CATALOGUE No. 7

Patrik Andersson Antikvariat
In this catalogue we offer a range of modern first editions, presentation copies, artists’ books and miscellaneous items. Several items are derived from the library of Gerard Bonnier (1917–1987) and his wife Elisabeth ”Peggy” Bonnier (1922–2013), part owners of Bonniers, the leading Swedish publishing house. They were devoted book and art collectors, reflected here in the artists’ books by Juan Gris, Jean/Hans Arp and Corneille. Large parts of their significant collection of paintings were donated to Moderna Museet in Stockholm. There are books inscribed to them by authors whose works were published on the Swedish market by Bonniers, such as Heinrich Böll, William Golding, and Nelly Sachs.

Also offered are finely-bound first editions by Knut Hamsun and Hjalmar Söderberg, and books inscribed by Hjalmar Bergman, Chillida, Paul Éluard and Axel Munthe.

1. ACHR: Assoziazia chudojnikow revolüzii.
Assoziation der Revolutionskünstler. Ausstellung Köln.
[Köln, 1929]. 20x16 cm. 15, (1 blank) pp. + 14 leaves of b&w plates. Original printed wrappers, stapled. Spine is a bit worn, there is a small loss at foot of spine and a few insignificant specks on the wrappers. Light notations with pencil are made in the preface. There are light pressure marks in outer margin of rear wrapper, visible also on the last six leaves. Scarce catalogue from the exhibition, presenting works of 65 artists belonging to the Association of Artists of the Revolution. The organisation was formed in 1922 by artists who embraced the communist aesthetic ideals, and was dissolved in 1932 as the Russian government replaced it with The Artists’ Union of the USSR. Among the artists whose works are depicted in the catalogue are P. P. Skalia, F. A. Modoroff and O. A. Permiakova. 2,000 sek

2. Andersen Nexø, Martin: Midt i en Jærntid. I–II.
Copenhagen; H. Aschehoug & Co., 1929. 1st ed. 19,5x13,5 cm. 260 & 240 pp. Two volumes in publisher’s green half leather with gilt decoration on spines and marbled boards. Spines are slightly faded and worn, and there is some fading to the top portion of the second volume’s front board, otherwise fine. With the bookplates of Danish author Tage la Cour (1915–1993) and of Swedish professor of botany Nils Fries (1912–1994). In this novel, Nexø satirizes the corruption and greed of wealthy Danish farmers during the trade boom of World War I. Inscribed by the author to Danish prime minister Thorvald Stauning in 1929. Stauning (1873–1942), Danish politician. He became the first social democratic prime minister in Denmark when elected in 1924, and retained that position the periods 1924–26 and 1929–42. He is sometimes referred to as the founder of the Danish welfare state. The book was probably inscribed when Stauning participated in the celebrations of Andersen Nexø’s 60th birthday at the Bellevue Strand Hotel in 1929. 2,500 sek
3. Arp, Jean [Hans]: Le Voilier dans la forêt. Orné de bois gravés par l’auteur.
Paris; Louis Broder, 1957. (Miroir du poète V). 1st ed. 16,5x13,5 cm. 41, (4, 11 blanks) pp. Illustrated with 6 woodcuts by Arp. Loose sheets as issued in original wrappers with an additional woodcut on front wrapper. With printed chemise, housed in the original black cardboard box. No. 38 of 130 issued copies, printed on vélin de Rives and signed in pencil by Arp. With a preface in verse by Paul Éluard. Very fine. From the library of Gerard and Peggy Bonnier. Arp (1886–1966), French-German poet, sculptor, painter, who played a significant role in both the dada and surrealist movements. As a bilingual poet, “whose poetry might have sufficed to bring him fame” (Hubert: Surrealism and the Book, pp. 84), Arp was one of few painters of his time with the ability to create artists’ books where words and images cooperate unanimously. The Artist & the Book 5: “Arps’ graphic forms, which are closely related to his sculptured reliefs, are enlivened with a brilliance and gaiety of flat color.”

4. Baskerville, John (Printer): The Holy Bible, Containing the Old Testament and the New; with the Apocrypha: Translated out of the Original Tongues, with Annotations.

