications of the instrument’ (DNB).

106. (Grasses.) THE IMPROVED CULTURE of three principal Grasses, Lucerne, Sainfoin, and Burnet: Wherein is described a new Method of cultivating Lucerne to much greater Profit than any hitherto practised in England or abroad; shewn by a Comparison of the several Methods. To which are added Observations on Clover. ([Half-title]: Also the Uses of it, for feeding Horses; for the Diary; and for fattening Black Cattle, Sheep and Deer.) G. Robinson. 1775, FIRST EDITION, half-title, diagram and table in the text, pp. [xvi], 320, 8vo., contemp. sprinkled calf, the backstrip with five raised bands, ruled in gilt, red morocco label, lettered in gilt, a trifle rubbed, fine (ESTC N48222; Henrey 865; Perkins 859; not in Fussell) £950.00

A scarce book, this detailed account has interesting contemporary detail of agricultural methods, and much specific information about agricultural experiments in both England and France. The author has not been identified, but reveals that he knew Bartholomew Rocque, a market-gardener in Lincolnshire, who published his own work on the cultivation of lucerne in 1765. ESTC records six copies: BL, Cambridge, Southampton, and three somewhat unusual USA locations, Colonial Williamsburg, the Library Company of Philadelphia, and Louisiana State. COPAC adds the Wye Campus of Imperial College, and Worldcat finds three further USA copies, in Chicago, Johns Hopkins, and the National Agricultural Library.
107. Gray (Thomas) Poems and Letters. [Preface by Horace Walpole]. Chiswick Press. 1867, frontispiece albumen photograph of a painting of Gray, 3 oval albumen views (Eton Prospect, Country Church-Yard, and one other), all mounted, scattered foxing, pp. xvi, 415, 4to., contemp. red morocco, the backstrip elaborately panelled in gilt with central urns, fleurons, etc., green morocco label with gilt lettering, the sides with floral borders, a.e.g., marbled endpapers, Eton Prize with the inscribed presentation leaf as usual, a little scuffed, small nick to upper joint, good (Gernsheim 188; Northup 37a) £300.00

A handsome copy of this the second Chiswick Press edition, elegantly printed and with four early photographic plates.

108. (Great Britain. Agricultural Buildings.) Dean (George Alfred) Essays on the Construction of Farm Buildings and Labourers’ Cottages. Straford, Essex: S. Morris; London: Simpkin, Marshall and Co. 1849, 16 lithographed plates of designs for farm buildings, including the tinted frontispiece of cottages, 8 of them folding, one with small tear at fold, subscribers’ list, pp. [viii], viii, 32, 14, xiv, 4to., orig. dark green vertical ribbed cloth, the extremities of the backstrip bumped and with small tear at head, the sides with wide blind trellis borders, the upper cover lettered in gilt, the lower with a central blind cottage, hinges repaired, good £400.00

Dean’s pre-eminence as an agricultural architect was established in the 1840s when he helped Prince Albert to develop a model farm at Osborne. This work, dedicated to Prince Albert, also acknowledges the encouragement Dean received from the Royal Agricultural Society of England in his aim of promoting efficient and economical farm buildings.

109. (Great Britain.) Middiman (Samuel), Engraver. Select Views in Great Britain, engraved by S. Middiman, from Pictures and Drawings by the most eminent Artists. With Descriptions. [Second Edition]. John & Josiah Boydell. [1812], engraved calligraphic title by Shepherd, advertisement leaf, 53 engraved views each with corresponding leaf of text in English and French, index leaf, occasional foxing, mostly marginal, pp. [iv], 53 leaves, [2], oblong 4to., contemp. dark green half roan, the backstrip with thick gilt bands and gilt lettering, marbled boards, slightly rubbed, good £750.00

Samuel Middiman (1750-1831), a specialist and talented landscape etcher, found his skills to be much in demand. He is said to have worked on many plates issued under the sole name of other engravers, had close connections with the Boydells for several years and engraved some of the plates in the ‘Shakespeare Gallery’. As the DNB points out, his ‘chief excellence lay in the engraving of landscape, in which he pursued worthily the course marked out by [William] Woollett and others.’ In this, his best-known book, he based his plates on landscape drawings by such artists as Francis Wheatley and Samuel Ireland.

110. (Great Britain. Road Book.) Cary (John) Traveller’s companion, or, a delineation of the turnpike roads of England and Wales, shewing the immediate rout to every market and borough town throughout the kingdom ... The second edition of this the pocket-sized edition of Cary’s series of county maps. It is unaltered from the first of 1790 except that the title-page is re-dated as above, and the maps (with the exception of Yorkshire which retains its original date) are re-dated ‘Sepr. 1, 1792.’
111. (Greenland. Whale-fishing.) Scoresby (William) Journal of a Voyage to the Northern Whale-Fishery; including Researches and Discoveries on the Eastern Coast of West Greenland, made in the Summer of 1822, in the ship Baffin of Liverpool. An account of Scoresby’s 1822 voyage, which combined several weeks of whaling with the exploration of the Scoresby Sound region (on this voyage Scoresby named Scoresby Land and Scoresby Sound) and approximately 800 miles of the East Greenland coast, in search of Eskimo settlements, and in quest of magnetic and other scientific observations. The work also includes an annotated list of 45 species of plants by Sir W. J. Hooker and journals of two other whaling voyages, the Hercules of Aberdeen under Captain Thomas Fairburn, and the Trafalgar, a Hull based whaler under Captain Lloyd.

112. Hales (William) Analysis Aequationum. William Hales (1747-1831), a fellow of Trinity College, Dublin, was a professor of oriental languages but wrote mostly on Newtonian physics, theology, chronology, and mathematics. The present work is his analysis of equations, which earned praise from Lagrange. This copy belonged to Dr Sydney Ross, emeritus professor of Colloid Science at RPI and researcher in the history of science.

John Murray. 1854, First Edition, 12 coloured and tinted lithographed plates, one folding and skillfully repaired at the fold, 80 engraved illustrations, tear to the list of illustrations in vol.ii neatly repaired, occasional light foxing, pp. xxvii, 408; x, 487, 8vo., orig. maroon cloth, the backstrips blind stamped and lettered in gilt (sunned as usual), the sides with outer blind borders and central gilt scene on upper covers, corners knocked, good (Abbey Travel 502) £2,200.00

On 11 November 1847 Hooker left England for his three year long Himalayan expedition; he would be the first European to collect plants in the Himalayas. He received free passage on HMS Sidon, to the Nile and then travelled overland to Suez where he boarded a ship to India. He arrived in Calcutta on 12 January 1848, then travelled by elephant to Mirzapur, up the Ganges by boat to Siliguri and overland to Darjeeling, arriving on 16 April 1848. He explored Sikkim, and also surveyed parts of eastern Nepal. The accuracy of his record of the passes into Tibet was commended by Young husband’s expedition fifty years later. His observations on the geology and meteorology of Sikkim remain fundamental, as does his explanation of the terracing of mountain valleys by the formation of glacial lakes. His overriding passion for botanical research (inherited from his father) led to the collection of seven thousand species in India and Nepal. It is that, and his close friendship with Darwin, with whom he had a lifelong correspondence, for which he will perhaps be best remembered. He began the craze for rhododendrons, adding twenty-five new species to those known, and was successful in introducing the splendid rhododendrons of Sikkim into cultivation.

The third edition of this translated compilation of Hindu laws produced by order of Warren Hastings; the ODNB reports that ‘Halhed’s translation of a Persian abstract of the Sanskrit text was rushed to London in instalments to stave off the feared imposition of British laws on the [East India] company’s Indian subjects.’ Nathaniel Brassey Halhed (1751-1830) also wrote the first English grammar of Bengali and was among the first to consider the relationship between Sanskrit and Greek and Latin made explicit by Sir William Jones.

116. (Holy Land.) Pfeiffer (Ida) A Visit to the Holy Land ... translated from the German by H. W. Dulcken. Ingram, Cooke. 1852, first English edition; additional tinted lithographed title and 7 plates, small library stamp at the foot of the title, one or two ink notes, half-title discarded, pp. xvi, 17-336, [2], 8vo., orig. sage green embossed cloth, the backstrip decorated in gilt with roeses, thistles and shamrocks, and with gilt lettering, recased, new endpapers, good £110.00

117. Hume (David) Essays and Treatises on several Subjects. In two Volumes. A New Edition. [Second Quarto Edition.] London: A. Millar; Edinburgh: A. Kincaid and A. Donaldson. 1768, engraved frontispiece portrait by Ravenet after Donaldson, small printer’s flaw on £2 in vol. ii, pp.[iv], 582; [iv], 509, [15], 4to., contemp. polished calf, backstrip with five raised bands ruled in gilt, red morocco labels with gilt lettering, red sprinkled edges, small split to the joint of vol.i but still strong, one or two small scrapes, armorial bookplate of Lord Sinclair, bookplate of Douglas Grant, good (ESTC T33488; Jessop p. 6; cf. Kress 5712) £1,200.00

This is the full quarto edition, in handsome contemporary calf, of the collection of Essays which Hume himself had made, and which was originally published in four 12mo. volumes between 1753 and 1756. The four volume 12mo. edition had been made up from a confusing variety of editions and issues of sheets of the works which made up its constituent parts. This edition represents Hume’s continuing rationalisation of the collection, including some alterations of titles and other corrections. It is the first edition to have the portrait by Donaldson, of which Hume himself was proud. He said of the drawing for it: ‘In every body’s opinion, as well as my own, the likest that has been done of me’ (Greig).
'the counterpart of The Boke of St Albans

118. [(Hunting & Fishing.)] [FORTIN DE GRANDMONT (François)] Les Ruses Innocentes, dans lesquelles se voit comment on prend les Oiseaux passagers, & les non passagers: [...] avec les plus beaux secrets de la pêche dans les Rivieres & dans les Estangs. [Third edition.] Amsterdam: Chez Pierre Brunel. 1695, frontispiece and 66 engraved plates (9 folding), title-page in red and black, 2 plates toned, several with small tears at folds or margin and one or two just trimmed to border, some light spotting and browning generally and a few leaves with small marginal dampstains, front free endpaper loosening, old ownership inscription to title (‘Laurent’), pp. [x], 58, [8], 59-122, [10], 123-186, [8], 187-232, [8], 233-292, [4], 8vo., contemp. sprinkled calf, backstrip with five raised bands, red morocco label in second compartment, the rest decorated with gilt central lozenges and corner volutes, marbled pastedowns, spine ends somewhat chipped, corners slightly worn, front joint stained, but good (Schwerdt I 181; Harting 161; Westwood & Satchell p. 180; Banks (Dryander) II 555)

The fourth edition, and the first in octavo form, of a book that ‘may be described (mutatis mutandis) as the counterpart of The Boke of St Albans’(Radcliffe, Fishing from the Earliest Times, p. 10). The first four parts deal with traps, nets, and snares for birds and land animals, while the fifth is on fishing (mostly with nets), leading W&S to call the first edition ‘the most interesting contribution made by France to the literature of angling.’ Harting adds: ‘This curious work, which is illustrated with woodcuts, was for a long time very popular with French sportsmen, and is still much sought after by collectors of sporting books [...] Some of the illustrations are very quaint.’

119. [Hutcheson (Francis)] Synopsis Metaphysicae. Ontologiam et pneumatologiam complectens. [Glasgow: Robert Foulis.] 1744, a little faint browning to upper edge, otherwise very clean, pp. vii, [i], 123, [1], 12mo., contemp. English sheep, boards bordered with a double blind fillet, backstrip with five plain raised bands, rubbed, front joint cracking (but sound), head and tail of backstrip chipped, ownership inscriptions to front endpapers, sound (Gaskell 51; ESTC T83296)

The second edition (first 1742) of this ‘adaptation of the ‘Determinationes ontologicae et pneumatologicae’ of the Dutch metaphysician Gerard de Vries’ (ODNB) by the moral philosopher Francis Hutcheson. The content is similar to what was delivered at the time in lectures on metaphysics at the University of Glasgow, where de Vries’s book was a set text, though Hutcheson himself did not teach there. The book may have been printed initially to help support the printer Robert Foulis, a former student of Hutcheson’s, and it became popular: five more editions followed after Hutcheson’s death, with the seventh appearing in 1780. This copy bears the ownership inscription of and a brief note by the historian and journalist Cecil J.S. Sprigge (1896-1939). Earlier it was in the library of John Gibberd of St Edmund’s Hall, Oxford (his inscription is dated 1747).

120. Hutton (Charles) A Course of Mathematics. In two volumes. For the use of academies as well as private tuition. The fifth edition, enlarged and corrected. *Printed for J. An early edition of the popular Course of Mathematics by the Newcastle mathematician Charles Hutton (1737-1823), which was to see numerous editions in the first half of the nineteenth century, even being translated into Arabic (ODNB).

121. [(Indo-China.)] COLQUHOUN (Archibald Ross) Amongst the Shans. With [...] an historical sketch of the Shans by Holt. S. Hallett, preceded by an introduction on the cradle of the Shan race by Terrien de Lacouperie. Field & Tuer. 1885, FIRST EDITION, frontispiece with tissue-guard, folding coloured map, 54 full-page illustrations and one vignette, a little spotting and fingsesoiling, pp.
lv, 392 (ads), 24 (ads), 8vo., orig. green cloth by Westley’s (with their label), backstrip and front board lettered in gilt, edges untrimmed, head and tail of backstrip bumped, very good (Cordier Indosinica 629) £900.00

The second book on the territory of the Shan by Colquhoun, who had been employed to explore the possibility of railway routes in the region. He would go on to travel and publish widely – undertaking ‘several tours of Siberia, China, Japan, the Philippines, the Dutch East Indies, southern Africa, North and South America, and the Habsburg empire’ (ODNB) – but it was with these early books on the Shan that he emerged from the obscurity of the Indian Public Works surveying department. His focus is still on the railway potential, arguing for a connection between the British Burma system and Bangkok, across the Shan territory, but along the way he includes observations on the culture, customs and geography of the area. ‘The introduction … is a paper of great ethnological importance, as it traces the Shan back to their original seat in China Proper’ (Proc. R.G.S. July 1885, p. 483).

‘Isfahan is half the world.’

122. (Iran.) CHARDIN (John) The travels of Sir John Chardin into Persia and the East-Indies, the first volume, containing the author’s voyage from Paris to Isphahan: to which is added, The coronation of this present King of Persia, Solyman the Third. Printed for Moses Pitt in Duke-Street Westminster. 1686, FIRST ENGLISH EDITION, engraved frontispiece portrait of Chardin by Loggan (laid down), engraved title-page, printed title and engraved vignette within woodcut border (unobtrusive waterstain to fore margin and chipped loss at lower fore corner), engraved chapterheads, initial letters, and tailpieces, folding map (laid on linen), fourteen engraved plates (some folding, some laid on linen, closely cropped and with old paper repairs), one inch tear to bottom edges of pp. 402[399]-399[402], some occasional spotting pp., [14], 264, 331-417, [9], 154, [6], folio, orig. dark ‘Cambridge-style’ calf, sometime neatly rebacked to match, backstrip divided into seven compartments by raised bands between blind rules, gilt lettered direct in second and fourth, the rest empty, sides expertly recornered, ownership inscription on recto of blank preceding portrait, cream endpapers, red speckled edges (somewhat dust-dimmed), good (Wing C2043; Lowndes I, p.412; ESTC R12885) £1,250.00

‘The reader follows him in his business interests, accompanies him round the city of Isfahan, which so greatly impressed him, district by district in and out of the bazaars, round the Meidan-e Shah, into the mosques and shrines. He was present at Court ceremonies and banquets, mingled with the crowds at festivals, visited courtiers and officials, and whilst travelling around gathered his information…’ (from Ferrier, A Journey to Persia). The young French jeweller had accompanied a business associate of his father’s to Persia as early as 1665, aged just 21. There he secured a series of lucrative commissions and was called upon to travel further east to India in search of diamonds, thus establishing his links with the East Indies trade. On his return to France, Chardin was approached by the English envoy Henry Saville who encouraged the merchant traveller to emigrate to England, which he duly did in the spring of 1681. The entrepreneurial Parisian was appointed to the East India Company two years after his arrival; he subsequently worked on publication of his memoirs, in which he was ably assisted by John Evelyn. The present work was simultaneously issued in French as Voyages du chevalier Jean Chardin en Perse et autres lieux de l’Orient. Three other volumes, with the general title Voyages de Mons. le Chevalier Chardin, were published in Amsterdam in 1711. The last volume, announced by Chardin in his preface to this edition, was never published.

