FIRST and ONLY EDITION of this important contribution to Portuguese ornithology. With the photograph of each bird are given data concerning its general aspects, a detailed physical description, its flight, song, feeding, habitat, distribution in Portugal, and breeding. Although translated from the English by Ana Roque and Ana Dahlin, this appears to be the first published edition in any language.

3. [CHILDREN’S LITERATURE.] Historia de la Gansa Amorosa. [facing first page of text:] La Fiesta de San Miguel ó La triste historia de la gansa amorosa. New York: D. Appleton y Cº, ca. 1865-1870. Mi Abuela Facil. Large 8° (27 x 17.5 cm.), original illustrated pink wrappers, printed in red and black (light soiling). Nearly full-page wood-engraved illustration inside front wrapper; large illustration (about two-thirds of the page) on each of the other 7 pages with text; all illustrations stenciled in 4 colors. A few smudges on the blank pages, but overall in very good to fine condition. 8 printed pages of text, with text on inside of front and back covers and on one side of 6 leaves (perhaps the blank pages were meant to be glued together to form sturdier pages?). $100.00

First edition in Spanish? The story involves geese-lovers whose tragic story ends on the festival of San Miguel (Michaelmas, September 29), when the traditional meal is a goose. In the illustrations (rather naive in style), the geese are set against country landscapes that include substantial homes, plain church steeples, a mill with a water wheel, a horse and carriage, and simple rail fences. In the final illustration, the cook serves a roasted goose to four gentlemen at a table.

This is a translation of Michaelmas day; or, The fate of poor Molly Goosey, published in Albany by E.H. Bender, 1840, with hand-colored illustrations by R.H. Pease, in the series Grandmama Easy’s Large Toy Books. According to OCLC, Appleton published Spanish-language books from the 1840s through the end of the nineteenth century. The lower wrapper of this one lists more than two dozen books in Spanish for children, most of which OCLC dates to 1865-1870.

5. DAMPIER, Capt. William. Voyages and Descriptions. Volume II. In three parts, viz. I. A Supplement of the Voyage round the World, Describing the Countries of Tonquin, Achin, Malacca, &c. their Product, Inhabitants, Manners, Trade, Policy & c. 2. Two Voyages to Campeachy, with a Description of the Coasts, Product, Inhabitants, Logwood-Cutting, Trade &c. of Yucatan, Campeachy, New-Spain, &c. 3. A Discourse of Trade-Winds, Breezes, Storms, Seasons of the Year, Tides and Currents of the Torrid Zone throughout the World: With an Account of Natal in Africk, its Product, Negro’s, &c.... Illustrated with Particular Maps and Draughts. To which is added, a general Index to both volumes. London: Printed for James Knapton, 1699. 8°, contemporary paneled calf (much worn, upper cover detached), spine with raised bands in six compartments, red morocco lettering piece in second compartment from head (darkened; becoming detached). Title page within double-ruled borders. Divisional title to part 3 on leaf 213r. A few corners missing, touching the final letter on 5 lines on one page (Bb3). Internally good to very good; overall in near-good condition. (4 ll.), 184 pp.; 132 pp.; (2 ll.), 112 pp., (38 ll. index), 4 engraved folding maps.

FIRST EDITION of the second volume; a second edition appeared in 1700, a third in 1705, and a fourth in 1729. Part I describes Dampier’s visit to the East Indies and Indochina (1688-90); it is accompanied by a folding map of the Strait of Malacca. Included are descriptions of Aceh (northern Sumatra), Tonkin and Cochinchina (Vietnam), elephants, Pearl Islands, Dutch colonies, native customs, leprous beggars, lychees (and much other food), mulberry trees, typhoons, funeral rites, blacking of teeth, military and naval power, pirates, Macao, Malaysia, English and Dutch factories, and the rise and fall of Portuguese in India.

Part II describes Dampier’s voyage as a young sailor to the Bay of Campeche on the east coast of Mexico, in 1673-1676. He provides details about the Caribe Indians, Jamaica, the Yucatan, logwood cutters (i.e., buccaneers), salt peter, boobies, Grand Cayman, alligators and crocodiles, raccoons, monkeys, sloths, armadillos, hummingbirds, “a great many poisonous Creatures” (snakes, spiders, legworms, etc.), manatees, and battles between the English and Spaniards. The folding map shows the area around the Bay of Campeche.