Birmingham; printed by John Baskerville, 1769–1772. Folio. 43x275 cm. Frontispiece, 572 leaves + 9 plates. Tan cloth on boards backed with dark red morocco with six raised bands; according to a pencil notation the volume was rebound by John Cuthbert at Guildhall Library in 1980. The frontispiece and the title have neatly repaired corners; the latter is a trifle soiled. Early owner’s pen notations on verso of the third plate. A minimal hole in the text on leaf 10E. A short tear in lower margin of leaf 11T has been sewn together with thread. A tissue paper has been mounted on the verso of leaf 13K as reinforcement. There are recurring dampstains in top and outer margins, cornerfolds, light stains in margins, and a few short tears. The text and plates are generally clean and bright. With the variant title leaf dated 1772, and the N. T. title leaf dated 1771. “The book was issued in parts, starting in January 1769, the earlier state of the title page being issued in the first part; it was probably reprinted in 1772 for use when the book was sold complete.” (Gaskell). The copperplates are made after originals by J. M. Moreau le jeune, F. Hayman, C. Vanloo and J. Jouvenet; and signed by the engravers Westwood, I. Taylor, Le Grand, J. Caldwell, and Hicks. Second edition of Baskerville’s Folio Bible, the first edition was published in 1763. “Always regarded as Baskerville’s magnum opus, and his most magnificent as well as his most characteristic specimen” (Reed, A History of the Old English Letter Foundries, pp. 279, referring to the 1763 edition). The copy has apparently been used as a family bible; bound in at rear is a torn leaf showing that the bible has been handed down in the Bird family. One of the earliest entries, not dated, says “James Bird married to Sarah Roberts Angus”, and the next “Ann Bird born June 8 1779 at seven o’clock / in the morning died….” Several entries contain news on children who have died shortly after their birth, until the mentioning of “Hannah Bird born September 23 1783 at six o’clock in the morning / Christened at Whitechapel Church in October”. Her signature, on contemporary paper, has been mounted on the front paste-down, together with an old spine label (presumably from the previous binding of this book). According to several genealogical websites consulted, Hannah Bird’s date of death is unknown, but it is stated that she married a James Waering in St. Anne Soho in the year 1800. The further provenance of this book is unknown to us. Gaskell 35. 12,000 SEK
Wien; im Gloriette-Verlag, 1923. 22,5x16 cm. 72, (1, 1 blank) pp. + 16 photo plates + (1, 1 blank) pp. + 3 plates + (1, 1 blank) pp. + 7 plates. Original clothbacked pictorial boards with deco-rated endpapers. Corners are a bit worn. A slight nick at the top corner on front free endpaper up to p. 24. The last seven plates have a small nick at lower corner. The text leaves are a bit toned. A well-preserved copy. No. 365 of 1000 issued copies, of which the first 50 copies were printed on better paper, and provided with hand coloured plates. Anita Berber (1899–1928) and her sometime husband Sebastian Droste (1892–1927) were both dancers and actors in 1920s Berlin, connected to the different subcultural scenes. The book Dances of Vice, Horror, and Ecstasy was based on a joint performance with the same name, and contains poems by both Berber and Droste, with titles such as Kokain, Selbstmord, and Morphium. Three plates show Berber’s drawings, with one of them repeated on front board. The photos, showing Berber and Droste in different dramatic postures, were taken by Dora Kalmus. The Austrian cultural historian and expressionist poet Leopold Wolfgang Rochowanski contributed with a combination of poetry and theoretical statements on art, and the final seven plates are sketches of stage decorations by architect Harry Täuber. The book is a fine specimen of the decadent scene of interwar Berlin. 7,500 sek

Stockholm; Bonniers, 1926. 1st ed. 19,5x13 cm. 177, (1 blank) pp. Original printed wrappers. Spine is a bit creased and worn, front folding has a tear at top and bottom. Front wrapper is a bit creased in outer margin and has a small loss at lower corner. There is a loss at top corner on pp. 25/26. Bookplate of Silluf and Bengt-Olof Landin. The play is a satire of USA in general and Hollywood in particular. Bergman was brought to Hollywood in 1924 by the director Victor Sjöström, who was connected to Goldwyn Pictures and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Sjöström hoped to establish Bergman as a Hollywood screenwriter but none of their initiated projects were realised. Inscribed by Bergman: “Till Alma Söderhjelm med tack för den senaste trevliga nobben / Hj. B.” [Thank you for the latest nice turndown / Hj. B.] Alma Söderhjelm (1870–1949), Finnish historian. The sometimes intimate tone in Bergman’s letters to her and statements in Söderhjelm’s memoirs explains the turndown.

Stockholm; Bonniers, 1919. 1st ed. 20x13,5 cm. 300 pp. Red half morocco (Gustaf Hedberg), spine with five raised bands and gilt borders, gilt top edge, marbled boards and endpapers. The binding was made in 1942, according to the bookbinder’s note in pencil. With the gilt-stamped monogram of Swedish collector Gustaf Bernström on front board. Wrappers are preserved. Spine is a little faded and front top corner a trifle worn. Contents are fine, with just a few scattered insignificant specks. The novel made Bergman popular to a wide audience, it was adapted by the author to the stage in 1930, filmed by Victor Sjöström in 1931, and several remakes since then has made it into one of the most beloved Swedish plays.

Stockholm; Bonniers, 1925. 1st ed. 20x13,5 cm. 159, (1 blank) pp. Red half morocco (Gustaf Hedberg), spine with five raised bands and gilt borders, gilt top edge, marbled boards and endpapers. The binding was made in 1941, according to the bookbinder’s note in pencil. With the gilt-stamped monogram of Swedish collector Gustaf Bernström on front board. Wrappers are preserved. Very fine. This lighthearted play became Bergman’s most popular play. The noble family Swedenhielm is at the brink of ruin. The father, a chemist, has for several years been shortlisted for the Nobel Prize, an award which would save the family’s economy. The play takes place the very day on which the prize will be announced. Inscribed: “till Märta Lindqvist / Hjalmar Bergman”. Lindqvist (1888–1939), Swedish journalist and translator. She wrote for the newspaper Svenska Dagbladet from 1916, initially on light subjects, but she could soon take on more serious cultural matters and became a dominating figure in the newsroom. She published some of Bergman’s short stories in the newspaper and reviewed several plays by him, as well as films based upon his writings.

Stockholm; Bonniers, 1972. 5th–10th thousand. 22x14,5 cm. 305, (1, 2 blanks) pp. Publisher’s red cloth with printed dustjacket. The jacket is faded at spine, spine ends are slightly chipped. Head of spine is a trifle bumped and a bit faded on top, otherwise fine. First Swedish edition, later printing of Gruppenbild mit Dame. Inscribed by the author the day before the Nobel Banquet where he was awarded the Nobel Prize for literature, to his Swedish publisher and his wife: “Für Elisabeth und Gerard Bonnier mit herzlichen Dank / in Freundschaft / Heinrich Böll / 9.12.72”.

Zusammengestellt von Viktor Böll und Renate Matthaei.

Alexandria; Ekdosis Alexandrines Technes, 1935. 25x19,5 cm. 191, (7, 2 blanks) pp. Bound in plain grey cloth with the author’s name in red on spine. Front wrapper is preserved. The binding is slightly toned. There is a small pen flourish on front wrapper. Front wrapper and several leaves are a little foxed, and a few leaves have a fingerprint in margin. There is a slight nick at lower corner on most of the leaves. With the signature of the Swedish translator of classical literature Bertil Cavallin on the first blank leaf, dated “Alexandria 1964”. No. 1165 of 1800 numbered copies on laid paper. The total edition was 2030 copies. Edited by Rika Sengopoulou and ornamented by the Greek artist Takis Kalmouchos, the book constitutes the first regular edition of Cavafy’s poems. During his lifetime, Cavafy only published his poems in local newspapers or had them printed in broadsides for private distribution. This posthumously published edition, containing all his 154 poems and drafts, is where his literary heritage was made public for the first time.