123. (Iraq. Mesopotamia.) LAYARD (Austen) Discoveries in the Ruins of Nineveh and Babylon; with travels in Armenia, Kurdistan and the Desert: being the result of a second exhibition undertaken for the trustees of the British Museum. John Murray. 1853, FIRST EDITION, half-title, 16 plates including folding frontispiece, 6 other folding plates and 8 single-page tinted lithographs, numerous woodcut illustrations in letterpress, two folding plates with a neatly repaired tear at mount, some light foxing and spotting, pp. xxiii, [1], 686, [2] (ads.), 8vo., orig. brown cloth, blocked in blind with large figure of a winged human-headed bull (édu), the head-on view depicted on the backstrip incorporating a small frame for the gilt-lettered title, neatly rebacked preserving orig. backstrip, hinges relined to match orig. terracotta endpapers, the whole slightly dulled and with the merest touch of wear at extremities, one or two spots, bookplate of A.E. Freeman-Matthews, good £250.00
Layard had considerable knowledge of the country now named Iraq; he spoke Arabic and Persian fluently and had spent time with tribes dwelling in the Bakhtiari Mountains of northern Persia. In 1845 he was sent to Mosul to assist in archaeological digs just outside the city. Over the following years, Layard uncovered remarkable archaeological finds, including three royal palaces. His discoveries at Nimrud, on the banks of the Tigris, led to publication (by Murray) of Nineveh and its Remains in 1849. Major excavations funded by the British Museum followed, and formed the basis of this book, which is uncommon in its original cloth. Much of what we know about Assyrian culture is founded on Layard’s discovery of the cuneiform library of King Sennacherib’s grandson Ashurbanipal.

124. (Istanbul.) Gilles (Pierre) De Constantinopoleos Topographia lib. IV. *Leiden: Ex officina Elzeviriana. 1632, engraved title page, one or two light spots, pp. [20], 21-428, [2] (blank), 24mo., contemp. vellum, yapp edges, backstrip hand-lettered, a little soiled and ruckled, pastedowns lifting and front flyleaf removed, hinge cracked at title but sound, good (Willems 367) £275.00

A pocket Elzevir edition of the first scholarly account of Constantinople (now Istanbul), by Pierre Gilles (1490-1555), the early proponent of Byzantine archaeology. Gilles wrote the book after visiting Constantinople to collect Greek and Hebrew manuscripts. It was first published in 1561 by Gilles’ nephew.

Ebert 337; Graesse I 52) £1,800.00

An early travel guidebook to Italy written by the Dominican friar Leandro Alberti of Bologna.
Alberti was trained in both litterae humaniores and theology. He travelled widely throughout Italy, especially in 1523, when he accompanied the general of his order through southern Italy and Sicily. Subsequently, he was very active in the Dominican house in his native Bologna; and in 1536 he was named vicar of Santa Sabina in Rome.

The first printing of his immensely popular Descrittione appeared in 1550 in Bologna. Between 1551 and 1631, ten more editions followed, eight of them appearing in Italy, and two (1566 and 1567) in Cologne. The text is heavily indebted to the pioneering work of Flavio Biondo, particularly his Italia Illustrata; however Alberti adds more material such as economic and demographic observations.
Descrittione quickly became the template for numerous guides to Italy that were to follow, notably Francis Schott’s Itinerarium Italicae of 1600. Alberti’s guide ranged through the Italian states province by province but did not contain any maps. The supplemental work on Italian islands Isole appartenenti alla Italia (invariably bound with the Descrittione as a second section) followed, with a Venice-printed edition appearing in 1561. The aerial view of Venice, one of 7 double leaves of maps of islands around the coast of Italy, is particularly well-executed.

The heroine of the romantic age of aviation
126. (Johnson (Amy), Aviator.) COLCHESTER Oyster Feast. [Programme and Plan of Tables].
[Colchester]. 1937, SIGNED BY AMY JOHNSON on the back cover of the programme in pencil, chromolithographed front cover, Programme of Music and Toast List printed in green, on stiff card, the separate folding Plan of Tables with the recipient’s (invitee’s) name in manuscript at the head and both his and Amy Johnson’s name in the seating plan, pp. 4, 4to (overall 215 x 252mm.)
and folded plan 282 x136mm., opening to 282 x 537mm. £200.00

Signed by the legendary aviator who was but 27, with less than one hundred hours’ flying experience, when she flew solo to Australia. During her remarkable flying career Amy Johnson received many honours, but she never acquired solid navigational skills. Sadly, she set out in adverse weather conditions in January 1941, lost her way and was never seen again.

The Colchester Oyster Feast has ancient roots but in its modern form has been held since 1845. Amy Johnson was one of the ‘dignitaries’ invited to grace the event in 1937, and was asked by the wife of the invitee to sign the programme.
127. Johnson (Samuel) A Dictionary of the English language: in which the words are deduced from their originals, explained in their different meanings, and authorized by the names of the writers in whose works they are found: abstracted from the Folio edition by the author Samuel Johnson, to which is prefixed a grammar of the English language. In two volumes. The sixth edition, corrected by the author. Printed for W. Strahan, J.F. and C. Rivington, et al. 1778, main text in double-column, wood-engraved tail-pieces, ff. [288]; [273], 8vo., contemp. speckled calf, neatly rebacked with original gilt lettered morocco labels, backstrip divided into six compartments, board edges gilt hatched, engraved armorial bookplates of Sir John Williams of Bodlewyddan, very good (Fleeman I, S6.1 DA/10: Courtney 62; Alston v.200: Cordell J-54: estc T083960) £500.00

This copy bears the bookplate of Sir John Williams of Bodlewyddan. Williams was a leading surgeon and physician of the late eighteenth-century and distinguished himself as a pioneer expert obstetrician and reputable 'surgical' gynaecologist, becoming president of the Obstetrical Society of London in 1887-8. He was for many years physician accoucheur to the royal family: Queen Victoria requested him to attend the birth of the child of her youngest daughter, Beatrice, and in June 1894 he was in attendance when Victoria Mary, duchess of York, gave birth to the future Edward VIII. Aside from his pursuits as a doctor, he also found time to amass a large library of rare books gathered with the assistance of the noted bookseller Bernard Quaritch. These he donated as a collection, thus establishing the National Library of Wales in July 1911.

128. Johnson (Samuel) A Dictionary of the English Language: in which the words are deduced from their originals, and illustrated in their different significations by examples from the best writers. [...] The ninth edition; corrected and revised. [2 volumes.] For J. Johnson, W.J. and J. Richardson [et al.] 1806, engraved frontispiece by J. Heath, offset to title, some light foxing, two small paper flaws in vol. ii: lower corner of 4N3 torn (with loss of three characters in quotation) and a small hole in 4R2 (with loss of parts of five words in quotations), ff. [xxxvi], [528]; [ii], [512], 4to., contemp. diced russia, backstrip with five double raised bands, gilt-ruled with internal gilt rolls, second and fifth compartments gilt lettered direct, first and sixth with central floral tool, and third and fourth with diced pattern, the sides with wide gilt borders including Grecian and other rolls, rebacked with original spines laid down, marbled edges and endpapers, a few light scratches, binder's tickets of Thomson & Wrightson, Stationers, Birmingham, to front pastedowns, good (Fleeman S5.4D/14: Cordell J-90) £500.00

One of two ‘ninth’ editions of Johnson’s dictionary. The other ‘ninth’ was issued in 1805 in four quarto volumes by, as Fleeman notes, a similar list of publishers – probably in an effort to reach different parts of the market.

129. Johnson (Samuel) Miscellaneous and Fugitive Pieces. [Three volumes]. The Second edition, ‘corrected’, first issue [of vols. 1 and 2.] For T. Davies. 1774, First edition of volume 3, which was published separately, pp.[iv],375: [iv], 360: viii, 311, 8vo., contemporary sprinkled calf, spines with five raised bands, russell morocco labels with gilt lettering in the second compartments, volume numerals in gilt in the third compartments, and gilt fleuron decoration, fine (Chapman and Hazen p.150; Courtney p. 116; Fleeman p. 1194 and 1196) £750.00

Boswell says that these volumes were published during Johnson’s absence and advertised by Davies as ‘by the author of the Rambler.’ Johnson was very angry when he saw that the second volume contained several pieces that were not written by him.

130. (Junius. Letters.) The Letters of Junius. [Two volumes] John Wheble. 1771, fully engraved titles with borders and vignettes, with the ink ownership signatures of W. Johnson, [Minister], Llafaelhe Rectory (near Bangor), on the front free endpapers, pp. [ii], viii, 250; [ii], iv, 272, 12mo., contemp. red straight-grained morocco, the sides with gilt borders of repeated fleuron tools, the spines all-over gilt with black morocco title labels and gilt lettering, and brown morocco numeral labels, one label chipped, a.e.g., marbled endpapers, fine (Bowyer 22; Cordasco 41) £380.00
This beautifully bound early edition contains 57 letters, plus 12 of Philo Junius. Cordasco calls it ‘a made-up, spurious edition’, noting that the dedication was not published until March 1772 and that the last letter in vol. ii is dated February 1775. It also includes seven letters than are not in the ‘authorized edition’ of 1772.

A reprint of Bensley’s 1797 illustrated edition, with the older date on the engraved titles, attractively bound and well-preserved in contemporary ruskea. All copies we have seen listed with measurements in library catalogues or for sale, including some described as large-paper, have been 22cm or just under in height, while this copy measures 23.5cm tall at the page.

Hall’s work is the account of a journey of exploration along the coast of Korea, the Ryukyu Archipelago, and the Yellow Seas, about which virtually no information was available at the time. The voyage, conducted in the sloops Alceste & Lyra, provides the most reliable and accurate account of the islands of Corea to date, examining the coasts of the little known island group, of which it produced the first detailed & accurate hydrographic information. Korea had been sketchily explored by the Europeans, but it was not until the Alceste and Lyra expedition in 1816-17, under Captains Murray Maxwell and Basil Hall, that detailed information was obtained about the Ryukyu. On the homeward passage, the Alceste was wrecked in Gaspar Strait off Sumatra’ (Hill), the brig Lyra (10 guns) ordered to China in company with the frigate Alceste.

134. [L’enfant (Jacques)] Poggiana, ou la vie, le caractere, les sentences, et les bon mots de Pogge Florentin. Avec son histoire de la Republique de Florence. The first part is his biography, written by the French divine and Historian Jacques L’enfant, while the second, third, and fourth concern his work, including his history of Florence (in imitation of Livy’s style).

The first collected edition of the works of Laplace, the ‘French Newton’, containing his major works on celestial mechanics and probability. Publication was initiated by his widow, and it was completed with government funds. The first five volumes contain the Traité de mécanique céleste, the sixth volume l’Exposition du système du monde, which is an equationless explication of the work on celestial mechanics, and the seventh volume his important work on probability, Théorie analytique des probabilités and l’Essai philosophique sur les probabilités. In the former works he reinterprets classical celestial mechanics.
using calculus instead of geometry; in the latter he defines fundamental results in statistics and probability, develops a mathematical system of inductive reasoning, and presents a formal proof for the method of least squares. Fourier, eulogizing Laplace, wrote 'Laplace was born to perfect everything, to deepen everything, to push back the boundaries, to solve what was thought to be insoluble' (quot. in Gillespie).

136. [Le Clerc (Jean)] Memoirs of Emeric Count Teckely. In Four Books. Wherein are related ... Transactions in Hungary and the Ottoman Empire, from ... 1656, till ... 1691. Tim. Goodwin. 1693, FIRST ENGLISH EDITION, engraved frontispiece portrait by P. Bouche, fore-edge shaved, title printed in red and black, imprimatur leaf at the beginning, pp. xii, 175, 84, 67, [16], 12mo., contemp. speckled calf, backstrip with four raised bands, decorated in blue, red morocco label with gilt lettering in the second compartment, rebacked and repaired, good (ESTC R39725; Wing L822) £650.00

The first English edition of the most detailed contemporary biography of Imre Teckely (Tokoly), translated from the original French of Jean Le Clerc, which was published in the same year. It also charts the history of Ottoman Hungary during this very dynamic period. Under Ottoman rule, peace was fragile: the Habsburgs pursued plans to liberate the land from the Muslim invaders, and to promote the Counter reformation with the help of agents. Using Ottoman Hungary as their base, the Ottomans attempted to use this religious division of their Christian opponents in 1683 when they laid siege to Vienna for the second time. Under the terms of the Treaty of Karlowitz, which ended the Great Turkish War in 1699, the Ottomans ceded nearly all the territory they had taken from the Kingdom of Hungary.

An integral part of mathematical history

137. (Leibniz. Calculus.) ACTA ERUDITORUM. Anno MDCLXXXIV publicata. [includes:] Nova methodus pro maximis & minimis, itemque tangentibus, quae nec fractas, nec irrationalles quantitates moratur, & singulare pro illis calculi genus, per G.G.L. Leipzig: Prostaut apud J. Grossium & J.F. Gletitschium. 1684, FIRST PRINTED ACCOUNT OF THE CALCULUS (pp. 467-472), 14 plates (some folding), browned and spotted (mostly lightly), one plate with a reinforced horizontal tear, the three first leaves with edges unobtrusively strengthened, ownership inscription of J Yonge (1919) to title, pp. [x], 591, [7], 4to., modern dark brown calf, boards panelled with a narrow double blind fillet, the inner panel with blind cornerpieces, backstrip with five blind-dotted raised bands, red morocco label in second compartment, the rest with a central blind tool, new endpapers, old Vol. II written on fore-edge (inaccurately, as this is the third issue of the journal), good (VD17 547:651861F; PMM 160) £7,000.00

The dispute between Isaac Newton and Gottfried Wilhelm Leibniz over priority in the discovery of the infinitesimal calculus is an infamous part of mathematical history. Leibniz, developing his ideas on the subject, briefly corresponded with Newton through an intermediary in 1676, but Newton, ever reclusive, only hinted at his theories and ended the communication after two letters. Leibniz published his work in this, the 1684 issue of the journal he edited, Acta Eruditorum. It only in 1699 that the argument truly began, with the publication of Newton’s two letters to Leibniz as well as the mathematician Fatio de Duillier’s assertion of Newton’s primacy. It reached its peak in 1711-12, when Newton arranged for the Royal Society to have a committee ‘try the case’; it naturally supported him and he reviewed its report (which he had written) anonymously and favourably.
Throughout the argument, Leibniz seems to come out better: he was inarguably the first to publish anything about the calculus – the paper printed here – and it was only his failure to acknowledge Newton’s brief communication that set off the debate. Newton and his followers then accused Leibniz outright of plagiarism, and responded to a reasoned suggestion of equal and independent credit with the Royal Society’s rigged committee. The argument split English and Continental mathematics for the next hundred years, and the modern acceptance of independent discovery, but with Leibniz’s notation and terminology as the universal standard, seems a just outcome at last.

138. Lever (Charles) Davenport Dunn: A Man of Our Day... With Illustrations by “Phiz”. Chapman and Hall. 1859, FIRST EDITION, bound from the parts, etched frontispiece, additional title-page, and 42 plates by Phiz, occasional foxing; pp.vii, 695, 8vo., contemp. dark blue calf, spine gilt panelled and with gilt decorated low raised bands, gilt lettered red leather label in second compartment, marbled sides, edges and endpapers, the sides slightly rubbed, good (Sadleir 1401; Wolff 4084) £170.00

Wolff quotes Sadleir as referring to this work as ‘the rarest of the 8vo. novels first published in parts’, a statement with which he ‘would emphatically agree.’

139. (Liverpool) Enfield (William) An Essay towards the History of Liverpool [sic], drawn up from papers left by Mr. George Perry... With views of the principal public structures, a chart of the harbour, and a map of the environs. The second edition, with additions. Joseph Johnson. 1774, 3 folding maps and charts and 9 engraved plates many after P. P. Burdett, including a fine view of the Custom House and harbour, subscribers’ list, pp. vi, [vi], 88, 87-90, 89-116, folio, contemp. calfi, neatly rebacked, backstrip ruled in gilt and with five raised bands, red morocco label with gilt lettering, fine (ESTC T145378; Lowndes I, p.739) £500.00

The first history of Liverpool by a dissenting divine who began his career in that city in 1763, when he was 22. This is in fact a re-issue of the sheets of the first edition of the year before, with a new title page and preface, and four new pages of material inserted between pp. 88 and 89. It contains a wealth of historic and scientific information including details of the fish caught, the state of commerce, exports and imports, etc.

