Essay by an Important Figure in Brazil’s Concrete Poetry Movement
With Author’s Signed and Dated Presentation Inscription to a
Leader of the Literary Vanguard in Portugal

FIRST APPEARANCE IN PRINT of this heavily annotated essay, with significant references to Ezra Pound, followed by the author’s translation of Mayakovsky’s “A Sierguei Iessiênnin” (pp. 46-50). Together with his brother Augusto de Campos and Décio Pignatari, Haroldo de Campos (São Paulo, 1929-2003) founded in 1952 the “Grupo Noiôndres,” Brazil’s concrete poetry movement. “Plano-Piloto Para Poesia Concreta,” co-authored with Augusto de Campos and Décio Pignatari, appeared in number 4 (1958) of the concrete poetry review Noiôndres. In 1992 he was awarded the Prêmio Jabuti as literary personality of the year; in 1999 he won the Prêmio Jabuti for poetry. Haroldo de Campos is considered the most baroque of the Brazilian concrete poets. His poetry is integrally linked to the movement. He was personally close to João Cabral de Melo Neto and Oswaldo de Andrade, and corresponded with Ezra Pound and Octávio Paz.

Provenance: E[mnesto] M[anuel] Geraldes de Melo e Castro (b. 1932), textile engineer, poet, essayist and critic, was one of the leaders of the literary vanguard in Portugal during the second half of the twentieth century, especially during the 1960s. See Fernando J.B. Martinho in Machado, ed., Dicionário de literatura portuguesa, p. 118; Ana Hatherly in Bíbllos, I, 1062-3; and Dicionário cronológico de autores portugueses, VI, 121-4.

With Author’s Signed and Dated Presentation Inscription to a Leader of the Literary Vanguard in Portugal

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. In addition to the concrete poetry of Haroldo de Campos (São Paulo, 1929-2003), this volume includes several significant essays relating to the movement: João Alexandre Barbosa, “Um cosmonauta do Significante: navegar é preciso” (pp. 11-24); Severo Sarduy, “Rumo à concretude (pp. 117-26); Andrés Sánchez Robayna, “A micrologia de elusão” (pp. 127-42); and Benedito Nunes, “Xadrez de estrelas / percurso textual, 1949-74” (pp. 143-5).

Together with his brother Augusto de Campos and Décio Pignatari, Haroldo de Campos founded in 1952 the “Grupo noigandres”, Brazil’s concrete poetry movement. “Plano-Piloto Para Poesia Concreta,” co-authored with Augusto de Campos and Décio Pignatari, appeared in number 4 (1958) of the concrete poetry review Noigandres. In 1992 he was awarded the Prêmio Jabuti as literary personality of the year; in 1999 he won the Prêmio Jabuti for poetry. Haroldo de Campos is considered the most baroque of the Brazilian concrete poets. His poetry is integrally linked to the movement. He was personally close to João Cabral de Melo Neto and Oswald de Andrade, and corresponded with Ezra Pound and Octávio Paz.

Provenance: [Ernesto] Manuel Geraldes] de Melo e Castro (b. 1932), textile engineer, poet, essayist and critic, was one of the leaders of the literary vanguard in Portugal during the second half of the twentieth century, especially during the 1960s. See Fernando J.B. Martinho in Machado, ed., Dicionário de literatura portuguesa, p. 118; Ana Hatherly in Bíblos, I, 1062-3; and Dicionário cronológico de autores portugueses, VI, 121-4. [Maris] Eugénia [Menéres de] Melo e Castro (b. Covilhão, 1958), Portuguese singer and composer, is the daughter of E.M. de Melo e Castro and his wife, the writer Maria Alberta Menéres.

* On Campos, see Sérgio Rubens B. de Almeida in Bíblos, I, 918.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION.

The author (b. Covilhã, 1932), textile engineer, poet, essayist and critic, was one of the leaders of the literary vanguard in Portugal during the second half of the twentieth century and the early twenty-first century.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION, a COMPLETE RUN. The high points in this multifaceted literary review include, in the first issue, an essay by João Gaspar Simões on Orpheu and one by Herberto Helder on Brecht. In the second issue appears a previously unpublished poem by José Régio, an exposition on concrete poetry by E.M. de Melo e Castro, “A imagem poética e a poesia actual” (pp. 11-9), and three poems by José Saramago. (Saramago’s earliest published work listed in NUC and BLC is Poemas possíveis, Lisbon [1966]; his next two published works listed in NUC appeared in 1970 and 1971.) In the third issue are Jacinto do Prado Coelho’s “O problema da sinceridade nos textos em prosa de Fernando Pessoa” and an essay by Fernando Luso Soares on Camus and Sartre. The fourth issue includes an essay by Mário Sacramento on António Sérjio, Y.K. Centeno on Gotthold Ephraim Lessing’s Emilia Galotti, and Afonso Cautela on the historical position of Surrealism. The final issue is devoted to the theater, with a brief theatrical piece by Mário Cesariny titled “O processo” (pp. 25-30), critiques of works by Günter Grass, Samuel Beckett and Eça de Queiroz, and essays on various aspects of contemporary drama. Other contributors of note include David Mourão-Ferreira, Virgilio Ferreira, Natália Correia, Urbano Tavares Rodrigues, António Pedro, Maria Judite de Carvalho, Alexandre O’Neill, António Ramos Rosa, João Medina, Fiama Hasse Pais Brandão, Tomaz Kim, and Alexandre Babo. Cronos was directed by Fernando Luso Soares, Mário Dias Ramos, Eduardo Prado Coelho and Mendes de Carvalho.