Stuttgart; Deutsche Verlags-Anstalt, 1952. 1st ed. 19x12 cm. 75, (3, 2 blanks) pp. Publisher’s black cloth with gilt title on spine and front board. Without the cellophane jacket. Spine is slightly faded. There is a slight nick at the top corner on pp. 1–28. A fine copy of Celan’s second book of poetry, which contains revised parts of Sand aus den Urnen, such as Todesfuge, and the poem Corona which is dedicated to Ingeborg Bachmann. 13. [Chillida] Esteban, Claude: Chillida.
Paris; Maeght Editeur, 1971. 29x29 cm. 206, (1, 1 blank) pp. Illustrated in colour and b&w. Publisher’s linen with printed dustjacket. The jacket has a tear on front panel close to the top corner, and a small piece of the lamination has come off on top of rear panel. The book is fine. Inscribed by Chillida: “For Arne Annmo / [?] / Paris 19—5—72”. Annmo (1922–2007) was a Swedish local politician in Lund, and one of the driving forces behind the order and placing of Chillida’s sculpture Campo espacio de paz [The Field of Peace] on the city square in Lund (1972). It is depicted on p. 156 in the book, designated as a project started in 1968, but still without a name. The sculpture, which is formed by six diabase blocks with an open space in the middle where peace is symbolically imprisoned, remains, according to the artist, unfinished until there is peace in the world, at which point a certain block will be removed and thus opening the sculpture. Judging only from the harsh debates over this public artwork since the late sixties—the wish to move “the black monster” have been expressed several times, for instance—we will have to wait a few years more for the accomplishment of Chillida’s dream. 2,500 SEK

The letter is written in English, dated San Sebastian 28th Jan., 1998 and comprises 8 machine typed lines. It is written on the sender’s stationery and is signed by him. The letter is an answer to the Swedish art collector Bengt Roslund, whose letter to Chillida is enclosed; according to this, Roslund sent some photos from Chillida’s exhibition Sculptures in Clay (1997) in Lund, and he refers to their meeting (“It was a pleasure to meet you again after 25 years”). Chillida thanks Roslund for the photos and sends a signed photo of himself with the letter. 4,000 SEK

15. Corneille [Guillaume Cornelis van Beverloo]: Femmes et oiseaux. Textes par Artur Lundkvist, pour des lithographies de Corneille. Traduit en français par Malou Höjer. Jönköping; GKM/Siwert Bergström, 1980. Portfolio of 8 colour lithographs, all of them signed by the artist, with 16 leaves of text in Swedish and French, and a colophon. Loose sheets in printed wrappers, as issued, housed in the original black cloth box with red lettering on spine. A very fine copy. The lithographs were printed by Michel Cassé in Paris in 139 copies each, these are numbered 2/15 HC. Signed by both Corneille and Lundkvist in the colophon, which is numbered 3/15, and inscribed by Lundkvist on verso of front wrapper to Gerard and Peggy Bonnier. 10,000 SEK

ed wrappers. The oversized wrappers are a bit creased in top and bottom margins, spine ends are slightly chipped. Wrappers are a little soiled and there are a couple of light scrape marks on front wrapper. There are two minimal tears in outer margin of the fifth plate. Contents are clean and bright. 17. [Dalí] Shakespeare, William: Macbeth. Illustrated by Salvador Dalí. New York; Doubleday & Company, 1946. 1st ed. 23,5x16 cm. 125, (1 blank) pp. + 12 plates. Publisher’s decorated boards, housed in a black card slipcase with mounted illustration on front board. The slipcase is a bit worn at extremities. Spine ends are a trifle worn and there are a few small specks on the fore edge. From the library of Gerard and Peggy Bonnier. 2,000 sek half leather with gilt decorations on spines, marbled endpapers, sprinkled edges and green endpapers. Bookplate of the Earl of Portsmouth on front paste-downs and with the signature “Lord Lymington” on front flyleaf in both volumes. Spines and corners are a bit worn. Some small specks on the title page. There is a small loss in outer margin on pp. 41/42. The text pages are bright and clean, with just a few scattered light stains; there is, for instance, a light soot stain in the inner margin on p. 340 and 341. Most plates are a bit spotted in margins, and a few of the vertical ones have been cut close to the plate’s title. A well-preserved copy with the author’s errata slip inserted between p. 480 & 481. The novel was originally published in 20 monthly parts 1855–1857. This copy of the first book edition has all first issue points mentioned by Smith (Charles Dickens in the Original Cloth, pp. 91–93). 7,500 sek

19. Éluard, Paul: L’Évidence poétique.
Paris; G. L. M., 1937. 1st ed. 14x9,5 cm. Unpaginated. (16) pp., including wrappers. Stapled. Front wrapper is slightly wavy. A fine copy. Housed in a green morocco box with gilt title on spine. The box is partly faded to brown. From the library of Gerard and Peggy Bonnier. Éluard’s essay Poetic Evidence was given as a lecture during the International Surrealist Exhibition at the New Burlington Galleries, 24th June, 1936. Inscribed by the author on front wrapper: “à Stellan Mörner / très amical souvenir, / Paul Éluard”. Stellan Mörner (1896–1979), Swedish painter and member of the Halmstad Group, the foremost Swedish link to cubism and surrealism in the 20s and 30s. Mörner exhibited his works at the International Surrealist Exhibition in 1936 and says in his autobiography (Spegel mot mitt liv. Dagboksblad, 1969) that he during the exhibition mainly enjoyed the company of Roland Penrose, Herbert Read, and Paul Éluard and his wife. 10,000 sek