First appearance of Locke’s *Essay Concerning Human Understanding

140. Locke (John, contributor), and Le Clerc (J ) and J. C. de la Croze, (editors.) Bibliothèque Universelle et Historique de l’Année M.D.C.LXXXVIII. Tome Huitieme. Amsterdam: Wolfgang, Waesberg Boom, & van Someren. 1688, FIRST EDITION, title-page with woodcut vignette, woodcut initial letters and head-pieces, folding chart, pp. [xii], 538, [24], 12mo., contemp. sprinkled calf, backstrip with four raised bands, maroon morocco label with gilt lettering, fine (Yolton 273; Graesse IV 137) £1,500.00

This scarce volume contains the first publication in any form of Locke’s Essay Concerning Human Understanding. At the time of publication, Locke was living in exile in Amsterdam, and writing; he had begun the Essay as early as 1671, and finished it in 1686. However, its first publication in English would not appear until 1690. In the meantime, with the assistance of Jean Le Clerc (1657-1736), the Protestant theologian and an editor of the Bibliothèque Universelle et Historique, Locke produced an abridged French-language version, which is printed here as Art. II, pp. 49-142 under the title Extrait d’un livre Anglois... intitulé essai philosophique concernant l’entendement. Locke had additional private copies produced, and distributed them to friends and acquaintances in England and the Netherlands, beginning the spread of his ideas a full two years before Thos. Bassett printed the first English edition.

This volume contains the entire year’s production of the Bibliothèque for 1688, which appeared monthly or bi-monthly between 1686 and 1693. In the March issue, there is a review of Newton’s Principia which has been attributed to Locke. A number of other notable literary and scientific figures also contributed reviews to the journal.

141. Locke (John) An Essay Concerning Humane Understanding, in Four Books. ... The Fourth Edition, with large Additions. For Avnsham and John Churchil [sic]. 1700, engraved portrait by P. Vanderbanck after Sylvester Bronower, title with printed double rule, Gg1 misbound before Hz, pp. [xii], 1-90, 96, 95-218, 225-226, 219-224, 233-379, 390-391, 382-438, [12], (as called for), folio, contemp. ‘Cambridge pane’ sprinkled calf, the backstrip with six raised bands and ink lettering in the second compartment, the sides panelled with sprinkled, ‘plain’ and darkened calf, rubbed, the joints cracking at the head but still strong, corners worn with abrasions, armorial bookplate of Thomas Sneyd, sound (Wing L2742; ESTC R039072; Alston 7:80; Yolton 64)

£1,800.00

Major changes to this, the fourth edition of Locke’s Essay, are a new chapter entitled ‘Of the Association of Ideas’ and another ‘Of Enthusiasm’. In a letter to Dr. Thomas Molyneux in January 1699 Locke stated that the last (i.e. third) edition of the Essay ‘is now out of print.’ A new agreement was signed with the publishers which also included further additions to it: improvements in italicisation and punctuation and the occasional addition or revision (Yolton).

142. Locke (John) An Essay concerning Human Understanding. ... The twenty-fourth edition. To which are now added, 1. Analysis of Mr. Locke’s Doctrine of Ideas ... II. A Defence of Mr. Locke’s Opinion concerning Personal Identity ... III. A Treatise on the Conduct of Understanding [etc.]. Extracted from the Author’s works. In two volumes. C. and J. Rivington: Longman and Co., [etc.]/1824, folding chart, a little foxing, pp. [xxxi], 510; [xvi], 459, [27], 8vo., contemp. polished calf, the backstrips with wide raised bands decoarted with gilt fillets and floral tools, the sides with triple gilt fillet borders, marbled edges and endpapers, fine

The importance of Locke’s Essay cannot be overstated. In its attempt to estimate critically the certainty and adequacy of human knowledge when confronted with God and the universe, it is the ‘first modern philosophy of science ... the objects of perception are not things but ideas derived in particular from the external world and dependent, to some extent, on our own minds for their existence’ (Cranston, DNB).

143. [Locke (John)] Some Thoughts concerning Education. The Fourth Edition Enlarged. A. and J. Churchill. 1699, title printed within double rule border, ownership signature of Cha. Chichester dated 1744, one or two jottings on the pastedowns, including ‘God save the King’ in an early hand on the rear pastedown, pp. [viii], 368, 367-380, [2], sm.8vo., cont. sprinkled calf; the backstrip with five raised bands, the sides with panels in blind, good (ESTC R866; Wing L2764; Yolton 168; Attig 525)

£500.00

‘This treatise ... occupies a place in the history of education similar to that of his Essay of Human Understanding in epistemology. It has been, perhaps, even more frequently reprinted and translated’ (Pforzheimer). Locke laid great stress on the importance of experience in education. He held that ‘the minds of children [are] as easily turned, this way or that, as water itself.’ He did not consider that there were great differences in the innate capacity to learn: ‘we are born with faculties and powers, capable almost of anything ... As it is in the body, so it is in the mind, practice make it what it is.' His view was that education had to fit the child for the world, not just for university.

Locke’s book can justly be considered the greatest book of its time on education, and a powerful condemnation of the manner of education then in fashion. It owes a great deal to Montaigne in its view of the importance of the discipline of judgement and character above mere learning. Locke’s view was that a child’s training should be a quasi-moral one, with intellectual exercise occupying a subordinate role intended to convey a sense of what should be achieved at a later stage. He advocated modern studies, and considered that academies should emphasise the manual arts.

144. (London.) BRAYLEY (Edward Wedlake) The History and Antiquities of the Abbey Church of St. Peter, Westminster including Notices and biographical Memoirs of the Abbots and Deans of that Foundation. Illustrated by John Preston Neale. In two volumes. 1818-23, LARGE PAPER COPY, 62 engraved plates by J. P. Neale, including frontispieces, and additional titles, engraved dedication list of subscribers, pp. 227, [3], 119-120, [16], 72, [10]; 304, [40], large folio, contemp. half calf, rebacked, backstrips with six raised bands ruled in gilt, morocco labels with gilt lettering, one label chipped, marbled boards, bookplates of Sir Gore Ouseley, good £380.00

‘That this work is usually known as “Neale’s Westminster Abbey” is a tribute to the superb quality of the illustrations. The text is far from negligible and has been eulogized by Francis Bond. The standard work on Westminster Abbey, it incorporates the information on preceding writers and to it all books on Westminster published since are but supplementary’ (Adams, London Illustrated, 123).

145. (London.) NICHOLS (J. B.) Account of the Royal Hospital and Collegiate Church of Saint Katharine, near the Tower of London. John Nichols. 1824, large folding engraved frontispiece of the interior of the Church by J. Roberts after J. Carter, and 5 engraved plates, contemp. ownership inscription on the endpaper pp. iv, 61, 4to., orig. half damson morocco-grain cloth and grey boards, the backstrip lettered vertically in gilt, faded, 4to., good £90.00

This work intentionally records the details of the ancient church, which even at this time, was threatened by being engulfed by a commercial project. The application for St. Katharine’s Docks had just been withdrawn, with the implication that it would be finally successful.

146. McCrie (Thomas) Annals of the English Presbytery. From the earliest Period to the Present Time. [Together two volumes.] *James Nisbet & Co. 1872, pp. xii, [2], 324, 8vo., uniformly bound with]:

—. The Story of the Scottish Church, Blackie & Son. 1875, pp. xv, [1], 576 contemp. polished half calf, gilt panelled spines, red morocco labels with gilt lettering, marbled sides and endpapers (marbling varies on the two volumes), fine £180.00

Thomas McCrie, (1797–1875), was an ecclesiastical historian and Free Church of Scotland minister.

147. (Manchester.) [ASTON (Joseph)] The Manchester Guide. A brief historical Description of the Towns of Manchester & Salford, and the charitable and literary Institutions. Manchester: Joseph Ashton. 1804, folding engraved map, slightly foxed, and offset on to title, errata leaf, pp. [viii], 290, [2], 8vo., contemp. half calf, the backstrip with gilt ruled raised bands, maroon morocco label with gilt lettering, rebacked and recornered, marbled boards, very good £300.00

This appears to be the first guide of Manchester. The author describes that such had ‘long been wanted’ for ‘a place which has become of so much commercial and national consequence’.
148. Manuscript Verse Miscellany collected by Sir William Ouseley. MANUSCRIPT, written in a neat hand in black ink, 4 original pen, ink and wash drawings, including one full page and 3 oval vignettes, all signed or initialed Gore Ouseley, one dated 1786, one leaf with minor worming to the edge, 87 unnumbered leaves, 8vo., nineteenth century polished calf, the backstrip panelled in gilt, with five raised bands, gilt rope tooling and fillets, black morocco label with gilt lettering, the sides with triple gilt fillet borders and the upper cover titled in gilt ‘Poems by Sir William Ouseley’, marbled endpapers and edges, good £400.00

Sir William Ouseley (1767-1842) came from the famous family of orientalists and diplomats: his brother Sir Gore Ouseley (1770-1844), a notable oriental scholar at a time when that subject was in its infancy, did much to encourage its emergence through his complementary literary and archaeological interests. It was not just his linguistic skill that was remarkable: his cultural sympathy was noticeable. The original watercolours in this volume of poetry are signed by him. Sir William Ouseley published numerous other books on oriental subjects, notably his Oriental Collection (3 vols., 1797-9) and translated several works from Persian. This collection of manuscript poetry by Gray, Grainger, Langhorne, Hannah More and Logan, also includes a poem ‘Edgar and Ellen’ which is signed by Ouseley himself.

149. Mason (William) The English Garden. A Poem. In Four Books. York; London: Printed by A. Ward; H. Goldney [&c.] 1772-1781, FIRST EDITIONS, advertisement leaf in Book 2 discarded, general title (issued with Book 4) bound at front, some spotting/foxing and faint browning, pp. [vi], 30, [6], 33, [5], 32, [2], 54, 4to., modern half sprinkled tan calf with marbled boards, backstrip with five raised bands divided by gilt rules, green morocco label in second compartment, the rest with small central leaf tool, good (Gaskell 11, 20, 24, 26; ESTC T32680, T32684, T32685, T32682) £275.00

The first (trade) editions of all four books of Mason’s didactic poem on landscaping and gardening (based on Virgil’s Georgics). Book 2 is the second, but first trade, edition, the first having been privately printed a year before; the others are the first editions. Gaskell notes: ‘The first edition of the first book [...] was the only part to be issued in post quarto, the second edition and the other three books following in demy quarto; however, using the second edition of Book 1 and the general title-page supplied with Book 4, the whole work could be bound up together.’ This collection, on the other hand, appears to have made using the post first edition of Book 1, with the other volumes trimmed down to its size - the margins are noticeably smaller in Books 2-4 (though still more than adequate).

150. (Mathematics.) Pitiscus (Bartholomaeus) Trigonometriae sive de dimensione triangulorum. Libri quinque, item problematum variorum ... Editio secunda, et aucta additis multis non vulgaribus. [With:] Canon Triangulorum Emendatissimus ... Pertinens Ad Trigonometriam Bartholomei Pitisci. Augsburg: typis Johannis Praetorii. 1608, wood engraved figures in letterpress, some light browning, first few gatherings with a small wormhole, often touching a letter but not affecting legibility, pp. [xii], [333], [1], [2] (blank), 219, sm.4to., contemp. vellum, smooth backstrip, with remains of later manuscript titled paper label, overlapping fore-edges, ties removed, good (VD17 12:194934E, 23:240343Q; Graesse V 306) £900.00

Pitiscus studied theology at Heidelberg, then the well known centre for Irenical theology studies, but his real talents lay in mathematics and particularly trigonometry. Indeed he was the first to use the word ‘trigonometry’. The present work was first published as the last part of Scultetus’ Sphaericorum libri tres methodice conscripti et utilibus scholiis expositi (Heidelberg, 1595). It was revised and published separately in Augsburg in 1600. This is the second, much enlarged, Augsburg edition.
Among much pioneering work Pitiscus was the first to give a real proof for the cosine theorem, and was later called on to correct the tables in Rheticus’ Opus Palatinum de triangulis which were found to be inaccurate. His work on the manuscripts led to many other discoveries. His achievements are important both for his Rheticus revision, and for this systematic textbook which ‘used all six of the trigonometric functions’ (DSB). The second part included here, which VDI7 counts as a separate publication though it looks like an added part from the same printer and of the same date, is a set of tables of values for trigonometric functions.

Settling the shape of the earth

151. Maupertuis (Pierre Louis) La Figure de la Terre, déterminée par les observations De Messieurs de Maupertuis, Claraut, Camus, Le Monnier [et al.] Paris: De l’Imprimerie Royale. 1738, FIRST EDITION, 1 engraved folding map and 9 engraved folding diagrams, light spotting and some faint toning in places, pp. xxiv, [4], 184, 8vo., modern half calf with marbled boards, backstrip with five raised bands between double gilt fillets, red morocco label in second compartment, very good £600.00

Pierre Louis Maupertuis (1698-1759), the French mathematician, was one of the first exponents of Isaac Newton’s theories in France. When in the 1730s the exact shape of the earth became a matter of debate in France – whether the oblate spheroid called for by Newton’s work or the prolate spheroid of Cassini – Maupertuis led an expedition to Lapland to answer the question by measuring a degree of meridian there, to be compared with the same measurement made by an expedition to Peru. This book, which was also published in Amsterdam and London in the same year, recounts that journey and the measurements, settling the matter for the oblate spheroid and making Maupertuis’s name in the scientific world.

152. (Medicine.) Clutterbuck (Henry) An Inquiry into the Seat and Nature of Fever; as deducible from the Phenomena, Causes, and Consequences of the Disease, the effects of Remedies, and the Appearances on Dissection. ... Part the First. Containing the general Doctrine of Fever. By Knight & Compton for T. Boosey [etc]. 1807, FIRST EDITION, with half-title and publishers’ catalogue, pp. xx, 440, 4, 8vo., contemp. red half roan, the flat backstrip ruled in and titled in gilt, marbled boards, very good £250.00

Clutterbuck, originally a Cornishman, passed as a member of the Company of Surgeons in 1790 and settled to general practice at Walbrook in the City of London, where he soon prospered. This was helped by his publishing the Medical and Surgical Review between 1794. He then graduated MD from Glasgow in 1804. Clutterbuck was very friendly with Lettsom, and inherited much of his practice. This flourished among the merchants and middle classes of London.

Although the title page states that this is ‘Part the First’, no second part is recorded in COPAC. A second edition, slightly expanded, did appear in 1825.

153. (Medicine.) Ficino (Marsilio) Contro alla Peste. Insieme con Tommaso del Garbo, Mengo da Faenza, & altri autori, e ricette sopra la medesima materia. Florence: Apresso i Giunti. 1576, woodcut device on title and initials elsewhere, one or two old marginal notes and underlining, just a touch of foxing and a few small stains in places, library withdrawn stamps to title (dated
The second sixteenth-century edition (preceded by one in 1523; an earlier printed edition was c.1481) of Ficino’s treatise on the plague, to which is added Tommaso del Garbo’s earlier treatise and several letters by other authors, all on the same subject. The plague had broken out in Italy and Sicily in the 1570s, inspiring the reprinting of these texts and others which suggest remedies and preventatives. Ficino (1433-1499) was the first translator of Plato’s complete works into Latin and is more generally known for his Neoplatonist philosophy, but composed this treatise, attributing the contagion to specific properties of bad air, during the outbreak of plague in 1478-9.

154. (Medicine.) HAMILTON (Alexander) A Treatise on the Management of Female Complaints, and of Children in early Infancy. Edinburgh: Peter Hill. 1792, first edition, ownership inscription to title of James Stitt (1795), pp. xx, 549, 8vo., contemporary quarter calf with vellum corners, rebacked, backstrip panelled with gilt rules, red morocco label with gilt lettering, boards a little rubbed, small modern booklabel to front pastedown, old small ink inscription of James Rowan to front board, good (estc T117281; Wellcome III, 202)

£450.00

Alexander Hamilton (1739-1802) was Professor of Midwifery at the University of Edinburgh and a successful practitioner and writer on midwifery. He was the author of a number of treatises on the theory and practice of midwifery and on the treatment of the diseases of women and infants. We have found record of an Irish surgeon named James Stitt who married in 1796; he may have been the first owner of this copy.