Part III is Dampier’s “Discourse of the Trade-Winds, Breezes, Storms, Seasons of the Year, Tides and Currents of the Torrid Zone throughout the World.” Two folding maps illustrate the trade winds in the Atlantic, Pacific, and Indian Oceans. It ends with an account received from Dampier’s friend Capt. Rogers of Natal, in South Africa (pp. 108-112), giving details of geography and the inhabitants.

The Hill Collection notes, “Dampier [1651-1715] was the best known, and probably the most intelligent, of the famous group of buccaneers that tormented the Spaniards in the South Seas from 1680 to 1720. His industry in taking notes of all he saw was equaled by his pains in preserving them from destruction. His first voyage, under Captain Swan in the Cygnet, took him from Virginia to Spanish America and across the Pacific to the East Indies. He traveled extensively in the Orient on several voyages which lasted from 1683 to 1691. It was on one of these trips that the first landing was made by the English on Australian shores, at the entrance of King Sound on the northwest coast, in 1688.” Dampier circumnavigated the globe three times, was court-martialed for cruelty, and produced the first detailed record of Australian flora and fauna. He published his experiences in separately issued, independent volumes, the first in 1697, this (the second) in 1699, and a third in 1703; they include the first appearance in English of such words as “barbecue,” “avocado,” “chopsticks,” and “sub-species.”

Later edition of a work first published 1893, containing instructions, with diagrams and color plates, on how to determine the age of a horse (which occupies the first 130 pp.), ass, mule, cow, sheep, goat, dog, pig, and various birds (domestic and wild).

First edition in Portuguese of the very popular treatise on canaries, published in French and also translated into English, German, and Italian. The first edition in French was Nouveau traité des serins de canarie, Paris, 1705. This volume includes sections on breeding, the illnesses of canaries and their remedies, and how to teach the birds to sing.

When canaries were introduced to European nobility in the late fifteenth century, singing birds in cages suddenly became all the rage. This work seems to have been the first dedicated wholly to canaries. Hervieux de Chanteloup (1683-1747) was inspecteur des bois à battre in Paris, and was in charge of the Princesse de Condé’s canaries.

Provenance: We have not been able to discover anything about António R. Passos (fl. late nineteenth- and / or early twentieth-century), but over the years have seen many books bearing his signature. They are invariably interesting volumes, in above average condition, dealing mainly with agricultural products or minerals and their application in commerce. He must have been an astute and discerning book buyer and bibliophile.

The translation first appeared in Lisbon, 1801.

Hervieux de Chanteloup’s Nouveau traité des serins de canarie, contenant la manière de les élever, les apparier pour en avoir de belles races avec des remarques aussi curieuses que nécessaires sur les signes et causes de leurs maladies et plusieurs secrets pour les guérir first appeared in 1705. It was the first monograph on the subject, and went through at least ten editions in French and several in foreign languages. Successive editions of his manual on the care of canaries offer a glimpse of changing canary culture across many decades.

Canaries were popular as pets from the late seventeenth century to well into the nineteenth. Hervieux (1683-1747) cared for the canaries of the Princess of Condé, and his ability to train them to sing was unsurpassed: he staged canary-singing concerts for the princess and her children.

Judging from the title of the 1851 edition, which includes the phrase “restauração de Portugal em 15 de Septembro de 1808,” this short play was written to commemorate the departure of the last French troops from Portugal at the end of the Peninsular War. The characters are Mars, Venus, Mercury, Discord, and Genio Lusitano. At the end Napoleon is referred to as “despota cruel, tyranno intruso,” and the curtain falls on “tres Monarchas, revalidando a união do Continente.”

society in the form of a louse’s travels to 72 different heads. It appeared in 1802 in a series of weekly issues. When these were finally united in a single volume in 1821, the authorship was attributed to Silva. Innocêncio notes that it has been attributed to José Sanches de Brito (“não sei se com fundamento,” V, 193). The work remained in print almost continuously until about 1860.