21. Fonda, Howard B. (Ed.): Reports of the Commission of Enquiry on the Coca Leaf. May 1950. Economic and Social Council. Official Records. Fifth Year: Twelfth Session. Special Supplement No. 1. New York; United Nations, 1950. 27,5x21,5 cm. viii, 167, (1 blank) pp. + folding diagram + 2 folding maps + 4 leaves of photographic plates. Original printed wrappers. Front wrapper and edges are slightly spotted. Rear wrapper has a light cornerfold. The last leaf of photos is slightly spotted. Contents are fine. Signature in pencil on the title leaf by Swedish diplomat Lennart Petri (1914–1996). The commission was sent to South America in 1949 on requests from the Peruvian and Colombian governments, to study the effects of the use of coca leaves on the populations. The commission termed coca chewing a habit and not an addiction, but defined it as a dangerous habit with harmful effects on the individual users and the nations at large. The report suggested a gradual suppression of the cultivation and distribution of coca leaves, and it was much criticised for its disregard of the interests and traditions of the indigenous peoples, who were the main coca users. The United Nations Single Convention on Narcotic Drugs of 1961, which was mainly based on this report, prohibited the use of the coca leaf except for medical or scientific purposes. 4,000 SEK
Wien / Leipzig / München; Rikola Verlag, 1922. 26,5x20 cm. 51, (1 blank) pp. Original red quarter cloth binding with pictorial boards. Lower corners are a bit bumped and the boards are a little spotted. Insignificant specks in margins on a few leaves, light damp-stains in outer margin on the two last leaves. The work was first published in 1904, this is a well-preserved copy of the first edition with Tintner’s illustrations. Hatschi Bratschi captures children and takes them away in his balloon to the land of the Turks. The story itself has captured generations of German speaking children, but is today questioned for its alleged racist content. Inscribed by the author: “Mit schönen Grüßen vom Onkel Franz Karl Ginzkey / August 1933”.

Stockholm; The Nobel Foundation, 1983. (1), 13 pp. Stenciled A4 sheets, stapled. Well-preserved. The speech was delivered the 7th of December, stenciled in a small number of copies and handed out to the audience. “Those of you who have some knowledge of your present speaker as revealed by the loftier minded section of the British Press will be resigning yourselves to a half hour of unrelieved gloom.” (p. 2).

London; Faber and Faber, 1964. 1st ed. 19x13 cm. 223, (1 blank) pp. Publisher’s maroon cloth with pictorial dustjacket. There is a light stain and a short tear on rear panel of the jacket. Spine ends are slightly bumped. A fine copy. The novel is told by the fourteenth century Dean Jocelyn, who has a vision of the erection of a 404-foot high spire on his cathedral to the honour of God, contrasted to his more worldly desire to another man’s wife. Inscribed by the author to his Swedish publisher and his wife, who issued a Swedish edition of the novel in 1965: “For Peggy & Gerard Bonnier / with great pleasure from William Golding”.

Stockholm; Bonnierförlagen, 1991. 14th–21st thousand. 22x14 cm. 261, (1) pp. Publisher’s boards with printed dustjacket. There is a short tear on top of front panel of the jacket. A fine copy of the first Swedish edition of My Son’s Story. Signed by Gordimer on the title. From the library of Peggy Bonnier.
The Spanish artist Juan Gris (José Victoriano González-Pérez, 1887–1927) studied engineering in Madrid while submitting humorous drawings to journals, before moving to Paris in 1906 where he started painting seriously in 1910, having his first exhibitions in 1912. That same year, he signed a contract with the art historian, collector and art dealer Daniel-Henry Kahnweiler (1884–1979), which gave the latter the exclusive rights to the artist’s works. Kahnweiler promoted the careers of many young artists and writers, and was among the first to acknowledge and assist the cubist painters. He also favoured the publishing of artists’ books, bringing together contemporary artists and writers into fruitful collaborations, resulting in more than 40 finely illustrated literary works. Thus, he supported several young authors and was the first to publish works by, for instance, Guillaume Apollinaire, Georges Bataille and Michel Leiris. Gris’s special ability for illustration has been called into attention by later art historians. René de Costa, for instance, states that “Gris manuscripts recently discovered among the papers of Chilean poet Vicente Huidobro – many of whose poems Gris helped render into French – reveal that he went beyond illustrating and translating to create poetry of his own. The much touted ‘poetic element’ in Gris’s work derives from the hitherto unknown fact that he was also a poet.” (Juan Gris and Poetry: From Illustration to Creation, in The Art Bulletin, Vol. 71, 1989).

Offered below are three books illustrated by Gris, two of them commissioned by Kahnweiler, and one, the first of them, commissioned by their mutual friend Léonce Rosenberg. The books have belonged to Gerard and Peggy Bonnier, who also owned six paintings by Gris. Three of them were part of their substantial donation of modern art to Moderna Museet in Stockholm.