8. [HATHERLY, Ana]. Fernando Aguiar, and Helena Vieira eds.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. The first half of the book is an exhibition catalogue for the event “Ana Hatherly (1929-2015): Anagrama da Escrita” from 2016 with short texts and photo reproductions, whose venue is mysteriously never mentioned. On pages 25-68 there is a collection of works reproduced in color that were made in homage to Ana Hatherly (artists include Almeida e Sousa, Antero de Alda, António Barros, António Dantas, António Nelos, Avelino Rocha, Bruno Neiva, Emerenciano, Fernando Aguiar, Hugo Pontes, Irene Buarque, Jorge dos Reis, José Oliveira, José-Alberto Marques, Pablo del Barco, Rui Torres, Tiago Gomes). The second half of the book is the catalogue of the exhibition “Ana Hatherly: Pintura de Signos,” with an introduction by Fernando Aguiar (pp. 72-3), also held at an undisclosed location. The artworks (many of which have not been published before) were produced between the 1960’s and 2005, and are presented here in vibrant color. The works are from the Fernando Aguiar collection, and occupy pages 75-143.

9. O’NEILL [de Bulhões], Alexandre [Manuel Vahia de Castro].
Lima de Freitas. Expõe de 1 a 10 de Fevereiro de 1953. Lisbon: Tip. António Jorge for Galeria António Carneiro, Porto, n.d. [1953?]. 4° (single sheet 18.9 x 48 cm.), folded into thirds (18.9 x 16 cm.), as issued. Printed on thick green paper. Some browning. Overall in good to very good condition. On first recto is a full-page illustration by Lima de Freitas. On the verso begins a 2 pp. poem by O’Neill. A third page contains a list of the 40 paintings, designs, and gouaches by Lima de Freitas that were exhibited. $150.00

FIRST and ONLY EDITION.

Alexandre O’Neill (1924-1986), important surrealistic artist, poet, and writer, was influential in the first phase of the Surrealist movement in Portugal. Always appreciated by a select elite, his poetry has been gaining increasing critical recognition in recent years, and he is becoming recognized as one of the major Portuguese literary figures of the twentieth century.

[Jose Maria] Lima de Freitas (1927-1998) was an important Portuguese neo-realist expressionist painter, illustrator, ceramicist and writer.

Alexandre O'Neill [Alexandre Manuel Vahia de Castro O'Neill de Bulhões] (Lisbon, 1924-1986), an important Surrealist artist, poet, and writer, was one of the founders of the Lisbon Surrealist Movement, although he soon split from it. He is known for disrespecting social and literary conventions, for his black humor, and for his love/hate attitude toward Portugal. He made his living as a publicist, and his witty way with words can be seen in his poetry as well.

Provenance: Clara [Crabbe] Rocha (b. 1955), Portuguese essayist, literary historian, critic and university professor, daughter of Adolfo Correia Rocha (Miguel Torga) and Andrée Crabbe Rocha (university professor of Belgian origin). In 1987 she was awarded the Ordem do Infante D. Henrique. She has participated in diverse Portuguese and international juries for literary prizes, among them the Prémio Literário Europeu (1992 e 1993) and the Prémio Camões (2013). Her doctoral dissertation, published in 1985, was the influential Revistas Literárias do Século XX em Portugal,—perhaps the work in progress O’Neill was referring to in his presentation inscription. Her early work, O Espaço Autobiográfico em Miguel Torga, Coimbra: Almedina, 1977, is still considered an essential text. She was also responsible for Miguel Torga, Fotobiografia, Lisboa: Publicações Dom Quixote, 2000, and for writings about Mário Sá Carneiro, as well as Alexandre O’Neill. Her O Cachimbo de António Nobre e Outros Ensaios, Lisboa: Publicações Dom Quixote, 2003 was awarded the Prémio de Ensaio do PEN Clube Português and the Grande Prémio de Ensaio 2003 of the Associação Portuguesa de Escritores. See José Augusto Cardoso Bernardes in Biblos, IV, 879-80.

Joaquim [Maria] Pessoa (b. 1948), poet, artist, publicist, student of Portuguese prehistory, and book collector, was the author or co-author of many Portuguese television programs, and for six years (1988-1994) was director of the Sociedade Portuguesa de Autores. He also founded the artistic cooperative Toma Lá Disco, with Ary dos Santos, Fernando Tordo, Carlos Mendes, Paulo de Carvalho and Luiz Villas-Boas, among others. See Álvaro Manuel Machado in Machado, ed., Dicionário de literatura portuguesa, p. 379.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION of this anthology, including a significant number of previously unpublished poems.