155. (Medicine.) QUINCY (John) Dr Carr’s Medicinal Epistles upon several Occasions. Done into English, as a Supplement to the Explanations of Sanctorius’s Aphorisms. For William Newton. 1714, first edition, title with elegant ownership inscription of Edward Griffith 1780, neat tear to B3 repaired, pp. [ii], iv, [ii], 168, 8vo., mottled calf antique, the backstrip with infilled panels in gilt, red morocco label with gilt lettering, the covers panelled in blind, good (estc T099082)

£200.00

Contains epistles on a wide range of medical subjects including the effects of the use of tobacco, the properties of liquor, confirming pregnancy through the urine, and even sex-changes. Quinacy, apothecary and physician, studied mathematics and the philosophy of Newton, and published a number of medical works.

156. (Medicine.) RAMAZZINI (B.) De Morbis Artificum ... Diatriba ... Nunc accedit supplementum ejusdem argumenti, ac Dissertatio de Sacrarum Virginium Valetudine tuenda. Padua: Per Jo. Baptistam Conzatrum. 1713, decorative initials, pp. [xvi], 453, [26], 8vo., nineteenth-century dark blue Italian boards, backstrip with green label and gilt lettering, extremities a little rubbed, good (Garrison & Morton 2121)

£850.00

The importance of this work is born out by the fact that this expanded Latin edition of the first systematic treatise on occupational diseases by Bernardo Ramazzini (1633-1714) was translated into English, edited by W. C. Wright and still published in 1940 as a core work on the subject. Ramazzini was a practicing physician at Modena in Italy and professor of medicine at Modena and later at Padua. This work earned him the title of ‘the father of industrial hygiene’. It covers miner’s pneumoconiosis and other miner’s diseases; lead-poisoning of potters; silicosis of stonemasons; eye-trouble of gilders, printers and other graphic artisans; diseases among metal-workers; and even with the ‘diseases of monks, nuns, capitalists and scholars’. He presents methods of preventing or curing illnesses caused by at least 52 trades and professions. The work also includes ten pages on tobacco and a chapter on the diseases of literary men, not included in other editions. Ramazzini was the first to recognize the social significance of occupational diseases, and with the publication of this book a new field of clinical and scientific medicine was opened.
Early Midwifery

157. (Medicine.) [Roessler (Eucharius)] De Partu Hominis, et quae circa ipsum accidunt, adeoq[ue] de parturientum & infantium morbis atque cura, Frankfurt: apud Hær. Chr. Egen[olphum]. [1556], large woodcut on the title-page showing midwives at work, 30 woodcuts in the text, lower inner corners of first few leaves dampstained, pp. 69, [3], 8vo., later calf-backed decorated boards, the joints weak, sound (VD16 R2865; not in Adams; Wellcome; Durling) £950.00

A Latin edition of Roessler’s famous Rosengraten, the first printed book on midwifery. The first edition was published in German in 1513 and numerous vernacular editions appeared. The Latin translation by Roessler’s son was intended for medics rather than midwives. It, too, was popular; first published in 1532, it was reissued at least eleven times. The present edition closely shadows the original text, though the illustrations to the section on paediatrics are additional. It is also scarce: we have not been able to trace any copies in COPAC, and OCLC records only one physical copy outside of Germany, in the Czech Republic.

158. (Medicine). Wiseman (Richard) Severall Chirurgicall Treatises. Printed by E. Flesher and I, Macock, for R. Royston Bookseller to His Most Sacred majesty, and B. Took, at the Ship in St. Paul’s Church-yard. 1676, FIRST EDITION, half-title with the ownership signature of ‘A Rowlands Surgeon Nanty Glo. 1816,’ the fore-edge a little frayed and dampstained and repaired at verso, one or two other edges dampstained, p. [xvi], 498, 79, [14], folio, modern calf, backstrip with five raised bands, red morocco title label, gilt lettering, good (Garrison & Morton 5573; Wing W3107) £1,700.00

Considered to be the father of modern surgery, and considerably in advance of his time, Wiseman was the the best known and most skillful surgeon of his era. His Chirurgicall Treatises contains eight treatises on: tumours, ulcers, diseases of the anus, scrofula, wounds, gun-shot wounds, fractures, and venereal disease. ‘Wiseman ranks in surgery as high as Sydenham does in medicine. He made many valuable contributions to the subject; he was the first to describe tuberculosis of the joints ... and he gave a good account of gunshot wounds. Wiseman became surgeon to Charles II in 1672’ (Garrison & Morton).
159. Merced (George) Poems. John W. Parker & Son. [1851.] FIRST EDITION, SIGNED BY THE AUTHOR on the title-page, errata slip tipped in, paper age-toned, a few faint spots, small stain to edge of dedication leaf and the next, very slight chipping to a few edges, pp. [viii], 159, [1]. 8vo., orig. dark violet cloth, boards blocked with an elaborate border and central decoration, backstrip lettered in gilt, a little scuffed at extremities, backstrip slightly faded, bookplate of Clement K. Shorter, housed in a modern fire-resistant pull-off case of navy blue morocco by Zaehnsdorf, good (Collie XXXVI; Buxton Forman 1) £800.00

The first edition of George Meredith’s first book, a collection of poems dedicated to his new father-in-law, Thomas Love Peacock. After the marriage fell apart in 1858 he looked back less kindly on the collection, and expressed a wish to suppress it. Some sources suggest he did destroy copies, though there is no firm evidence for this.

This is the Shorter-Dannay copy, which belonged to the journalist Clement King Shorter (1857-1926); though it has no other mark of ownership, it was later sold at Christie’s (1983) as part of the library of Frederic Dannay, one half of the pseudonymous mystery novelist Ellery Queen. The scarcer (and possibly earlier) vertically-ribbed violet cloth binding, in variance to the more usually seen horizontally-ribbed green cloth with the same blind-stamping, matches one in the Morris Parrish collection at Princeton which was inscribed to Charlotte Brontë (as ‘the author of Jane Eyre’).

160. (Mexico.) Prescott (William H.) History of the Conquest of Mexico, with a preliminary view of the ancient Mexican civilization, and the life of the conqueror, Hernando Cortés. Second edition. In Three volumes. Richard Bentley. 1844, engraved frontispiece portraits to each vol. foxed, 2 engraved maps, one folding, one double-page, one engraved plate, pp. xxx, 442; xvi, 439; xvi, 455, 8vo., slightly later polished calf, the backstrips panelled and elaborately tooled in gilt, russet and olive morocco labels with gilt lettering, sides with triple gilt fillet borders, marbled edges, bookplate, very slightly rubbed, very good (Sabin 65262) £320.00

A popular history of Cortes’s conquest of Mexico, first published in 1843 and still being reprinted today.

161. Modius (Franciscus) Cleri totius Romanae Ecclesiae subjecti, seu, Pontificiorum ordinum omnium omnino vtriusque sexvbs, habitus, artificiosissimus figuris ... nunc primum à Iudoco Ammanno expressi ... Addito libello singulari eiusdem Francisci Modii Brug, in quo cuiusque ordinis Ecclesiasticorum origo, progressus & vestitus ratio breuiter ex variis historicis delineatur. Frankfurt: sump.tib. Sigismundi Feyrabendi. 1585, large woodcut of the Pope on the title, 102 woodcuts of clerical costumes by Jost Amman, devices on second title and colophon leaf, woodcut initials, one or two edges dampstained, ink ownership signatures to title, pp. [212], small 4to., nineteenth century vellum, the backstrip lettered in black ink and decorated with coloured inks, a little stained and rubbed (Adams A966 & M1535; Colas 120) £1,950.00

This work is the fruit of the creative partnership of Jost Amman and publisher Sigismund Feyrabend. Together, in the sixteenth century, they produced a number of books, perhaps amongst the finest examples of the use of the woodcut for illustration. Amman (1539-1591) was known for being master of the woodcut, and particularly for the correctness and accuracy of detail, especially as far as costume was concerned. Amman lists the work twice, once under Amman and once under Modius.
162. Molière (Jean Baptiste Poquelin de) Les Femmes scâvantes, comédie. Paris: Suivant la Copie imprimé. 1696, engraving frontispiece showing two ladies discoursing in a library, fore-margin of last leaf neatly restored, wormhole through margin of last few leaves, a little browned, pp. 85, 8vo., later tree calf, rebacked, preserving some of the original backstrip, beige morocco label with gilt lettering, corners knocked, marbled endpapers, sound

An attractive small edition of Molière’s popular satire on academic pretension, female education and precociousness.

163. Morgan (Thomas) Physico-Theology: or, a philosophico-moral disquisition concerning human nature, free agency, moral government, and divine providence. Printed for T. Cox. 1741, FIRST EDITION, inscription of Walter Bowman to verso of title, pp. vii, [1], 353, [15], 8vo., contemp. half calf with marbled paper boards, backstrip with five raised bands between gilt rolls, black morocco label in second compartment, the rest with central lozenges comprising flower and acorn tools, rubbed, joints cracking but sound, small loss at ends of backstrips, sound (ESTC T99580)

£300.00

With this volume Morgan, a controversial deist and medical writer, ‘generated further controversy by casting doubt upon the moral probity of the Old Testament patriarchs’ (ODNB). He begins by deriving from the physical properties of the world – referencing mechanics, gravity, and Newton’s theory of light – the existence of God, and continues to morality and free will, concluding that ‘The moral Character, or the prevailing Love, Desire and Pursuit of Truth, Order and Rectitude, is the divine Stamp and Signature upon the Mind or Soul of Man’ (p. 350).
164. Morris (Beverley R.) British Game Birds and Wildfowl. Groombridge and Sons. [c.1890], 60 hand-coloured plates, tissue guards, a few foxspots, pp. iv, 254, large 4to., contemp. half green pebbled roan, green cloth boards, backstrip with five raised bands, gilt lettered direct in second compartment, the rest with double gilt fillet border, marbled endpapers, t.e.g., a little scuffed around the edges, bookplates of E.L. Lauder-Watson and Commander George Couper of the Royal Navy, very good (Anker 345)

Beverley Morris, the younger brother of Francis, was also a keen ornithologist and naturalist – Francis took over the editorship of The Naturalist from Beverley – and this book, like many of Francis’s, was produced in collaboration with the engraver Benjamin Fawcett, who printed the book and the hand-coloured wood engravings. It saw several editions, this being the undated third edition – about which there is some confusion: Anker gives the 3rd edition date as 1881, but no library records in COPAC give that; 1889 is often suggested, but again not by any library in COPAC. What is certain is that it precedes the 2-volume fourth edition edited by Tegetmeir in 1895, and most likely also the 1891 printing of the third edition by Nimmo.

165. Mundy (Francis Noel Clarke) Needwood Forest. Written in the Year M.DCC.LXXVI. Lichfield: John Jackson [privately printed]. 1776, FIRST EDITION, PRESENTATION COPY, inscribed on the title in ink ‘From the Author 1808’ and with the ownership inscription of Elizabeth Evans, the recipient, bound without frontispieces, pp. 52, sm. 4to.,

[bound with:]
—. The Fall of Needwood, also an inscribed PRESENTATION COPY, Derby: At The Office of J. Drewry, 1808, pp. 45, [2], 49-50 contemporary red straight-grained morocco, gilt key-pattern borders on sides, spine panelled in gilt with gilt lettering, a.e.g., morocco turn-ins with gilt dentelles, stain at the inner hinges, slightly rubbed, corners knocked, engraved bookplates of E. & F. Evans and A.J. Clay, good (ESTC T92869)

Two poems written before and after the Enclosure Act of 1803 extolling the virtues of the forest commonly associated with Sir Gawain’s Green Knight, and regretting its deforestation. In the first part, the poems addressed to the author are thought to be by Erasmus Darwin, Anna Seward, Brooke Boothby and Erasmus Darwin, junior.

This seems to be a special copy for presentation, possibly bound up before the frontispieces were completed, and with an additional poem at the end. A contemporary seven-line ink inscription on the front free endpaper states that ‘this volume was presented to Miss Evans of Darby ... Mundy of Markeaton Hall in the County of Darby was a magistrate of unblemished reputation ... These poems were printed for private circulation and never published. This copy has an additional poem printed upon a separate half-sheet (pages 49-50) in 1809.’ The poem is entitled ‘On a Picture by R.R. Reinagle’ and has a pencilled note, apparently in the same hand as other notes throughout, reading ‘I have this picture R. Simms.’

166. Musgrave (William) Belgium Britannicum in quo illius limites, fluvi, urbes, viae militares, populus, lingua, dii, monumenta, aliaque permulta clarius & uberiex exponuntur. Iscae Dunmoniorum [Exeter]: Typis Geo. Bishop. 1719, engraved portrait frontispiece by Van der Gusht after Gandy, engraved dedication leaf, folding map and 15 plates (two with tears at fold, one slightly cropped), a little minor spotting, armorial bookplate of the Rt. Hon. Charles Bathurst of Lydney Park to front pastedown, pp. [viii], 221, [20], 8vo., contemp. Cambridge-style panelled calf with plain and sprinkled panels, backstrip with five raised bands (darkened), joints cracked, corners a touch worn, good (ESTC T147215)

The first volume (though third published) of the antiquary William Musgrave’s (1655-1721) study of Roman-era remains in ‘the area formerly inhabited by the Belgae, extending from Hampshire through Wiltshire to Somerset’ (ODNB).
167. (Music) Ouseley (Sir Frederick Arthur Gore) The Morning and Evening Service together with the Office for the Holy Communion. Set to music for eight-part chorus and solo voices, with accompaniments for a full orchestra and organ. Novello, Ewer and Co. 1884, musical score, pp. 184, folio, (overall 372 x 278mm.), twentieth century dark blue polished calf, the backstrip with five raised bands with gilt fillet and rope toothing, gilt lettering and repeated decoration, the sides with double gilt fillets, the upper cover with the gilt arms of ‘Collegium Sancti Michaelis’, a.e.g., bookplate of St. Michael’s College, Tenbury and prize inscription dated 1924 to E. G. Ensor, marbled endpapers, a few scuffmarks, good £120.00

A note on the front endpaper states that this book was ‘given to St. Michael’s College, Tenbury Wells by Mary Ensor in 1966 and was bound on the instruction of R. Fellowes, Director of Music at Windsor & bound by the Queen’s binder.’ Sir Frederick Ouseley came from a multitalented family: for a manuscript collection by Ouseley’s uncle with watercolours by his father, see item 148 above.

168. (New Zealand.) Rusden (G[eorge] W[illiam]) History of New Zealand. In three volumes. Chapman and Hall. 1883 [1889], second edition, half-titles, vol. i with folding frontispiece map (small closed handling tear), plans, charts, tables, etc. in accompanying vols., pp. [v], vi-viii, [iv], 655; (vi), 606, [i], iv-viii (appendix); (vi), 540, 40 (publisher’s catalogue), 8vo., orig. olive-green cloth, backstrips gilt lettered with blackstamped designs at head and tail, upper boards with backstrip design repeated, blindstamped publisher device on lower boards, deep green endpapers (vol. i with mod. bookplate on free endpaper recto), very good (Hocken p.348) £175.00

Hocken praises the work thus: ‘full and scholarly, abounding in laborious research and criticism, discounted by strong philo-Maori views, and censure on the treatment adopted towards the natives since our first contact with them, and especially during the war of 1860-69. An outcome of this was the author was tried for libel ... and was mulcted in heavy costs, his History being also surpressed. Some chose to view the work as a “bitter political libel” rather than a philosophical history.’

This set, the second edition, was bound up using the title-pages of the first, and was issued with the previous objectionable passages excised.

169. (Newfoundland.) Prowse (D.W.) A History of Newfoundland from the English, Colonial, and Foreign Records. Macmillan and Co. 1895, first edition, 35 plates and 1 large folding colour map, many illustrations in text, some scattered light foxing, pp. xxiii, [i], 742, large 8vo., orig. blue cloth, uniformly faded to brown (as often), backstrip lettered in gilt, gilt vignette of a ship to front board, t.e.g., largely uncut, cloth a little scuffed, very good £200.00

‘A hundred years after its appearance in 1895 Prowse’s History remains unchallenged, for the four centuries that it covers, as the best ... general history of Newfoundland...His bibliography of the published sources used in writing the book stood for decades as the most comprehensive listing in print’ (DCB). Edmund Gosse, who was a lifelong friend, provides a short preface.