Paris; Éditions de l’Esprit Nouveau, 1919. 1st ed. 25,5x19 cm. (31, 1 blank) pp. With four drawings by Juan Gris in the text, one of them repeated on front wrapper. Original printed wrappers with glassine jacket. The wrappers are slightly toned and creased in margins and there is a short tear at head of spine and one in outer margin of front wrapper. A small rift in outer margin on pp. (25/26). Housed in a later marbled card slipcase with neat leather trim around the slipcase opening, and two red leather labels on spine with gilt titles. With a laid-in advertisement slip for the book. No. 159 of 200 copies (of 216 in all) printed on rag paper, signed by both author and artist. With a faded stamp on the half-title, dated 1928. 41. [Hirschfeld Institute — Provenance] Alsberg, Max:
Zur Lage der Strafrechtspflege. Die Lehren eines praktischen Falles.
Leipzig: F. C. W. Vogel, 1928. (Offprint from Archiv für Kriminologie (Kriminalanthropologie und Kriminalistik), Band 82, 2/3. Heft, 1928). 21x15 cm. 99–138 pp. Plain quarter cloth with marbled boards, paper label on front board with “54” printed and an “A” in handwriting. With the library stamp of Magnus Hirschfeld-Stiftung on front paste-down, front wrapper and first text page. With the title in handwriting on the first text page. The boards are slightly bowed. Contents are a bit toned in margins. A well-preserved copy. Max Alsberg (1877–1933), German jurist from a Jewish merchant family and one of the most famous criminal defense lawyers of the Weimar Republic. He describes in this work a case where a man is wrongly convicted as the court fails to expose an unreliable witness, and urges that a forensic psychiatrist should be consulted at trials on a regular basis. One of few surviving books from the library of the Magnus Hirschfeld-Stiftung, which was seized and, to a great extent, burned by the Nazi regime. Magnus Hirschfeld (1868–1935), Jewish German physician and sexologist, co-founder of the Wissenschaftlich-humanitäre Komitee in 1897, an organisation which implemented “the first advocacy for homosexual and transgender rights” (Goltz: Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender, and Queer Movements, 2008), and started the Institut für Sexualwissenschaft in Berlin in 1919. The institute gained worldwide reputation for its providing of medical consultations and its educational activities concerning sexuality. The library, from which the offered book is derived, housed at the institute consisted of around 40 000 volumes. They were all seized or burned in 1933, as the Nazi regime started persecuting perceived sexual deviants. Later that same year, an auction was arranged where approximately 8000 volumes from the institute’s library were sold (cf. Dose & Herrn: Verloren 1933: Bibliothek und Archiv des Instituts für Sexualwissenschaft in Berlin, Frankfurt 2006). The whereabouts of these supposedly survived copies are unknown, in any case books from the institute’s library are extremely scarce.

With numerous maps and figures in the text. Six volumes in brown half leather, five raised bands and gilt spine titles, marbled boards and patterned endpapers. Wrappers are not preserved. Spines are a bit dry, worn and a little stained, the corners are worn. There are a few scattered small specks in the second volume, and most leaves in the fifth volume have a slight nick in outer margin. A well-preserved set, which comes with an extra set of 65 plates of art and traditional patterns. The copy is purchased from the Kaudern family and has belonged to Kaudern’s wife Teres, but there are no traces of her ownership. Kaudern (1881–1942), Swedish ethnographer and naturalist, spent the years 1917–1921 in Celebes/Sulawesi, where he made ethnographical and zoological-geographical observations in the mainly unknown inland parts of the island. He brought home a collection consisting of more than 3000 ethnographical objects and donated parts of it to the Gothenburg Museum of Ethnography, and he succeeded his former teacher Erland Nordenskiöld as director of the same institution in 1934. The first five parts, dealing with structures and settlements, migrations of the Toraja in Central Celebes, musical instruments, games and dances, and megalithic finds, were published by Kaudern himself, while the last volume treating art was posthumously edited and published by his wife together with his former colleague Henry Wassén.

46. Keynes, John Maynard: A Revision of the Treaty, being a Sequel to The Economic Consequences of the Peace.

London; Macmillan and Co., 1922. 1st ed. 22,5x14,5 cm. viii, 223, (1 blank) pp. + 6 pages of ads. Publisher’s blue cloth with printed dustjacket. The jacket is slightly chipped along top and bottom edges. There is a minimal hole in the cloth on rear board’s fore edge and an insigsignificant red mark on the bottom edge. Anonymous bookplate on front paste-down. Owner’s signature on front free endpaper (Gertrud 15/3 1922). Endpapers are a little toned by binder’s glue. Contents are fine. Keynes participated in the Versailles peace conference in 1919 as a member of the British delegation. He resigned from the delegation in June 1919 and returned to Cambridge where he wrote The Economic Consequences of the Peace, published later that same year. In this widely acclaimed and influential work, he criticizes the allied compensation claims on Germany for being unjust and unrealistic, and he states that attempts to enforce the claims will just lead to another war. In the sequel, which is offered here, Keynes argues that the physical damages to France and Belgium have been highly exaggerated and that Germany will be able to pay their debt only if the claim is reduced to a reasonable amount. These two works, now classics of economic thought, has gained Keynes a reputation as one of the world’s leading economists.

The plate has 2 riffs in lower margin. Fine. The autobiographical work Manhood, by many regarded as the author’s masterpiece, was first published in 1939, then reissued in 1946 with the new preface, in which he compares the role of the author with that of the torero. Inscribed: “À Monsieur et à Madame Gérard Bonnier, un souvenir de livre si charmant accueil. / Michel Leiris / Paris, le 9 octobre 1959”.

Berlin, 1918. 47.5x31.5 cm. 4 pp. Folded once. With two minimal holes on the first leaf. A fine copy. The newspaper was created on the 9th of November, as the German Revolution reached the capitol, in order to serve as organ of the leftwing Spartakusbund. The revolutionaries occupied the office of the newspaper Berliner Lokal-Anzeiger on the evening of that same day, and a first issue of the Rote Fahne was quickly printed. This second issue contains the political demands of the Spartakusbund, such as the disarmament of the police and arming of the people. The revolutionaries managed to occupy the office of the newspaper for only two days, why the third issue wasn’t printed until the 18th of November, when a new printing press had been obtained.

The story was first published in the magazine Mademoiselle in 1946 and was reprinted in book form by the magazine in 1958. This is the first edition with Shahn’s illustrations. It contains a frontispiece, which is not present in the trade edition, and a new preface by the author. It is a recollection of the day before Christmas in 1918, which Porter spent together with her niece, telling old Christmas legends and singing songs. Porter states in the afterword: “This is not a fiction, but the true story of an episode in the short life of my niece, Mary Alice, a little girl who died nearly a half century ago, at the age of five and a half years. The stories are those I told her, and those we sang together. The shopping for a present for her mother, my sister, in the last Christmas of this child’s life is set down here as clearly as I am able to tell it, with no premonitions of disaster, because we hadn’t any: life was daily and forever, for us both.”