The author of A Cadellinha may well have been trying to piggy-back on the popularity of the Piolho viajante, whose authorship was probably unknown to most readers.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. These most interesting volumes include an interview with Artur Teodoro de Matos by Ana Isabel Buescu and Jorge Flores (pp. xxi-xxx), a bibliography of the honoree (pp. [xxxi-xlii]), and 54 essays (1 in French, 2 in English, the rest in Portuguese). The first section, titled “História geral” contains 19 essays, with subjects ranging from ancient Egypt and Babilonia, Iria Gonçalves on medieval Beira, Maria José Pallá on the Auto dos físicos of Gil Vicente, Ana Isabel Buescu on Charles V and Portugal, António dos Santos Pereira on Camões and Portuguese national identity in the sixteenth century, João Pedro Marques on Sá de Bandeira and white slavery, to José Alberto Rodrigues da Silva Tavim on Jewish identity in twentieth-century Brazil. The rest of the essays deal with the history of Portuguese expansion. There are 5 on the general history of the empire, including an essay on the utopia of the Quinto Imperio in sermons of the Restauração by João Francisco Marques, and Alfredo Pinheiro Marques on the cartography of the New World in the second quarter of the sixteenth century. A section on the Atlantic Islands, with 13 essays, includes João Paulo Oliveira e Costa on Portugal and France as tactical allies in Europe and discrete rivals in the Atlantic in the sixteenth century, Carlos Almeida on the Jesuits and Creole society in Cabo Verde in the first half of the seventeenth century, and Luís da Cunha Pinheiro on sugar production in São Tomé, 1520-1550. This is followed by a section on the Orient, with 12 essays, including Geneviève Bouchon on the first soundings of China in Portuguese Asia, 1500-1525, Eugénie Rodrigues on the Misericórdias of Moçambique and local administration, ca. 1606-1763, Fátima da Silva Gracias on some aspects of social and cultural life in Goa, 1788-1961, Manuel Lobato on the implementation of the Iberian Union in Asia and the account of the voyage of Francisco de Dueñas from Manila to Maluco in 1582, Roderich Ptak on Birds of Paradise in Macau, Luís Filipe Barreto with rather meaty reflections on the History of the Far East, and Horácio Peixoto de Araújo on António de Gouvea, chronicler of the China Mission. Finally, there is a section on Brazil and Africa with 5 essays, including Maria Beatriz Nizza da Silva on culture in Rio de Janeiro during the period of the Portuguese court, 1808-1822, Ângela Domingues on the scientific press and the image of colonial Brazil, Marília dos Santos Lopes on how the savages became more savage in the eyes of modern Europe toward Africa, 1507-1795, and Ana Cristina Roque and Lívia Ferrão on Moçambique and Angola in the nineteenth century.

First edition in book form of letters published in the Folha do Sul, 1864; the introduction states that they are “pela maior parte sobre o oceano, considerado principalmente pelo lado da geographia physica e da historia natural.” Chapters cover various facets of the oceans: saltiness, the air above it, waves, polar seas, storms, depths, St. Elmo’s fire, polyps, coral, sponges, jellyfish, echinoderms, mollusks, crustaceans, fish, sea turtles, sea birds, cetaceans, and seals. Innocêncio notes that the press praised this work highly: “com muito louvor, como de livro destinado à instrução popular, e escrito com todos os predicados próprios para bem preencher esse destino.”

Augusto Filippe Simões (Coimbra 1835-Évora, 1884) studied philosophy and medicine at Coimbra and practiced for a few years as a physician in Goes before moving in 1863 to Évora, where he taught natural history at the Lyceu and took up the position of librarian of the Biblioteca Pública, a position he filled with distinction.

Gilbert White (1720-1793), a pioneering English naturalist and ornithologist, has been hailed as England’s first ecologist. His Natural History and Antiquities of Selborne has been continuously in print since its original appearance in 1789, and is sometimes called the fourth most-published book in the English language (following the Bible, Shakespeare, and Pilgrim’s Progress).