170. Oliphant (Margaret) The Life of Edward Irving, minister of the National Scotch Church, London. In two volumes. Hurst and Blackett. 1862, first edition, engraved portrait frontispiece, vol. ii half-title discarded, pp. xiv, 420; ix, 503, 8vo., contemp. half calf over marbled boards, backstrips with five gilt-rolled raised bands between double gilt fillets, red morocco labels in second compartments and brown in fourth, the rest with a crenellated gilt roll at top and bottom, a little rubbed, very good £125.00

After her husband’s death in 1859, Mrs Margaret Oliphant became the sole provider for three children, with her income coming exclusively from the writing she did for the publisher William Blackwood. Luckily, she was a prolific and popular author. She was commissioned to write this biography by Irving’s family, and discovered that the field suited her, writing half a dozen others on subjects from Richard Brinsley Sheridan to Queen Victoria.
171. (Ornithology.) KENNEDY (Alexander W[illiam] M[axwell] Clark) The Birds of Berkshire and Buckinghamshire: a Contribution to the Natural History of the two Counties. Eton: Ingaltou & Drake. 1868, FIRST EDITION, 4 hand-tinted albumen photographs backed onto stiffened Cartridge paper, each with tissue guard, pp. xv, 232, cr.8vo., orig. green cloth by Burn (their ticket at foot of rear pastedown), blocked on front cover and backstrip in gilt (backstrip with gilt vignette of a Grebe, upper board with that of a Great Bustard) brown chalked endpapers, bookplate of Longworth House, hinges a little weak, very good (Gernsheim Incunabula 436; Mullens & Swann p. 325) £230.00

The photographs represent the black tern, long-eared owl, hoopoe, and hooded crow. The work was written when the author was only sixteen and still at Eton College; numerous sources suggest that it is the first work on birds to feature photographs.

172. (Oxford. University.) [ACKERMANN (Rudolph)] A History of the University of Oxford, its Colleges, Halls, and Public Buildings. 2 Vols. R. Ackermann. 1814, aquatinted frontispieces and 62 plates, 17 line and stipple plates of University costume, all hand coloured, uncoloured stipple-engraved portrait, without portraits of founders (as often), half-titles present, some minor offsetting of plates to text (as usual), pp. xiv, xxv, [1] (blank), 275, [1] (blank), [6] (Index); [iv], 262, [6] (Index), [2], 4to., modern highly polished red stained calf, small crack at head of upper hinge of vol. i, backstrips with raised bands between gilt rules, second compartments gilt lettered direct, remainder with repeated radiating gilt volutes; sides panelled with inner and outer borders consisting of gilt tulip head roll within double gilt fillet, modern light green endpapers, roughtrimmed, very good (Abbey Scenery 278-280; Clary 113; Cordeaux & Merry University 25; Tooley 5; Prideaux pp. 125/26) £2,900.00

Ackermann’s reputation was secured after the publication in 1808 of The Microcosm of London which featured 104 large, folio, hand-coloured aquatints. A series of fine topographical books followed, including Westminster Abbey (1811-12), Oxford (1813-14), Cambridge (1814-15), and The Public Schools (1816). The plates in the present work are in the first state, with the exception of numbers 39, 74, 78, 84 and 94. As is very often the case, this copy was issued without the two portraits of the founders. The author of the accompanying text is William Combe.

‘These two books are among the finest ever executed. A. Pugin, F. Nash, F. Mackenzie and W. Westall were associated in the drawings, which are worthy even of the splendid architectural monuments they commemorate, while the engraving was carried out by such masters of aquatint as J. Bluck, J.C. Stadler, F.C. Lewis, D. Havell, and others of like reputation. The result was the production of plates of unequalled merit in their particular line’ (Prideaux, pp. 125-126).

173. (Oxford. University.) MALTON (T.) Views of Oxford. n.p. Jan. Ist 1805, FIRST EDITION, engraved title-page and 24 uncoloured aquatints, a few imprints cropped, folio, modern half black morocco, backstrip with raised bands between double gilt rules, second compartment gilt lettered direct, remainder with gilt gothic quatrefoil tool at centre; green cloth sides, marbled endpapers, red edges, green cloth Solander box, very good (Abbey Scenery 272; Cordeaux and Merry University 304) £3,250.00

Malton died in 1804, leaving six more views etched only in outline. The twenty-four plates had been issued in four parts between 1802 and 1804. It is likely that the 1805 title-page was engraved to accompany bound copies of unsold parts, or possibly issued later to subscribers wanting a title-page to accompany the parts. Abbey’s copy was in the original wrappers without a title-page, but Prideaux records the same version of the title-page as in our copy. Prideaux also states that some copies exist with ‘twenty-four delicately coloured plates.’ Abbey speculates that ‘one or two sets coloured for special clients may have been issued.’ A second edition was published in 1810 which included the six outline plates.
174.  (Oxford. University.) PARECBOLAE sive excerpta e Corpore Statutorum Universitas Oxoniensis. Accedunt Articuli Religionis xxxix. In ecclesia Anglicana recepti; nec non juramenta fidelitatis & suprematus. In usum juventutis academicae. Oxford: E Theatro Sheldoniano. 1729, title with woodcut device, a few light spots, edges of title toned, ownership inscription to verso of title, pp. [xxiv], 232, 8vo., contemp. plain sheep, no endpapers, a touch rubbed, rear joint just cracking at head, oath of subscription to the Articles pasted to inside of rear board, good (ESTC T118673)  £350.00

This collection of statutes of the University of Oxford was first printed in the early seventeenth century and contains an abridgement of the definitive list for the use of students; it was reprinted often until the end of the eighteenth century, since it functioned as the University handbook. Among the rules are those for use of the Bodleian Library as set down in 1620.

This copy belonged to Alexander Carre, who took his MA from Christ Church. His ownership inscription is on the title verso, but more interestingly the receipt of his oath of allegiance to the Thirty-Nine Articles, required of all Oxford and Cambridge students between the sixteenth and nineteenth centuries, has been attached to the rear board. Dated December 17th, 1741, it has been signed by Walter Hodges, then Vice Chancellor, to register that Carre appeared before him in person and subscribed to the articles.

An Oxford education by an authority on Cricket

175.  (Oxford. University.) [PYCROFT (James)] The Collegian’s Guide; or, Recollections of College Days, setting forth the Advantages and Temptations of a University Education. By the Rev.  MA., ------ College, Oxford. Longman, Brown, Green and Longman. 1845, FIRST EDITION, ownership signature on front pastedown, pp. viii, 471 [1], [4], 32, (ads), 8vo., orig. grey-blue rib grain cloth, backstrip with gilt lettering, faded, embossed centrepieces on the sides, cream endpapers, good (Cordeaux & Merry 3820; Clary 550)  £250.00

A vivid, anecdotal account of early Victorian education at Oxford, as purportedly told by an ‘old friend’ of the author, named John Corbett. Included are details of the day-to-day ingredients of college life, such as meals, etiquette, housekeeping, discipline, cramming, debt, and ‘a tale of rustication.’ Surprisingly there is no mention of the author’s great passion, cricket. Pycroft, who graduated from Trinity, was an outstanding authority on the history, rules, and management of the game.
176. (Oxford. University.) Slatter (W.) Views of all the Colleges, Halls and Public Buildings in the University and City of Oxford; with Descriptions, which point out to strangers all the places and curiosities more particularly deserving of their notice. Oxford: Munday and Slatter. [1824,] half-title present, 42 sepia toned aquatints, each with descriptive leaf and tissue guard, uniformly slightly browned, pp. [x], (plates; descriptions), oblong 12mo., contemp. plum roan, rebacked preserving original flat backstrip divided by gilt bands, gilt lettered direct, sides with single gilt fillet and wide blind roll border, marbled endpapers, a.e.g. (vide Abbey Scenery 273; Clary 92; Cordeaux & Merry 314) £350.00

177. (Oxford. University. Hertford College.) Newton (R[ichard]) A Letter to the Revd. Dr. Holmes, Vice-Chancellor of the University of Oxford, and Visitor of Hart-Hall, within the said University. The second edition. [With:] The Grounds of the Complaint of the Principal of Hart-Hall, concerning the obstruction given to the incorporation of his society, by Exeter-College and their Visitor, ... [Two volumes bound as one.] [n.pr.; Printed for G. Strahan.] 1734-5, light toning and dustsoiling in places, a little creasing, pp. 25, [1]; [iv], 64, folio, contemp. flame-marbled calf, boards bordered with a gilt vine roll, rebacked and corners renewed, backstrip with four raised bands, red vertically-lettered morocco labels in second and third compartments, the rest with a central floral tool, hinges neatly relined, bookplate of Syston Park, good (ESTC T18558, N17960; Clary 326, 327; Cordeaux & Merry University 7367, 7369) £100.00

Richard Newton (1676-1753), head of Hart Hall, Oxford, made it his mission to convert the hall into a college and redevelop its buildings. However, his plans faced stiff opposition from the neighbouring college, All Souls, and from Exeter College, which owned the land. Exeter College’s Visitor, the Bishop of Exeter, was a particular opponent of Newton’s plans, and to argue his case Newton published these tracts, the second answering a reply to the first by John Conybeare. Newton’s unwavering methods earned him no friends, but in 1740 he succeeded and Hart Hall was converted into Hertford College (only to run out of money in the early nineteenth century).

178. (Oxford. University. Hertford College.) Newton (R[ichard]) Rules and statutes for the government of Hertford College, in the University of Oxford: with observations on particular parts of them, shewing the reasonableness thereof. Printed for John Osborn. 1747, half-title, woodcut title-page vignette, woodcut head, tailpieces, and decorated initials, modest darkening to preliminary and final leaves, pp. [2], v, [1], 162, 8vo., orig. tan calf, sometime rebacked to match, backstrip divided into six compartments by raised bands between blind rules, gilt lettered direct in second, remainder empty, sides rubbed, double gilt fillet border on sides, board edges blind hatched, ink ownership inscription ‘Robert B. Gardiner, F.S.A. S.P.S 1889’ on front pastedown, good (ESTC T100949; Cordeaux & Merry University 7385; Clary 328; Lowndes II, p.1676) £100.00

The statutes created for Hertford College, with a defence of them, published seven years after the royal charter was finally granted. As Clary says, this work ‘marks Newton’s ultimate triumph’ in his struggles to turn Hart Hall into a college. It is known that Robert B. Gardiner, who owned this copy, was at one time in correspondence with Balliol’s Benjamin Jowett.

179. (Oxford. University. Hertford College. Newton.) Theophrastus. The Characters of Theophrastus. With a strictly literal translation of the Greek into Latin, and with Notes and Observations on the text, in English: for the benefit of Hertford College. Oxford: R. Clements and J. Fletcher. 1754, first newton edition, a little spotting, old inscription lightly rubbed from corner of title, last two leaves a little dusty and slightly chipped at the corner, pp. xii, 268, 8vo., modern quarter olive calf with marbled boards, old black label preserved on smooth backstrip, divided by gilt fillets, with central blind lozenge tools, small stamp of Ramsgate Public Library to initial blank, very good (ESTC T30446; Clary 329) £100.00

To further the goals of education and thrift that Richard Newton had tried to enshrine in the statutes of Hertford College, he worked on this edition of Theophrastus for the use of his scholars. A subscription proposal in 1752 suggested an edition of 4000 copies, though actual publication only occurred after Newton’s death in 1753.

Sir Thomas Molyneux's tall clean copy of this significant history of Oxfordshire, without the initial imprimatur leaf giving the title and date, presumably discarded by the binder. The fragmentary Press accounts show that 750 copies were printed. 'Plot was the first Keeper of the Ashmolean Museum, professor of chemistry, and Secretary of the Royal Society. He belonged to the new scientific school, and in his survey of Oxfordshire, part of a projected but unfulfilled survey of England, he departed from the "antiquarian" tradition of Camden and Leland' (Clary).

Molyneux, physician and natural philosopher, was born in Dublin, and visited England to broaden his studies. He had an successful career which brought him into contact with many of the famous of the day, having correspondence with John Locke and others. From his contributions to the Dublin Philosophical Society it is clear that his expertise ranged far beyond medical interests. He became Regius Professor of Physic in Dublin University in 1711 and wrote the first scientific account of the Irish elk.

181. (Oxfordshire.) SKELTON (Joseph) Engraved Illustrations of the Principal Antiquities of Oxfordshire, from Original Drawings by F. Mackenzie. Accompanied with Descriptive and Historical Notices. Oxford: J. Skelton. 1823, FIRST EDITION, LARGE PAPER, frontispiece, engraved title, map, 49 India paper proof plates, engraved plan and 73 engraved text illustrations, plate mounts foxed as usual, lower edges of frontispiece and title touched by damp, pp. (engr. title), [viii], [140] (separately paginated sections), [4] (index, addenda and corrigenda), folio, contemp. red half roan, backstrip panelled in gilt and decorated with repeated tools, brown morocco labels, yellow edges, slightly rubbed at edges, corners knocked, good (Cordeaux and Merry Oxfordshire 271; Clary Supplement 56; Lowndes III p. 2409) £550.00

Issued in 15 parts, corresponding to the Hundreds. This copy includes the cancel leaf, pp. 1 and 2, for the last section, Wootton Hundred. Skelton was anxious to demonstrate that the County had ‘specimens of antiquity’ apart from the University, worthy of research. Mackenzie also drew many of the Oxford Almanacks.

182. (Palestine.) ROBINSON (Edward) Biblical Researches in Palestine and the Adjacent regions: a journal of travels in the years 1838 & 1852. Third edition, with new maps and plans. [Three volumes.] John Murray. 1867, half-title and folding map in each vol., pp. xxx, 614; xiv, 600; xxiii, 664, 8vo., contemp. tan calf, boards with double gilt fillet border and central stamp of the Hulme Bequest (‘Munificentia Hulmiana’), backstrips with five low milled raised bands, red morocco labels in second and third compartments, the rest gilt-panelled with repeated tools, marbled edges, a.e.r., vol. iii neatly rebacked preserving old backstrip, a touch rubbed at extremities and a bit soiled at the base of the backstrips, good £240.00
Edward Robinson (1794-1863) was an American biblical scholar known as the 'Father of Biblical Geography', largely for this work, for which he also won the gold medal of the Royal Geographic Society. A second, expanded edition appeared in 1836, with this third, posthumously published, edition adding new illustrative matter.

The invention of the pressure cooker

183. Papin (Denis) A New Digester or Engine for Softning Bones, containing the description of its make and use in these particulars: viz. cookery, voyages at sea, confectionary, making of drinks, chymistry, and dying. Printed by J.M. for Henry Bonwicke. 1681, FIRST EDITION, one folding plate (short splits at two folds), spotted and somewhat browned, some headlines cropped, final blank discarded, margin of last leaf stained, pp. [viii], 54, 4to., [bound after:]

--- A Continuation of the New Digester of Bones: It's [sic] improvements and new uses it hath been applied to, both for sea and land. Printed by Joseph Streater. 1687, FIRST EDITION, advertisement leaf discarded, two folding plates (one cropped at bottom), some spotting and soiling, intermittent dampmarking in lower margin, some light browning, pp. [viii], 123, [1], 4to., early sprinkled calf, front board showing old scratches and scrapes, sometime rebacked and recornered in sheep, backstrip with five raised bands between double gilt fillets, brown label in second compartment, front joint splitting, corners and joint ends rubbed, bookplate of the Institute of Naval Architects, sound (ESTC R17820, R24444; Wing P309, P308) £2,250.00

Denis Papin (1647-c.1712) got his start in natural philosophy working under Huygens, through which connection he also developed a friendship with Leibniz. But it is another connection that made his name in history: Papin hand-delivered an example of Huygen’s coiled watch-spring to the Royal Society in London, and while in London began working for Robert Boyle. In the process of improving Boyle’s designs for air pumps, Papin realised the effect that pressure had on the boiling point of water, and invented this ‘digester’, which cooked food both rapidly and efficiently, and could even soften and extract nutrients from bones. The development of the digester – i.e., a pressure cooker – also led Papin to invent a piston steam engine several years before the first practical models appeared; whether Newcomen, whose first engine was displayed in 1712, saw Papin’s designs (which were never built from) is a matter of debate.