Nobel Prize winners are asked to supply an autobiography of free length to the Nobel Foundation, Nelly Sachs wrote only three sentences when awarded the prize together with Agnon in 1966: “Leonie Nelly Sachs, born in Berlin on December 10, 1891. As refugee, arrived in Sweden with my mother on May 16, 1940. Since then living in Stockholm and active as writer and translator.” The main body of her works concerns Jewish history and the Holocaust, and she translated Swedish poetry into German by authors such as Gunnar Ekelöf, Erik Lindegren and Johannes Edfelt. The inscribed copies, which are signed with the nickname Li, are all addressed to her Swedish publisher Gerard Bonnier and his wife Peggy, and at least two of them were inscribed during a dinner in the home of Bengt and Margarethta Holmquist. Bengt was a well-established critic and Margarethta a translator; her translation of four plays by Sachs, called Vägen är en hand, was published in 1968, and the couple edited Sachs’s collection of poems Suche nach Lebenden, which was posthumously published in 1971. They were Sachs’s closest friends from around 1961 until her death in 1970, and they assisted her in several ways, for instance by discussing her poems before publication, accompanying her on travels and by managing her public relations, particularly during the demanding period of attention and receptions surrounding her Nobel Prize. Sachs nominated Margarethta executor of her will, Bengt and Margarethta also inherited all of Sachs’s property, of which many objects were donated to different institutions. The Nobel Prize medal, along with personal belongings like her parent’s wedding rings, were later donated to The Jewish Museum in Berlin.

68. Sachs, Nelly: Photograph of Nelly Sachs, inscribed. Printed “jan. –67”, measuring 9x12.5 cm. Inscribed on back: “Für Gerard und Peggi / 5 Minuten vor Abfahrt zum Nobelfest — 10.12.66 / Ihr Lieben, mit Dank für den wunderbaren Abend / Eure Li / 3.2.67”. Inscribed to Gerard and Peggy Bonnier, thanking them for a lovely evening and dating the moment when the photo was taken: “5 minutes before departure to the Nobel Banquet”. The photo was probably taken by the hairdresser Pia Zanetti, who arranged Sachs’s hair before the Nobel Banquet, and, according to Aris Fioretos, took some photos (Flykt och förvandling. Nelly Sachs, författare, p. 290). 5,000 sek
69. Sachs, Nelly: Die Suchende.
Frankfurt am Main; Suhrkamp, 1966. 1st ed. 29.5x18 cm. (9, 7 blanks) pp. Printed in red and black on handmade paper. Typography by Hermann Zapf. Publisher’s red cloth with gilt title on spine. Front board is slightly bowed. A fine copy. Issued in 2000 copies as a celebration of the author’s 75th birthday. The poems are thematically connected to the Glühende Rätsel. Inscribed: “Den lieben Freunden Gerard und Peggi mit allen guten Wünschen / Li / Weihnachten 1966”. Wilpert/Gühring 21.

70. Sachs, Nelly: Än hyllar döden livet. Dikter. Tolkade av Erik Lindegren.
Stockholm; Bonniers, 1964. 23.5x16.5 cm. 70, (3, 1 blank) pp. Publisher’s black cloth with red top edge, printed dustjacket. The jacket is slightly creased at head of spine and top corners, and there are two short tears at bottom of rear panel. A fine copy. First Swedish edition of Noch feiert der Tod das Leben, which also contains a selection of poems from various sources. Inscribed by the translator as well as Sachs: “Elisabeth och Gerard fr. deras mkt tillgivne Erik” & “Für Peggy und Gerard! / und Eure Li / Stockholm bei Bengt und Margareta d. 30.11.66”. The book was inscribed during a get together in Bengt and Margaretha Holmqvist’s home. The translator Erik Lindegren is also one the most respected Swedish poets of the 20th century. 5,000 sek
71. Schwitters, Kurt: Die Blume Anna. Die neue Anna Blume. Eine Gedichtsammlung aus den Jahren 1918–1922. Einbecker Politurausgabe. Berlin; Verlag der Sturm, [1922/1923]. 1st ed. 22,5x15,5 cm. 32 pp. Original printed wrappers. Housed in chemise and a grey card slipcase with a maroon leather label on spine. Spine and margins of wrappers are slightly faded. There is a slight nick at the top corner on pp. 29–32 and on rear wrapper. Contents are a bit toned, as should be expected. A fine copy. With a laid-in gift card, stating that Gerard and Peggy Bonnier received the book as a Christmas present in 1976. Schwitters (1887–1948), German artist and writer, closely connected to the Dada movement, never as a member but closely linked to some of its members. He termed his personal form of Dada, Merz, and published his first book, the Anna Blume. Dichtungen, in 1919. The book was an immediate success but did also arouse public aversion. He continued using the name Anna Blume in poems and collages, and its meaning has been much discussed, though never settled. The present book is a mix of typographical poems, sound poetry, dialogues, cut-up technique, a few short prose texts and a picture poem (Gesetztes Bildgedicht) in which capital vowels and consonants are arranged within squares. Schwitters’s pioneering and experimental approach to different art forms has had a significant influence on 20th century literature and art. Wilpert/Gühring 5.

Hjalmar Söderberg (1869–1941) is considered one of the greatest Swedish authors of the 20th century. He has been compared to August Strindberg, Guy de Maupassant and Anatole France, and he translated works by the latter ones into Swedish. His main themes are the psychology of love and criticism of contemporary theology. Offered here are four early works in vellum bindings and in very fine condition.