Born in Porto in 1937, the poet, essayist, performer, and university professor Alberto Pimenta has collaborated in various German, Italian, and Portuguese literary reviews. He has been an important vanguard figure in Portuguese literature. Saraiva and Lopes
(p. 1086) refer to Albert Pimenta as “um dos mais originais e extravagantes poetas que se revelaram nos anos de 70.”

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. Volume II, subtitled Poemas de África, is out-of-print. We have one complete set available. Volume I was awarded the Prémio Ruy Belo, 2002. The surrealist painter Cruzeiro Seixas (born 1920), is known for his “poder de imaginação e cromatismo vibrante” (Pamplona, Dicionário de pintores e escultores portugueses [revised ed.], V, 160-1).

FIRST EDITION. Important critical essays. The fourth chapter (pp. 71-86) is titled “A perseguição do concreto em Alexandre O’Neill”. Other chapters deal with Murilo
Mendes, Sophia de Mello Breyner Andresen, João Cabral de Melo Neto, João José Cochofel, António Reis, Afonso Duarte, José Gomes Ferreira, and António Ramos Rosa.

Alexandre [Maria] Pinheiro Torres (Amarante, 1923-1999) was a Portuguese neorealist writer, scholar, and literary critic, winner of a number of literary prizes. He was one of the founders of the review A Serpente. One of his books of poems was included in the series Novo Cancioneiro. Torres was removed from his position as a secondary school teacher by the Salazar regime, perhaps because as a member of the jury for the Grande Prémio de Ficção in 1965, he favored awarding the prize to Luandino Vieira, who was at the time imprisoned at Tarrafal on the island of Cabo Verde. Torres went into exile in Brazil, and soon afterward took a post as professor at the University of Cardiff. There he created the discipline “Portuguese African Literature”. Pinheiro Torres translated Hemingway and D.H. Lawrence into Portuguese.

5 issues in 2 volumes. $2,800.00

FIRST and ONLY EDITION, a COMPLETE RUN of one of the most interesting twentieth-century Portuguese literary reviews, also significant from the graphics-arts point of view. Organized and edited by José-Augusto França, this review was privately printed in an unjustified edition of probably not more than 200 copies, thus managing to elude the attention of the censors. Indeed, it included much material ripe for censorship by the Salazar regime. The five issues appeared in May 1951, April 1952, November 1952, February 1955 and December 1956. The object, as recorded by José-Augusto França, was to “reunir de forma algo coerente textos ensaísticos e de ficção e poesias, e promover inquéritos culturais situando-se numa valorização do pensamento poético”. Privately, França asserted that the aim was to favorably position surrealism in relation to neo-realism. Nevertheless, this did not prevent the collaboration of Modernists and Postmodernists from the generation of Presença, as well as Neo-realists, together with the Surrealists.

From the point of view of the history of ideas in Portugal, there are commentaries on André Gide by Jorge de Sena, “Como vivem os intelectuais portugueses a sua relação com a cultura passada em Portugal”, organized by Eduardo Lourenço, “Quais os livros que valeu a pena ler, quais os livros que valeu a pena escrever”, and “Para um conceito actual de modernidade”. There is a dossier on the concept of the “Homem revoltado” in relation to Portuguese literature of the first half of the twentieth century. In the fifth and final number, França wrote a final note announcing the termination of the review, saying that it had failed due to excessive ambition and lack of contributors. He states that it had not been a review of any group or generation, manifesting its independence; and he accuses Vértice of being “comprometida num sectarismo ultrapassado” and Graal of “repousar literariamente nas ilusões de existência que a extrema-direita proporciona”. This final assessment gave rise to a polemic with José Régio in the pages of the Diário popular.

Among the “core” writers who contributed are Adolfo Casais Monteiro, António Pedro, José-Augusto França, Fernando Azevedo, Jorge de Sena (among his several pieces is one on D.H. Lawrence, with a translation of the poem “Democracy”), Eduardo Lourenço, Alexandre O’Neill, and José Blanc de Portugal. There are also contributions by Sophia de Mello Breynner Andreisen, António Sérgio, Delfim Santos, José Régio, Vitorino Nemésio, Almada Negreiros, Hermínio Cidade, Joel Serrão, Miguel Torga, Fernando Pessoa (a previously unpublished essay in Tricórnio, “O Orpheu e a literatura portuguesa”), David Mourão-Ferreira, Eugénio de Andrade, Fernando Namora, Ferreira de Castro, João Pedro de Andrade, José Osório de Oliveira, Luiz Francisco Rebello, Mário Dionísio, Tomás Riba, Urban Tavares Rodrigues, Ruy Cinatti, Tomás Kim, Fernando Lemos, Oscar Lopes, Alberto de Lacerda, and others.