These two short works were published with official approval of the Royal Society, before which Papin had demonstrated his pressure cooker in 1679. They are the first appearance in print of Papin’s designs. The earlier work would be reprinted in the first issue of the first German scientific journal, Acta Eruditorum, in 1682, and see a facsimile reprint by Dawsons in 1966. The Continuation is rarer in trade, with auction records showing only one copy (Macclesfield) since 1980. In that copy, as here, the two papers were bound together.
184. Pater (Walter) Marius the Epicurean. His sensations and ideas. [Two volumes.] Macmillan and Co. 1885, FIRST EDITION, minor foxing to endpapers and adjacent leaves, pp. [viii], 260; [vi], 246, [2], 8vo., contemp. vellum, a gilt roll, alternating greek-key design and a flower, across top and bottom of boards and backstrip, the rest of the backstrip divided in two compartments by a gilt fillet, title in top compartment and the bottom infilled with a repeating pattern of gilt tools, turn-ins with a gilt wave roll, contemp. bookplate of Henry and Mary Ponsonby, a little yellowed and slightly marked, very good (Wright I.b.2.a) £120.00

The first edition of Pater’s second book, a philosophical novel set in ancient Rome, which was immediately popular: it sold out its 1000-copy printing almost immediately and the very-slightly-revised second edition of 2000 copies appeared six months later. By 1892 it saw a heavily revised third edition, and numerous further reprints. This copy is in an attractive neo-classical vellum binding.

185. [Percival (Thomas)] A Father’s Instructions to his Children: Consisting of Tales, Fables and Reflections; Designed to promote the Love of Virtue, a Taste for Knowledge, and an early acquaintance with the Works of Nature. The Second Edition. J. Johnson. 1776, neat contemporary ownership inscription on the endpaper (M. Yeats 1786), pp. 194, 12mo., contemp. sheep, the backstrip ruled in gilt with five raised bands, small ink mark, some minor wear, front joint splitting, sound (ESTC T85487) £250.00

Percival (1740-1804) was a physician and dissenter who had a lasting friendship with David Hume and other distinguished men. He made a reputation by contributing papers to the Philosophical Transactions, and various periodicals, and his essays, medical and experimental, published between 1767 and 1776, attracted wide attention (DNB). ESTC lists only two copies of this second edition, in the BL and Liverpool.

186. Plautus. Plautus’s Comedies, Amphitryon, Epidicus, and Rudens, made English: With critical Remarks upon each Play. For Abel Swalle and T. Child. 1694, FIRST EDITION, title within double ruled border, a few ink jottings and owner’s small ink stamp on the endpapers, browned and dustsoiled, one gathering partly sprung and two others a bit proud, pp. [xxviii], 246, [2], 8vo., contemp. dark calf, unlettered backstrip with four raised bands, scratched, a chip to lower cover, sound (Wing P2415; ESTC R4311) £250.00

The first published English translation of these three plays by Plautus, by the precocious and prolific historian Laurence Echard. Echard (1672-1730) was still a student at Christ’s College, Cambridge (taking his MA in 1695) when he published these plays as well as translations from Terence, three works of geography, a gazetteer, and a history of Rome. Echard thought his translations ‘scrupulously nice’ while half a century later Thomas Cooke described them as ‘very injudicious and grossly low and vulgar,’ perhaps a sign of changing tastes more than anything else.

187. Plowden (Edmund) Abridgment des tous les cases reportes alarge per Monsieur Plowden : ousque les exceptions al pleadings & leur responses, les resolutions des matters in ley, & tous autes principal matters surrants sur les arguments de mesmes. Composee & digest per T[homas] Ashe. For the Company of Stationers. 1607, title within border of typographical ornaments, one full page genealogy, tips of first two corners repaired, some mostly uniform birning but not unattractive, ff. 91, [1], 8vo., contemp. sheep, neatly rebacked, the backstrip ruled in blind and lettered and dated in gilt, armorial bookplate of the Rolle family, ex-libris G. R. Elton, good (ESTC S114927; STC 20038) £450.00
In 1571 Plowden published Les commentaries, ou, Les reportes ... de divers cases, a volume of law reports that decisively broke out of the older year-book tradition, and was the first to be published by the author in his own lifetime and under his own name. The keys to Plowden’s approach were two resolutions he claims to have made at the beginning of his law studies (DNB). The first was, to ‘be present at, and to give diligent attention to, the debates and questions of law, and particularly to the arguments of those who were men of the greatest note and reputation for learning.’ The second was, ‘to commit to writing what I heard, and the judgment thereupon, which seemed to me to be much better than to rely on treacherous memory’ (Les commentaries, preface).

188. Prideaux (Humphrey) The Original and Right of Tithes, for the Maintenance of the Ministry in a Christian Church truly stated. To which is annex’d the Draught of a Bill ... for the restraining of Pluralities of Benficies, with Cure of Souls. Norwich: Fr. 189. Pugin (Augustus Charles) A Series of ornamental Timber Gables, from existing Examples in England and France, of the sixteenth Century. Drawn on stone by B. Ferrey, under the Direction of A. Pugin, architect; with descriptive letterpress by E. J. Willison, architect, F.S.A. Second edition, improved. Henry G. Bohn. 1839, additional lithographed title, and 30 numbered lithographed plates of gables and buildings, scattered foxmarks, pp. 15, plates, 4to., orig. dark green diaper-grain cloth, the backstrip lettered vertically in gilt, the covers embossed in blind, yellow endpapers, fine £400.00

A characteristic publication by one of the leading draughtsmen of the early 19th century, whose interest in medieval architecture played a key role in the Gothic revival. Pugin was draughtsman to John Nash, formed a significant relationship with Rudolph Ackermann, with whom he produced many important works. The binding of this copy is in remarkably fresh condition. This volume although unmarked, is from the library of James Watt, Junior, son of the celebrated engineer, who was much involved in his father’s business: the development of steam-powered vessels.
190. [Radcliffe (Ann)] The romance of the forest: interspersed with some pieces of poetry. By the authoress of 'A Sicilian romance,' &c. ... 2 Vols. Dublin: P. 191. Regnard (Jean-François) Oeuvres de Regnard. Tome premier [-quatrieme.] Paris: De l'Imprimerie de A. Belin. 1812, light foxing, edges untrimmed, pp. xxvii, 354, [2]; 352, [2]; 372, [2]; 439, [1], 12mo., orig. purple paper boards, backstrips divided by a double gilt fillet, red labels in second and third compartments, somewhat scuffed, backstrips lightly sunned, good £80.00

The works of French comic poet Jean-François Regnard (1655-1709), who has been called the second-most distinguished of the seventeenth-century comic poets (after, of course, Molière). The first three volumes contain his plays, while the fourth has his equally important travel diaries. Regnard had travelled widely before obtaining a sinecure position in Paris to write comedy; his journeys had included being captured by Algerian pirates, visits to the courts of Christian V and Charles XI of Denmark and Sweden, and a stay with the Sami people in Lapland.

192. (River Avon.) Ireland (Samuel) Picturesque Views on the Upper, or Warwickshire Avon, from its Source at Naseby to its Junction with the Severn at Tewkesbury; with Observations on the Public Buildings and other Works of Art in its Vicinity. R. Faulder and T. Egerton. 1795, sepias by Aulis Quinet. 1795, sepias aquatint allegorical frontispiece showing Shakespeare playing a lyre, engraved map of the course of the River Avon, 29 sepias aquatint views and 2 engraved portraits (Sir Thomas Lucy and John Combe), half-title, some foxing, mostly to the edges of the plates, K3 and K4 a little soiled and with one or two minor adhesions, pp. xvi, 172, 184, 8vo., contemp. polished tree calf, rebacked, the backstrip with gilt fillets and a contemp. black morocco label with gilt lettering, scrape to upper cover, one corner repaired, marbled endpapers, bookplate with motto 'faithful not fawning' and clumsy signature of John Marsh beneath, sound (Abbey Scenery 427) £400.00

The drawings for this work, which explores 'this gentle river' (Preface), were all made by the author in the summer months of 1792 and 1793.

‘The Queen of Rivers’

193. (River Severn.) HARRAL (Thomas) Picturesque Views of the River Severn: with historical Descriptions. ... The Embellishments from Designs of the late Samuel Ireland. [Two volumes]. G. and W. B. Whittaker. 1824, 52 lithographed plates by Samuel Ireland, half-titles, errata slip, pp. viii, [ii], 303; [vi], 288, 8vo., orig. grey boards, rebacked, new paper printed labels, corners knocked, top edges trimmed, others uncut, good (Abbey Scenery 429) £450.00

Although independently published, this is the companion volume to Ireland's Picturesque View on the Avon, since it continues from where the Severn joins the Avon, from Tewkesbury to the sea.

194. Rotrou (Jean) Iphigénie tragédie. Paris: Toussaint Quinet. 1641, FIRST EDITION, woodcut device to title page, woodcut head- and tail-pieces, small dampstain to lower corner, a spot of worming (once or twice touching a page number) to upper corner, a little light browning, bookseller’s ticket of Geoffrey Aspin to front pastedown, pp. [iv], 118, 119, nineteenth century qtr. red morocco with marbled boards, backstrip panelled and ruled in gilt, a touch scuffed, corners of lower board lightly sunned, good (STC: French R1170) £650.00

This tragedy is an adaptation of the story told in Euripides’ Iphigeneia at Aulis. Rotrou produced a large number of plays (with some 35 surviving), several adapted from classical authors; several sources he used include Seneca and Plautus.
COPAC lists holdings of this play in Dublin, Oxford, Cambridge, and the British Library only. Worldcat adds one Dutch, two German, and five American copies. No copies appear in English, American, or German auction records, and only one in French records, more than 30 years ago.

195. Rotrou (Jean) Le Veritable St Genest, Tragedie. Paris: Toussaint Quint. 1648, FIRST EDITION, woodcut device to title page, woodcut dividers in text, a little light browning to pages, one ink correction, pp. [iv], 104, 4to., modern qtr. speckled calf with marbled boards, backstrip gilt-lettered direct, new endpapers, very good (STC French R1180) £1,250.00

The first printed edition of the first of Rotrou’s four ‘masterpieces,’ this one ‘a story of Christian martyrdom containing some amusing byplay, one noble speech and a good deal of dignified action’ (Ency. Brit. 11th edn.). The action is notable for its use of the play-within-a-play, with Genest, an actor, playing a Christian martyr and himself converting as a result. Rotrou was a prolific author of tragedies and comedies, with this, Don Bertrand de Cabrière, Venceslas, and Cosroes forming the bulk of his later reputation; though now relatively obscure, ‘as a tragic poet properly so called he is at his best almost the equal of Corneille and of Jean Racine’ (Ency. Brit.)

This is one of his rarer, as well as more important, plays; COPAC shows holdings in Oxford, Dublin, and the British Library only, and Worldcat adds one German and three American copies. We have been unable to trace a copy in French, German, American or English auction records.

196. Ruhnkenius (David) Opuscula oratoria, philologia, critica, nunc primum conjunctim edita. Leiden: Sam. et Joh. Luchtmans. 1807, FIRST COLLECTED EDITION, a few light spots, pp. xi, [1], 347, 8vo., contemp. vellum prize binding with gilt arms of Amsterdam on boards, inside a gilt-rolled border repeated the arms amid vine sprays, backstrip divided by gilt rolls, central gilt lozenges in the compartments, top compartment also lettered in ink, backstrip darkened, front board stained, ties lost, good £75.00

The first collected edition of Ruhnken’s ‘lesser’ works (a second appeared in 1823), including his inaugural and resigning lectures for the chair of Latin and his rectorship respectively at the University of Leiden, and notes on Antiphon and Longinus. The former lecture, ‘de Doctore Umbratico’, is a witty attack on lazy scholars, while the latter, perhaps now Ruhnken’s most famous work, is in the form of a eulogy for Tiberius Hemsterhuis, his former teacher, and discusses textual criticism; it is followed by the printing of two letters from the great critic Richard Bentley to Hemsterhuis.

After the Great Fire of London

197. Sancroft (William) Lex Ignea: or the School of Righteousness. A Sermon preach’d before the King, Octob. 10. 1666. At the Solemn Fast appointed for the late Fire in London. For Timothy Garthwait. 1666, with a striking engraving of the old St Paul’s on fire by W. HOLLAR, signed and dated in the plate 1666, on the title-page, woodcut initial and head-piece, pp. 53, small 4to., late eighteenth century marbled wrappers, good (Wing S554; ESTC R42349; Engraving: Hind, Hollar 68) £300.00

Archbishop Sancroft was Dean of St. Paul’s at the time of the Great Fire. This Sermon was written in a city made ‘desolate’ and ‘broken down’ by the conflagration but six weeks before. Some time after one o’clock on the morning of Sunday 2 September 1666 a fire broke out in the Pudding Lane premises of Thomas Farriner, who held the post of conduct of the king’s bakehouse and supplied the navy with ship’s biscuit. Fanned by the strong easterly wind, the flames spread to buildings nearby and then to Thames Street and the wharves along the river, where stocks of coal, wood, animal oils and fats, with all kinds of other goods, had been accumulated for the coming winter, and they burned readily. By Sunday morning it was clear that a major disaster was in the making, but the response was sluggish because fewer people were up and about than on a weekday.

Wenceslaus Hollar, distinguished etcher, produced many famous views of London after the Great Fire. He had a role in surveying the City, both before and after the fire.

There are three separate issues of Lex Ignea all published in 1666: two of them with the Garthwait imprint. This is the issue with ‘the’ at the end of the second line on p. 3.
198. Sancroft (William) Lex Ignea: or the School of Righteousness. A Sermon preach’d before the King, Octob. 10. 1666. At the Solemn Fast appointed for the late Fire in London. For Timothy Garthwait. 1666, with a striking engraving of the old St Paul’s on fire by W. HOLLAR, signed and dated in the plate 1666, on the title-page, woodcut initial and head-piece, pp. 55, small 4to., late eighteenth century marbled wrappers, good (Wing S554A; ESTC R203783; (Engraving): Hind, Hollar 68)  £300.00

This is the issue with ‘Earth’ at the end of the second line on p. 3.

199. (Scotland.) Cardonnel-Lawson (Adam de) Picturesque Antiquities of Scotland. Etched by Adam de Cardonnel. Part I [-II]. Printed for the author. 1788, each unnumbered leaf with an etched illustration and letterpress text on recto, tissue guards, pp. iv, 30, 12, [100], 8vo., contemp. red straight grain morocco, boards with a thin gilt milled border, backstrip divided by the same gilt tool, second compartment gilt lettered direct, marbled endpapers, a.e.g., backstrip just slightly darkened and rubbed at ends, bookplate to front pastedown, very good (ESTC T144904)  £375.00

The primary work of the antiquary Adam Mansfeldt de Cardonnel-Lawson (1746-1820), who also assisted Grose with his own Antiquities of Scotland. Cardonnel-Lawson (he adopted the additional name after succeeding to his second cousin Hilton Lawson’s estates) produced all the etchings as well as writing the text. This attractive copy is from the library at Lydney Park, owned by the Bathurst family.
200. (Scotland.) ROBERTSON (James) General view of the agriculture in the county of Inverness; with observations on the means of its improvement. Drawn up for the board of Agriculture and internal improvement. Printed for Richard Phillips. 1808, FIRST EDITION, large hand-coloured engraved folding map of 'The Soil of Invernesshshire' (small handling tear), ink ownership signature of 'W.A. Stables' at head of title, large partly hand-coloured folding map of the intended canal from Inverness to Fort William, pp. xiii, lxvi, 447, 4, 8vo., orig. half dark calf, sometime rebacked with original backstrip laid down, smooth backstrip divided into six compartments by ornate gilt strapwork, gilt lettered direct in second, remainder with gilt stamped bushel of hay with rake & fork at centres, gilt rule on returns, marbled sides (wear at corners), marbled endpapers (auction house small label[?] at head of front pastedown), ink name at head of blank preceding title, blue speckled edges, very good (Perkins 1463) £200.00

The W. A. Stables who has inscribed this copy is possibly the one of Cawdor Castle who was local secretary to the Nairnshire association of the Botanical Society in the 1840s.