79. Söderberg, Hjalmar: Det mörknar öfver vägen. Berättelser. Stockholm; Bonniers, 1907. 1st ed. 18,5x12 cm. (2), 258, (1, 1 blank) pp. Later full vellum with gilt title on spine and gilt edges. Housed in a marbled cardboard slipcase with cloth over the edges. Wrappers and spine strip are preserved. Wrappers are a trifle soiled, the spine strip is a bit creased and has a small loss at foot. There is a mended tear in top margin on pp. 17/18. A small speck in outer margin on five leaves. A fine copy of It is Darkening over the Road, containing 17 short stories, of which all but 3 had been published before. Friedländer 409. 1,000 sek
Stockholm; Bonniers, 1905. 1st ed. 18.5x12 cm. (3, 1 blank), 253, (2, 1 blank) pp. Later full vellum with gilt title on spine and gilt edges. Housed in a marbled cardboard slipcase with cloth over the edges. Wrappers and spine strip are preserved. There is a light stain on rear wrapper and minor losses on the spine strip. A very fine copy of Doctor Glas, Söderberg’s most famous novel and by many regarded as his masterpiece, where he describes the moral implications of a doctor who helps a patient to kill her husband. The story has by some critics in later years been regarded as a precursor to the Nordic noir genre. Friedländer 394.

81. Söderberg, Hjalmar: Hjärtats oro.
Stockholm; Bonniers, 1909. 1st ed. 18.5x11.5 cm. 218, (1, 1 blank) pp. Later full vellum with gilt title on spine and gilt edges. Housed in a marbled cardboard slipcase with cloth over the edges. Wrappers and spine strip are preserved. The boards are slightly bowed. A light stain in top margin on p. 99 and a few scattered small specks. A small loss at foot of the spine strip. A very fine copy of Worry of the Heart. This work is more of an essay than a novel. Söderberg discusses contemporary politics and religion in Sweden and Denmark. Friedländer 424.

Stockholm; Bonniers, 1901. 1st ed. 18.5x11.5 cm. (3, 1 blank), 251, (1 blank) pp. Later full vellum with gilt title on spine and gilt edges. Housed in a marbled cardboard slipcase with cloth over the edges. Wrappers and spine strip are preserved. There are a few small stains on the wrappers, rear wrapper has a cornerfold. The spine strip has some tears and creases. Undeciphered signature on the half-title. Contents are fine. A fine copy of Martin Birck’s Youth, the author’s third book and his second novel, a partly autobiographical Bildungsroman which meant a public as well as a critical success. Friedländer 296.

83. Tranströmer, Tomas: 17 dikter.
Stockholm; Bonniers, 1954. 1st ed. 19.5x12.5 cm. 50, (3, 1 blank) pp. Original printed wrappers. Unopened. The oversized wrappers are slightly creased in lower margins. A very fine copy of the author’s debut. Karlström [I]:5401.

London; Chatto and Windus, 1877. 19.5x15 cm. (5, 3 blanks), 339, (1 blank) pp. + publisher’s list of books, 32 pp., dated “February, 1882”. Publisher’s red, decorated cloth. Spine ends and corners are a bit bumped, and there are a few insignificant scrape marks on the boards. A small speck on the fore edge. A small private paper label on front paste-down. Rear free endpaper has a shallow loss at lower corner. Contents are very fine. The majority of the illustrations are by True Williams. First British illustrated edition.
85. Twain, Mark: The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn (Tom Sawyer’s Comrade).
Scene: The Mississippi Valley. Time: Forty Years Ago. With 174 Illustrations.
London; Chatto & Windus, 1884. 1st ed. 19,5x13,5 cm. xvi, 438, (1, 1 blank) pp. + 32 pp. (Chatto & Windus’s List of Books, dated April 1885). Illustrated by E. W. Kemble. Publisher’s red, pictorial cloth with decorated endpapers. Spine is slightly out of square, a bit faded and has a few small specks. Spine ends and corners are a little bumped. There are a few light ring stains on the boards. A small private paper label on front paste-down. The frontispiece has 3 minimal tears in outer margin. A small loss at top corner on pp. 43/44, a loss in outer margin of pp. 175/176, and a minimal loss in top margin of pp. 313/314. Contents are clean and bright. The British edition preceded the American edition. BAL 3414. McBride p. 113. 10,000 sek

86. Undset, Sigrid: Typed and Signed Letter.
Lillehammer, dated “January 13, 1940”. One sheet, typed on the author’s stationery. 22,5x19,5 cm. 13 lines. Folded twice. With four punched holes in the inner and lower margins. Signed by Undset. The letter is an answer to an inquiry from Swedish librarian Folke Dahl (1905–1970), organiser of the Pro Finlandia charity auction of books and manuscripts for the aid of Finland during WWII. Undset has been asked to support the cause by donating one or more of her books to the auction. She answers that she would be happy to donate one of her manuscripts instead, and that she has already submitted a manuscript to a similar auction in Oslo. The auction was held in Stockholm in 1940, Undset’s manuscript of the novel Madame Dorthea was sold for 185 Swedish Kronor to Erik Kempe. Madame Dorthea, Undset’s last novel to be published during her lifetime, was intended as the first volume in a series of historical novels set in late 18th century Norway, but she was never able to continue the project. In April 1940, when German troops invaded Norway, she fled first to Sweden, then to the USA, where she pleaded for assistance to Norway through lectures and pamphlets. She did also sell her Nobel Prize medal in order to contribute to Finland’s cause (while Hamsun gave his medal for free to Goebbels in 1943). The manuscript of Madame Dorthea was added to the collections of the Norwegian National Library in 2013.