201. (Scotland.) SPANG (William) Rerum nuper in Regno Scotiae gestarum historia, seu verius commentarius [...] Per Irinaeum Philalethen, Eleutherium. Dantisci [i.e. Amsterdam]: n.p. 1641, small dampstain to lower forecorner, old library inscription to title, pp. [viii], 576, [14], 8vo., contemp. vellum, backstrip browned, gilt lettered dark red leather label, ms. date; sides with overlapping fore-edges, lacks ties, a little warped, top edge blue, good (Lowndes 1624) £300.00

The second edition, under a new title (Brevis et fidelis narratio in regno et ecclesia Scotia) was printed in 1640) of this history of the Scottish church, usually attributed to William Spang (1607-1644), who, though living in the Netherlands, was kept up-to-date on Scottish affairs by his cousin and frequent correspondent, the Glasgow University principal Robert Baillie (ODNB).

202. [Scott (Sarah) & Lady Barbara Montagu] A Description of Millenium Hall, and the country adjacent: together with the characters of the inhabitants ... By a Gentleman on his Travels. The fourth edition. T. Carnan, and F. Newbery, Jun. 1778, engraved frontispiece by A. Walker, offset, pp. [ii], 262, 12mo., modern quarter calf antique, backstrip ruled in gilt, red morocco label with gilt lettering, marbled boards, good (ESTC T64747; Roscoe A.365(4)) £100.00

This is Scott’s most significant novel, written with her companion Lady Barbara Montagu. It was popular enough to see four editions between 1762 and 1778, and the feminist themes have brought it renewed attention more recently. The Hall, a female Utopia, reflects the ideals of the bluestockings, among whom Scott’s sister, Elizabeth Montagu, was a leading figure.

203. [Scott (Sir Walter)] Novels and tales of the author of Waverley. 16 vols. Edinburgh: Constable and co. 1821, engraved vignette title-page to each volume, slight foxing throughout as usual, 12mo., contemp. half calf, backstrips faded, extremities slightly rubbed, one joint split but firm, one other with short crack at head, smooth backstrips divided into compartments by bands of blind ‘Greek key’ roll between gilt rope rolls, second and fourth compartments gilt lettered direct; remainder with gilt lozenge panels, marbled paper sides, ownership signatures of Francis Morgan on binder’s preliminary blanks, polished sprinkled edges, good (Todd 270Aa) £250.00

The first duodecimo edition of this early collected edition. Four further novels were collected three years later (q.v. the next item, which is near-uniformly bound with this set).

204. [Scott (Sir Walter)] Novels and Romances of the Author of Waverley. 9 Vols. Edinburgh; Printed for Archibald Constable and Co. 1824, FIRST COLLECTED EDITION, vignette title to each volume, slight foxing throughout as usual, ownership signatures on front free endpapers, 12mo., contemp. polished half calf, the spines panelled in gilt, second and fourth compartments gilt lettered direct; remainder with gilt lozenge panels, marbled boards and edges, slightly rubbed, one or two chips to extremities of spines, otherwise a good set £200.00

Comprising The Pirate, The Fortunes of Nigel, Peveril of the Peak and Quentin Durward.
205. [Shakespeare (William)] The Tragedy of Cymbeline. [From the Fourth Folio]. [H. Herringman, E. Brewster, et. al.], [1685], printed in two columns, the margins cropped to the ruled borders with loss of headlines and page numerals, ff. [14], folio, (overall 308 x 202mm.), modern marbled boards, vertical printed title label to spine, sound (Wing S2915; Bartlett 123A; Greg III p. 1119; Jaggard p. 497; Pforzheimer 910) £600.00

‘In Cymbeline Shakespeare freely adapted a fragment of British history taken from Holinshed, interweaving it with a story from Boccaccio’s Decameron’ (DNB).

206. [Shakespeare (William)], attributed to. [The London Prodigal] [extracted from the Third Folio.] [1664], decorative headpiece, pp. 16, folio. (overall 312 x 216mm.) modern quarter calf, the flat backstrip banded in gilt, calf label with gilt lettering to upper cover, marbled sides, good (Greg 222b) £800.00

This play was first published in quarto in 1605 by the stationer Nathaniel Butter, and printed by Thomas Cotes. In 1664 it was one of the seven plays that publisher Philip Chetwinde added to the second impression of his Third Folio of Shakespeare’s plays. This, then, is the first folio appearance of the play. It is attributed to William Shakespeare at the head of this printing; but this attribution has been generally rejected by scholars. The London Prodigal has been dated as early as c. 1591, and as late as 1603-4. It is one of a long series of ‘prodigal son’ plays that reach back as far as the Bible for inspiration and precedent; but it is also an example of the evolving Elizabethan genre of domestic dramas, and ‘one of the first naturalistic dramas in English’ (Logan and Smith, The Popular School). Individual scholars have attributed the play to Ben Jonson, Thomas Dekker, John Marston, and Michael Drayton. Others have suggested Thomas Heywood and George Wilkins. None of these attributions, however, has been accepted by a significant proportion of the critical community.

‘We pity the plumage, but forget the dying bird’

207. [Shelley (Percy Bysshe)] The Hermit of Marlow. An Address to the People on the Death of the Princess Charlotte. By The Hermit of Marlow. [Thomas Rodd.] [c.1843], single sewn gathering, title-page detached, frayed at gutter margin, publisher’s name neatly erased from verso of title, pp. 16, 4to., disbound from collection (Wise p. 46; Granniss p. 43) £1,200.00

The advertising for this 1843 edition states that Shelley issued twenty copies under the pseudonym of ‘the Hermit of Marlow’ of the text in 1817, none of which have survived to the present day, and that the present pamphlet was a posthumous facsimile reprint by Rodd. It would have been in character for the forever tarnished Thomas Wise to have announced the ‘discovery’ of this earlier edition, but the man himself is on record as stating that he believed the 1817 printing to be nothing but a myth, and that the 1843 edition was indeed the first printing.

208. (Sidney.) Grevil (Sir Fulke) The Life of the renowned Sr. Philip Sidney. With the true interest of England as it then stood in relation to all foreign Princes ... Together with a short Account of the Maximes and Policies used by Queen Elizabeth in her Government. Henry Seile. 1652, FIRST EDITION, title printed within typographical border, lacks portrait as usual, small blind ducal stamp to the title-page, pp. [viii], 247, 12mo., contemp. sheep, small repair to the head of the backstrip, armorial bookplate, good (Wing B4899; ESTC R208970) £900.00
Greville and Sidney were born on the same day and were life-long friends (until Sidney’s death). This life deals with the subject with a full sense of pageant:

‘The sections dealing with Sidney himself narrate only a few episodes [in which] Sidney appears in dim or dazzling outline as the perfect hero of a tragic drama, a statesman-saint, one of God’s elect ... But the survivor of a great friendship is not erecting a mere private monument ... Greville turns to the past and holds up Sidney as the image of England’s ancient vigour, the symbol of a great epoch and a great race that are gone’ (Douglas Bush, The Early Seventeenth Century).

209. (Ski-ing) RICKMERS (W.) Ski-ing for Beginners and Mountaineers. With Photographs by Dr. A. Hacker and Silhouettes by Elsa von Lepkowski. T. Fisher Unwin. 1910, FIRST EDITION, numerous plates from photographs and illustrations, ownership signature to the front endpaper, interesting advertisements at the back, pp. 175, [6], 8vo., orig. cream cloth, black frame and lettering to backstrip, the upper cover with a striking period design in black of a pair of ski-ers, a line of them above and the title beneath, the lower cover with a male skier in black, a little soiled, good £200.00

The author was one of the best-known authorities on what was then known as ‘ski-running’ and contributed to the Alpine Ski Club Annual and the Ski Club of Great Britain publications.

210. Smith (Henry) The Sermons of Master Henry Smith gathered into one volume. [...] Thomas Harper, by the Assignes of Ioan Man, and Benjamin Fisher. 1637, marginal tear in leaf R5, rustholes in Kk3-5 (affecting a few characters), all parts with frequent (but mostly light) dustsoiling, some waterstaining, edges trimmed close (a few side-notes shaved) and corners rounded, pp. 600, small 4to., [bound with:]
—. Three Sermons Made By Mr. Henry Smith. I. The Benefit of Contention. II. The Affinitie of the Faithfull. III. The lost sheepe is found. John Smethvick. 1637, pp. 56, [and:]
—. Twelve Sermons, Preached by Mr Henry Smith. [...] John Haviland for George Edwards. 1637, pp. [260], the four bound together in early twentieth century half calf with marbled boards, backstrip with four raised bands, tan label in second compartment, the rest with blind-tooled border, a bit rubbed at extremities, sound (ESTC S103687, S104574, S106857, S125529) £300.00

Smith’s sermons were wildly popular; Fuller records that ‘His Church was so crouded with Auditours, that persons of good quality brought their own pews with them, I mean their legs, to stand thereupon in the alleys’ (in ODNB). First collected in 1591, the year of Smith’s death, collections of his sermons went through several editions before the end of the century and continued to be reprinted with some frequency for another hundred years. The title page to the first part states ‘gathered into one volume’, but because different publishers held the copyrights, the parts were actually issued separately and had to be gathered together to be bound up as intended (and as here).

211. [Smith (James & Horace)] Rejected Addresses or the New Theatrum Poetarum, John Miller. 1812, FIRST EDITION, with half-title (foxed), signed on half-title and title signature (cropped) by J[?] Gisborne, final advertisement leaf, pp. [xvi], 126, [2], 8vo., [bound with:]
[Smith (James)] Horace in London, third edition. John Miller. 1813, half-title, pp. xii, 173, [and:]
Brown (Thomas) Intercepted Letters, fourteenth edition, with ... several additional Poems. J. Carr, 1814, half-title, signed on the title by J[?] Gisborne, pp.xvi, 119 modern buckram, red leather label with gilt lettering, good £220.00

The first item of the three comprises parodies of contemporary poets. The signatures of J[?] Gisborne are possibly the northern poet, praised by Wordsworth for his descriptions of scenery.
An inscription and a recommendation of Jung

212. (South Pacific.) Layard (John) Stone Men of Malekula. Vao. Chatto & Windus. 1942, PRESENTATION COPY, five folding diagrams and 24 plates, numerous illustrations and figures in text, author’s inscription to front endpaper: ‘To Nevill Coghill, with best wishes, from John Layard. Oxford. October 1942,’ autograph postcard loosely inserted, pp. xxiii, [i], 816, large 8vo., orig. red cloth, gilt title in blue stamp to backstrip, just a touch sunned at edges, orig. dustwrapper somewhat dusty and chipped at top edge, one or two small marks, very good £350.00

Layard became one of the first intensive fieldworkers in modern anthropology when his mentor, W. H. R. Rivers, with whom he had been travelling, left him on the islet of Aitchin in 1914. He stayed for a year before returning to London where he both underwent and studied psychotherapy, finally producing this Jung-influenced ethnography in 1942. In the meantime he also spent a few years in Berlin, where he was an influence on W. H. Auden and Christopher Isherwood. This copy is inscribed to the literary scholar and then-fellow of Exeter College Nevill Coghill; also, loosely inserted is a friendly postcard to Coghill from Layard, dated 1956, recommending Jung’s The Integration of the Personality.

213. (Spain. Economics.) Jovellanos (Gaspar Melchor de) Informe de la Sociedad Económica de esta Corte al Real y Supremo Consejo de Castilla en el expediente de ley agraria. Madrid: En la imprenta de Sanche. 1795, FIRST EDITION, engraved title-page vignette (title slightly marked around it), pp. [iv], 149, 4to., contemp. marbled sheep, smooth backstrip divided by gilt fillets, citron label in second compartment, marbled endpapers, backstrip slightly chipped at head, very good £700.00

The first edition of this important report on agrarian law, the most significant publication by the statesman and judge Gaspar Melchor de Jovellanos (1744-1811). Food shortages in the second half of the eighteenth century had caused rioting throughout Spain, and agricultural reform was clearly necessary. Jovellanos, in this somewhat controversial publication (it was put on the Roman index of prohibited books), argued that the land must be opened to market forces, which would naturally encourage efficient use, and he suggests that towards this end the vast amount of land entailed by the Church should be broken up and sold to the highest bidder. Not all of his suggestions were adopted, but some 6.5 million reales worth of Church land would be disentailed, and the report was reprinted several times in the nineteenth century.

backstrip all-over gilt with repeated leaf and other tools, panelled in gilt with fillets and chain tools, black morocco label with gilt lettering, slightly marked, good (ESTC T147497; Henrey 1376; Pritzel 2983) £1,000.00

William Speechly (1723-1819) worked at Milton Abbey and Castle Howard before becoming gardener to the third Duke of Portland, at Welbeck Abbey in Nottinghamshire. The Duke encouraged his writing by asking him to contribute a description of tree-planting to Hunter’s edition of Evelyn’s Silva, and Speechly went on to lay the foundations of great improvements in English viticulture – he was particularly noted for his development of the pineapple. In the present work he discusses 50 species of grapes, gives details of hothouse culture, the construction and management of vineyards in the open air, pruning, irrigation, grafting, and insect and blight control. Speechly retired to Great Milton in Oxfordshire, where he died shortly before the second edition of this work appeared in 1820.

Beautifully illustrated, this work sets out ‘to present reliable portraits of the representative or type plants of the principal genera that find favour in horticulture.’ Step’s text was revised by the Assistant Curator of Kew, W. Watson. Each genus is described and its name explained, the prevailing characteristics are noticed and its horticultural history sketched. In most cases a vertical section of the different parts of the flower, and drawings of the seeds and young seedlings of the species are given for identification and to distinguish them from weeds ‘that threaten to destroy them in the seed beds’ (Preface).

The First English Work on Sumatra

220. (Sumatra.) MARDEN (William) The History of Sumatra, containing an Account of the Government, Laws, Customs, and Manners of the Native Inhabitants, with a Description of the Natural Products, and a Relation of the ancient Political State of that Island. Second Edition. Demand for this work quickly required this second edition to be published, in the year after the first. It received favourable press and was praised by Southey as a model of descriptive composition. Marsden, a Fellow of the Royal Society, took up an appointment with the East India Company and travelled to Sumatra in 1771. He spent eight years there, learnt Malay, and thus was able to make many observations on the nature and culture of the Sumatrans, their languages, laws, marriage rites and customs, trading (gold and tin), climate, geographical features, and flora and fauna. He published a Dictionary and Grammar of the Malay Language in 1812.
Dr. Johnson’s interest in the Alps

221. (Switzerland.) Bourrit (Marc Théodore) A Relation of a Journey to the Glaciers, in the Dutchy of Savoy: translated from the French ... by Cha. and Fred. Davy. The Second Edition. G. Second edition in English, preceded by a Norwich printing of 1775; the French text had appeared in Geneva in 1773. The author was a traveller, painter, writer, precentor of the Church in Geneva, and enthusiast of the Alps. Bourrit made an attempt to climb Mont Blanc, but failed. The first successful attempt was made in 1786. This edition has a remarkable 20-page list of subscribers. Among 612 names, including those who subscribed to the Norwich edition, is that of ‘Doctor Samuel Johnson, London’. Other notables are included: William Beckford, ‘Miss’ Burney, David Garrick, Joshua Reynolds, Horace Walpole, etc. Among the preliminaries is a table of plates which lists 21 subjects, though, in fact, three were published in this work.

222. Tarchioni Marullus (Michael), Johannes Secundus, and Girolamo Angeriano. Michael Tarch. Marullus, Hieron. Angerianus, et Ioan Secundus, Poetae Elegantissimae: nunc primum in Germania excusi. 223. Tennyson (Alfred, Lord) The Devil and the Lady [A Play]. Edited by Charles Tennyson, his Grandson. 224. Tennyson (Alfred, Lord) In Memoriam, Edward Moxon. 1850, FIRST EDITION, FIRST ISSUE with the misprints on pp. 2 and 198, 8pp. of publishers’ advertisements dated February, 1850, bound at the front, pp. viii, 210, 8vo., orig. vertical-ribbed purple cloth, faded, the backstrip with gilt lettering, the covers with blind borders of trailing foliage and flowers, bookplate of Hugh Walpole and two near contemp. booksellers’ tickets on the front pastedown, pale yellow endpapers, red quarter morocco, gilt slipcase, the backstrip with gilt lettering and fleurons, by Bayntun, with their stamp at the foot of the spine, good (Hayward 246; Thomson XVIII; Wise 37) £600.00

The first section of In Memoriam was written just after his close friend Hallam’s death and no doubt the emotional impact of such a loss led Tennyson to write with such sentiment. The work includes one of Tennyson’s best known phrases: “‘Tis better to have loved and lost, Than never to have loved at all’.