88. White, Patrick: A Fringe of Leaves. London; Jonathan Cape, 1976. 1st ed. 20,5x14 cm. 405, (1 blank) pp. Publisher’s blue boards with pictorial dustjacket, price clipped. The jacket is slightly faded at spine and top portion of front panel, and has two small rifts. Spine ends and corners are a little bumped. Contents are fine. White’s novel on an English shipwreck survivor is partly based on the true story of Eliza
Fraser, who was shipwrecked off the coast of Queensland in 1836, where the Fraser Island was named after her. From the library of Gerard and Peggy Bonnier. The first four novels by White in Swedish translation were published by Bonniers, the last one in 1973.

89. Vian, Boris: Le Goûter des généraux… Illustrations du régent Siné [Maurice Sinet].
Paris; Collège de ’pataphysique, [1962]. (Cahiers du College de ’pataphysique, nouvelle série, 7 Clinamen LXXXIX [29 March, 1962], Dossier 18–19). 24x16 cm. 128 pp. Original printed wrappers. Spine and front wrapper are slightly faded. A fine copy. 166 numbered copies were also issued, this one is unnumbered. 2nd edition, preceded with 3 days by the 1st edition of 26 March (4 Clinamen in the Pathaphysical calendar). This issue of the magazine contains also contributions by, for instance, Jean Ferry and Noël Arnaud. Vian’s absurdistic and anti-militaristic play was written in 1951 but published here, posthumously, for the first time.

90. Wied, Gustav: Slægten. Roman.
Copenhagen; Gyldendalske boghandels forlag (F. Hegel & søn), 1898. 1st ed. 19x13,5 cm. (3, 1 blank), 363, (1 blank) pp. Brown half cloth (Anker Kyster, 1972) with marbled boards and coloured top edge. Wrappers and spine strip are preserved. Spine is slightly out of square and there are two minimal scrape marks on spine. Wrappers and spine strip are a bit soiled, and there is a neatly mended tear in the inner margin of rear wrapper. Contents are fine, with just a few insignificant specks. A well-preserved copy. The novel, which depicts a degenerate noble family, has been compared to both Herman Bang’s Families Without Hope and Thomas Mann’s Buddenbrooks. With a mounted letter on rear free endpaper, from the publisher Peter Nansen to Wied, dated 14 October 1898, in which Nansen declares that the second printing of the novel (1000 copies) is under way, and he wonders if Wied is really in need of a copy for proof reading, since it would delay the printing process. From the library of Gerard and Peggy Bonnier.
91. Yeats, W. B.: The Tower.
London; Macmillan and Co., 1928. 1st ed. 20x13,5 cm. vi, 110, (2) pp. Publisher’s green decorated cloth with printed dustjacket, both of them designed by Thomas Sturge Moore. The jacket is slightly chipped at extremities and a bit darkened at spine. Spine ends and lower front corner are a trifle bumped. There is a small bumpmark on the fore edge of both boards. Contents are perfectly clean and bright. A fine copy. Issued in 2000 copies. From the library of Gerard and Peggy Bonnier. The title’s tower belongs to Thoor Ballyle Castle, which Yeats purchased in 1917. It is depicted on the binding and on the jacket. Wade 158. 15,000 sek

92. [Zeppelins]: The Achievements of the Zeppelins, by a Swede.
London; T. Fisher Unwin, [1916]. 15,5x12,5 cm. 16 pp. Illustrated with one photo. Original printed wrappers, stapled. Fine. The anonymous author describes his recent visits to Liverpool and Manchester, cities said to have suffered serious damages from German aerial operations, but can’t find any traces of bombings, why he declares that the German statements regarding the capacity of the zeppelins are works of propaganda. The author has remained unknown, but a not too unlikely guess is that the author was Erik Ohlsson (1873–1934), Swedish shipping magnate and broker, who was based in Hull from 1902. He published several pamphlets on England’s cause, in order to convince his countrymen to join the war on the English side, often using the signature “A Swede”. He was knighted in 1915 and was made Baronet of Scarborough in honour of his efforts for England. 900 sek
93. [Zola, Émile]: Autographed Visiting Card.
[Paris, 1889–1902]. 6x10.5 cm. With the author’s name and address in embossed lettering. Well-preserved. The address stated is “Rue de Bruxelles 21”, where Zola lived from 1889 until his death in 1902. He sends his thanks and sympathies with the words: “Avec mes vifs remerciements et avec l’assurance de toute ma sympathie. / Émile Zola”. 2,500 sek

13.5x10.5 cm. Seven lines. Letter in Zola’s handwriting, dated “Médan 24 mai 79”, and signed by the author. In this short letter Zola asks the unnamed recipient, probably his publisher, to send him the novel by Vallès, on which he plans to write an article. The mentioned novel is apparently the newly published L’Enfant, the first novel in the autobiographical trilogy by Zola’s friend Jules Vallès (1833–1885), French novelist and journalist. 7,000 sek

95. [Zola, Émile]: Four Swedish Newsbills on Zola and the Dreyfus Affair.
Stockholm, 1898–1899. Sizes range between 24x32 cm and 39x26 cm. They are a bit chipped overall and with tears in foldings. Two of them are mounted on card. The two newsbills of the earliest date, printed the 23rd of February 1898, both announce Zola’s conviction for libel; the third one, dated the 31st of August 1898, announces the arrest of the officer Hubert-Joseph Henry; and the last one from the 3rd of June 1899 declares that the case against Dreyfus is referred to the military court in Rennes. 4,000 sek
96. Zweig, Stefan: Schachnovelle.
Stockholm; Bermann-Fischer Verlag, 1943. 1st thus. 18x11,5 cm. 116, (1, 1 blank) pp. Publisher’s linenbacked boards with printed dustjacket. The jacket is a bit darkened at spine, slightly worn at corners and has a rift on top of each panel. The book is fine. In the centre of the novella is Dr. B., who is imprisoned with access only to a book of chess, which he learns by heart and becomes obsessed with the game. First European edition of the book, which was originally issued in Buenos Aires in 300 copies the previous year. Klawiter F112. 1,800 sek