Interestingly it marks a turning point in the poet’s fortunes too, which grew steadily after its publication.

Bibliographies and catalogues commonly state that the first issue of In Memoriam is distinguishable by two misprints: ‘the’ for ‘thee’ on l.13 of p.2 and ‘baseness’ for ‘bareness’ on l.3 of p. 198, both of which occur in this copy. However, Simon Nowell-Smith states in The Book Collector that ‘baseness’ was not altered until the second edition and ‘the’ was not changed until the fourth edition and therefore the two readings represent different editions, not different issues (see The Book Collector Vol.9 pp.76-77 and Vol.17 pp.350-351).
225. Tennyson (Alfred, Lord) Unpublished Early Poems. This novel is a continuation of Henry Esmond, exploring the fortunes of Esmond's family, particularly his twin grandsons, George and Henry Warrington, who spent time in America.
228. (Tibet.) Pallis (Marco) Peaks and Lamas. Cassell. 1939, first edition, 1 colour plate, 95 photogravure illustrations on 36 plates, 3 maps, pp. xx, 428, 8vo., orig. black cloth, backstrip gilt lettered, Tibetan phrase stamped in blind to front board, slightly scuffed, good, (Yakushi P12a) £180.00

Mountaineer, Buddhist, and musician Marco Pallis first visited Tibet in 1923 for the climbing, and returned in 1933 and 1936 for the culture and life which he grew to love; on a later visit he was initiated into a Tibetan Buddhist order. The latter two journeys form the basis of this, his first book about Tibet, a bestseller and one of the first Western accounts of traditional Tibetan Buddhism.

229. (Tibet.) Schary (Edwin G.) In Search of the Mahatmas of Tibet. Seeley, Service & Co. [1937,] first edition, frontispiece and 15 photographic plates, endpapers and one page spread with printed map, a few foxspots to endpapers, pp. xii, [13]-312, [8], 8vo., orig. yellow cloth, backstrip lettered in black with a stamp of a mask, slightly darkened, a crease to cloth on front board, good, (Yakushi S54) £150.00

‘Mr. Schary started his fruitless quest in 1912 [...] he was forced to work his way from the United States via Honolulu and Australia to Calcutta, and thence northwards, before he was even within striking distance of the Himalayas; and this makes a fascinating story out of a journey that could scarcely have failed, in any event, to be of the greatest interest’ (Geo. Journ., Vol. 92, No. 5, Nov. 1938, p. 461).

The first eye-witness account of Tibet and Bhutan in English

230. (Tibet.) Turner (Captain Samuel) An Account of an Embassy to the Court of the Teshoo Lama in Tibet; containing a Narrative of a Journey through Bootan, and Part of Tibet. To which are added Views taken on the Spot by Lieutenant Samuel Davis; and Observations botanical, mineralogical and medical by Mr. Robert Saunders. By W. Bulmer etc. 1800, folding engraved map, 13 engraved plates and views, one folding, of Tibetan calligraphy, after the author and engraved by J. Basire, and one after George Stubbs, some browning and foxing of the text (as usual) and varying offsetting from the plates on to the text, some heavy, small tear to the fold of the map, pp. xxviii, 473, 4to., contemp. tree calf, the flat backstrip panelled in gilt with rope tools and medallions, black morocco label with gilt lettering, scuff to lower cover, engraved armorial bookplate, sound (estc T136507; Cox 1, 346; Yakushi T277a) £1,800.00

Captain Turner led Warren Hastings’ second mission to Tibet. The purpose of the 1783-4 mission, like that led by Bogle in 1774-5, was to further Hastings’ ambitions of promoting British-Indian trade across the Himalayas, and to satisfy his scientific and scholarly interests through Asian exploration. Tibet’s capital at Lhasa remained firmly closed to European travellers because of Chinese opposition, but Turner’s sensitivity, tolerance, and good manners were warmly welcomed at the Lama’s court. Turner’s sober account of carefully observed conditions in Tibet and Bhutan, their forms of government, religious customs, trade, and topography, has stood the test of time and remained a source of great value (ODNB). It also remained the only account of these countries available to English readers until the publication, in 1846, of the journal of Bogle and Manning. Turner’s testimony is supplemented by those of his subordinates on this mission, the botanist and surgeon Robert Saunders and the surveyor and amateur artist Samuel Davis.

Kegan Paul, Trench & Co. 1882, first edition, four plates, some light soiling, pp. x, [ii], 548, [2], 8vo., orig. maroon cloth, rebacked and recornered with old backstrip (faded) preserved, backstrip and boards bordered with a black fillet, gilt lettered direct, new endpapers, a few small marks, good £150.00

The first edition of this influential study of the history of treatment of mental illness, ‘based on careful research’ (ODNB). Tuke’s great-grandfather had founded the York Retreat, a Quaker private asylum, and his father had reformed the same institution; humane treatment of the mentally ill evidently ran in Daniel Hack’s family.
232. Turkey. Fel lows (Sir Charles) Travels and Researches in Asia Minor, more particularly in the Province of Lycia. 234. Ubaldino (Petrucci) La Vita di Carlo Magno Imperadore, scritta in lingua Italiana. Londra: Appresso Giovannì Wolflio Inghilese. 1581, Wolfe’s woodcut printer’s device on the title, woodcut head-piece, with the last blank leaf, the blank inner margin of the first gathering touched by damp, pp. 125, small 4to., eighteenth-century mottled calf, the backstrip panelled and ruled in gilt with triple gilt fillets and five raised bands, red morocco label with gilt lettering, the label and the extremities of the spine chipped, marbled endpapers, adhesion marks on endpapers from the removal of a bookplate, good (STC 24486; ESTC S122268; Printer’s device: Mckerrow 216) £5,000.00

Ubaldino’s History of Charlemagne marks a turning point in printing in London. Both Ubaldino and the printer, John Wolfe, experienced living as exiles in foreign cities. Ubaldino had in fact a long residence in England and even, apparently, converted to Protestantism. There is no doubt that he was acculturated to England. Perhaps it was not by chance that he chose John Wolfe as the printer for this work. He claimed ‘Italian books can now be as happily printed in London as anywhere else, thanks to the studious diligence of its citizen Giovanni Wolfe.’ Wolfe spent some time in Europe and even published several works as forgeries. His significance was that he imported a wide range of printing techniques, conventions and practices from the Continent.

235. Valeriano (Giovanni Pierio) Pro sacerdotum Barbis. Paris: apud Andream Wechelum. 1558, woodcut printer’s device to title, woodcut initial, pp. 47, 8vo., eighteenth century mottled calf, the backstrip lettered in gilt vertically, a.e.g., slightly rubbed, good (Adams V56) £475.00

A scarce work defending the growing of beards by religious leaders, this is the earliest separate treatise on beards. The popularity of the subject and the concern that was had about the wearing of beards by dignitaries, and its possible religious, or even political significance, is evidenced by the number of editions. It was first published in Rome in 1531 and two editions followed in 1533, including the English translation. We are able to trace only three listings for this 1558 edition in COPAC: British Library, Cambridge, and the Cathedral Libraries. Worldcat adds one, in the Bibliotheque d’Art et d’Archeologie in France.

236. Vida (Marco Girolamo) Hymni de rebus divinis. Oxford: E Typographeo Clarendoniano. 1733, title printed in red and black, a little faint spotting, untrimmed page edges toned, pp. [iv], 278, [2], 8vo., modern sprinkled calf, backstrip with five raised bands between double gilt fillets, red
The hymns of Marco Girolamo Vida (c.1485-1566), who was in early modern England among the most influential of the Italian humanists, in their best edition. A separate edition of his secular poems and his epic the Christiad had appeared in a similar format in the 1720s.

237. Vossius (Gerhard Johann) De vita et sermone, et glossemati Latino- Barbaris, libri quatuor...

Edition ult. auct. & corrigent. Frankfurt: Sumptibus Caspari Warochleri. 1666, title printed in red and black, a few spots, faint dampmark to outer edge, neat repair to blank margin of third leaf; small old ownership inscription of J. Petrius to title, pp. [xxiv], 823, [63], 4to., contemp. vellum, slightly darkened backstrip lettered in ink, slightly rumpled at head, yapp edges, front hinge cracking at title, long note in Dutch to front flyleaf, good (ESTC T136039; Ebt 23567) £125.00

The resurgence of classical interest during the Renaissance led to a debate over the classical purity of the Latin then in use, with the extreme argument being that no word not in Nizolius’s lexicon of Cicero could be acceptable. Starting from the other direction, the Dutch scholar Gerhard Johann Vossius (1577-1649) compiled this substantial volume of words then in use for which no ancient authority could be found, or which are clearly later ‘barbarisms’; this is the second edition (after the first of 1645).

‘The most excellent Liquor this Isle of Great Britain affords’

238. Worlidge (J[ohn]) Vinetum Britannicum: or a Treatise of Cider, and such other Wines and Drinks that are extracdy from all manner of Fruits growing in this Kingdom. And also the right Method of making Metheglin and Birch-wine. By J.C. for Tho. Dring. 1676, FIRST EDITION, with the initial License leaf, engraved frontispiece showing the pressing of apples and use of the cider press signed on the recto by ‘Ev. Worlidge was a popular and influential writer on husbandry and rural craft. His treatise Systema agriculturae, or, The Mystery of Husbandry Discovered, 1669, was the first systematic and comprehensive treatment of arable and livestock husbandry. It displayed Worlidge’s familiarity with earlier authors on these subjects, to which he had made worthwhile additions. Because of the popularity of cider at this time Worlidge was able to expand the section on cider in Systema and add details of the making of wines, etc. to provide us with one of the earliest full English accounts.

This copy has a License leaf signed by a different authority, Roger L’Estrange, than the one shown on Early English Books On-Line, which was authorized by Brouncker.

This is the third work on the Cathedral at St David’s, but the first to integrate elements of historical research, especially the use of manuscript accounts, that the previous two histories (the one based upon the other) had not had access to. The author, W. B Jones, was a future Bishop of St Davids, and his friend and contemporary E. A. Freeman (1823-1892), Regius Professor of Modern History at Oxford University. Freeman was already at this date a recognised authority on mediaeval church architecture.

Following the success of Monasticon Anglicanum published in 1655, Dugdale forged ahead with the present work. Twenty-five years of research had gone into this wholly comprehensive study of Dugdale’s home county and its history. ‘The history of the towns is briefly given, with speculations on the meanings of the placenames. Regional commodities are noted. But the main business is to record the families associated with each place, to record their notable deeds and to list their intermarryings and burials. The hundreds of coats of arms that fill the pages make it clear that genealogy is the prime concern of the book’ (DNB).

243. (Weights and measures.) Paucton (M. [Alexis-Jean-Pierre]) Metrologie ou traité des mesures poids et monnoies des anciens Peuples & des Modernes. £850.00

An exhaustive, comprehensive work divided into thirteen chapters and described by Gibbon as ‘useful and laborious.’ Translated into English, the title reads: Metrology, or a treatise of the measures, weights, and coins of Ancient and Modern nations. Paucton was ably assisted in his endeavours by de la Lande and Tillet, and produced a study that was to be cited as definitive by scientists, economists, and politicians the world over. In his diary, John Quincy Adams commented that ‘Paucoton and the Metrologie primitive still engross all my leisure. I have been for years uncertain of the exact comparison between the length of the French and, English foot; which is yet essential to ascertain that of all the new French weights, measures, and coins.’

Includes, on the final 6 pages, legal documents concerning the publication of this work, and the agreement between Paucoton and the Veuve de Desaint.
244. Whitehurst (John) An Inquiry into the original State and Formation of the Earth; deduced from facts and the Laws of Nature; To which is added an Appendix, containing some general Observations on the Strata in Derbyshire. Printed for the Author, by J. Cooper. 1778, FIRST EDITION, half-title, 6 engraved plates on 4 leaves, 2 folding, by Whitehurst, subscribers’ list, pp. [xvi], iv, 199, 4to., modern half calf, five raised bands, gilt lettered maroon leather label in second compartment, orange cloth sides, untrimmed, very good (ESTC T153454) £550.00

Whitehurst, geologist and maker of clocks and scientific instruments, supplied Matthew Boulton with instruments. Travelling round the country gave Whitehurst opportunities to pursue his favourite field of study and to collect geological information, which bore fruit in the above: ‘The importance of this work lies in the “Appendix on the strata in Derbyshire” ... in the appendix he identifies the volcanic origin of the basalts and also hints at the orderly sequence of strata, one of the great geological generalizations’ (DNB). The book led to his election to the Royal Society in the following year.

‘He has a marvellous felicity of phrase’

245. Wordsworth (William) Yarrow revisited, and other Poems. Longman, Rees, Orme, Brown, Green, & Longman. 1835, FIRST EDITION, PRESENTATION COPY, inscribed ‘To Eliza M. Hamilton as a token of affectionate esteem from WM Wordsworth’ on a slip of paper pasted on to the verso of the title, and with ‘From the Author’ written on the half-title in another hand, erratum slip, pp. xvi, 349, 12mo., late nineteenth-century olive pebble grain morocco, the backstrip panelled and ruled in gilt and infilled with volutés and other tools, lettered in gilt in the second compartment, the sides with triple gilt fillet borders, an inner panel with gilt cornerpieces and central panels of curving lines, a.e.g., marbled endpapers, bookplate of J.O. Edwards, scuff to the upper cover, joints slightly rubbed, good (Healey 86; Sterling 1028; Tinker 2350; Wise 23; Two Lake Poets, p. 29) £3,500.00
Wordsworth published Yarrow revisited when he was 65. In his later years he remained physically and mentally vigorous; he climbed Helvellyn for the last time when he was seventy. His fame continued to grow and he became Poet Laureate in 1843. The work is a collection of poems composed between 1831 and 1835, including those written during a tour in Scotland and on the English border in the Autumn of 1831.

Eliza M. Hamilton (1807-1851), to whom the book is inscribed, was a talented poet born in Dublin. Her brother, William Rowan Hamilton was also a gifted versifier who nonetheless came to admit that his sister Eliza was the poet, encouraging her to show her work to his friend Wordsworth, who not only upheld his judgement but offered valuable criticism and advice in a series of letters and, later, interviews, when Eliza travelled with William to Rydal Mount in the summer of 1830. She was virtually unique as a woman poet of the Romantic period with an acute understanding of astronomical principles. Her poetry is unusual in its focus on philosophical as well as aesthetic and religious concerns. Her journal, apart from a few passages, such as a description of Wordsworth’s visit to Dunsink in August 1829 (Graves, 1.311–14), was destroyed at her death by her brother (ODNB).

246. Wordsworth (William) [and Samuel Taylor Coleridge.] Lyrical Ballads, with Other Poems, in two volumes. ..... Third Edition [vol. i]. Second edition [vol. ii] For T.N. Longman and O. Rees...by Biggs and Cottle. 1802, with a total of 23 ORIGINAL SILHOUETTES on black paper to illustrate the poems bound at the end of each vol., pp. [iv], lxiv, [2], 200, [4]; [iv], 250, 8vo., contemp. green straight grain morocco, rebacked, gilt panelled backstrips, later labels, sides with single gilt fillet borders, a.e.g., yellow endpapers a little marked, bookplates of Alan Lubbock, good (Two Lake Poets p.10; Tinker 2332) £2,500.00
The first time that the two volumes of Lyrical Ballads were issued together was in 1800, comprising the second edition of vol. i, with the first edition of vol. ii and including the first appearance of Wordsworth’s celebrated Preface: ‘Wordsworth’s forty-six page Preface, in which he sets forth the aims and purposes of the romantic movement…’ became in effect the revolutionary manifesto of the romantic poets of the next generation” (PMM).

This, the third edition (including as usual the second edition of vol. ii), differs from the former in that Coleridge contributed four poems, ‘The Dungeon’ having been withdrawn. Wordsworth’s ‘A Character’ was also omitted. The famous ‘Preface’ was considerably expanded, (64 pages in this edition compared to 46 pages in the 1800 edition), and some changes were introduced into the text of the Poems. The second volume includes ‘The Fountain,’ ‘Lucy Gray,’ ‘Michael,’ ‘Nutting,’ and ‘There Was a Boy,’ and exhibits Wordsworth’s genius at its highest.

This copy has had bound in 23 sheets of attractive cut-out silhouettes by an unknown artist, meant to illustrate selected poems.
