Japanese Finances ca. 1868-1932

FIRST and ONLY EDITION. Covers the finances of the Shogunate leading up to the Revolution of 1868, and then through early 1932.

* Not in Kyoto, Nippanalia.

*2. BOCARRO, Antonio. Decada 13 da historia da India .... 2 volumes. Lisbon: Academia Real das Sciencias, 1876. Large 4° (28.5 x 22.5 cm.), original printed wrappers. Occasional light foxing. Overall in fine condition. xxiii, 374 pp., (1 blank l.); viii pp., [377]-805 pp., (1 l. errata). 2 volumes. $600.00

FIRST EDITION. “It is needless to stress the value of Bocarro’s work for Orientalists and historians of European expansion in Asia,” wrote Boxer in “Three Historians of Portuguese Asia” (p. 26); and in Seventeenth-Century Macao (pp. 9-10) he stated that “Apart from his natural diligence, Bocarro clearly had a keen and inquiring mind, as is evident from the trouble he took to procure reliable information about countries like China and Japan.”

Nominally the work covers five years (1612-1617), but in fact it covers much more. There is a section on the state of Christianity in Japan and the persecutions taking place there (pp. 737-53). A great deal of space is devoted to Macao and the development of Sino-Portuguese relations. Bocarro’s exhaustive account of the Zambesi River Valley and its surroundings, given when relating the travels there of Gaspar Bocarro and Diogo Simões de Madeira, is important source material for the history of African exploration. There is also much information on Portuguese diplomatic and commercial relations with Persia. Boxer points out that this Decade has special interest for English readers “as it gives the Portuguese side of the sea fights off ‘Swalley Hole,’ which were the decisive factors in the founding of English power in India” (“Three Historians,” p. 25).

Bocarro (b. 1594 at Abrantes) was a christão-novo. Soon after his arrival in India in 1622 he was imprisoned by the Inquisition. He saved himself from the stake by denouncing all his friends and relatives as crypto-Jews, and by at least claiming to return to the Catholic fold. In 1629 he became the protégé of the Conde de Linhares, who appointed him Guarda-mor of the royal archives of Goa and Chronicler of India. Bocarro’s masterpiece

Complete transcript of the manuscript journal kept by Broughton on his voyage to the North Pacific (1795-1798), plus letters and his journal from his trip across Mexico in 1793. Stops on the trip included Tahiti, the Hawaiian Islands, Nootka Sound, Monterey, Hokkaido, Muroran Ko, the Kurile Islands, Macau, Sakishima Gunto, Miyako Shima, Taiwan, Okinawa, the Gulf of Tartary, the coasts of Russia and Korea, Tsushima, Pusan, Cheju Do, the east coast of China, and Kyushu.

7. COTTEAU, Edmond. De Paris au Japon a travers la Siberie. Voyage executé du 6 Mai au 7 Aout 1881. Paris: Librairie Hachette et Cie., 1883. 8°, contemporary dark green quarter morocco over pebbled boards (some wear), spine with raised bands in five compartments, short author and title in second from head, other compartments gilt- and blind-tooled. Scattered light foxing. Small repair to verso of one plate. Folding map browned. In very good condition. Early signature (illegible) at head of title-page. (3 ll.), 450 pp., (2 ll.), 26 wood-engraved plates paginated with the text, a few wood-engraved illustrations and maps within the text, 1 folding map. $400.00

FIRST EDITION; others appeared in 1885 and 1888. The author traveled across Russia to Japan. He offers descriptions of Novgorod, the Volga River, the Tartars, Perm, Yekaterinburg, Tyumen, Tobolsk, Tomsk, Krasnoyarsk, Irkoutsk, Irkutsk, Lake Baikal, Stretensk, Blagoveschensk, Khabarovsky, Kamen-Rybolov, and Vladivostok. He seems to have been interested in industry, since he included information on a visit to the cannon foundry in Motavilika and several Siberian mines. The plates depict scenes in Siberia and Japan. The large folding map shows Cotteau’s route from Paris to Japan.

Edmond Cotteau (b. 1835) made several voyages to North and South America, India and Ceylon, and the Pacific islands.

cloth, gilt lettering on spine. Frontispiece portrait. New. xxiii, 792 pp. ISBN: 0-939226-10-3. $175.00

Second edition, revised and enlarged. Fully indexed by author and title, and with chronological index of publication dates.

The long awaited substantial revision and reorganization of this important catalogue of Pacific voyages. Since its original publication in three volumes between 1974 and 1983, the Hill catalogue has been an essential reference for anyone interested in Pacific Voyages, Hawaii, the Pacific Northwest, and the South Seas. A significant number of the voyages stopped in Brazil on their way to the Pacific. The first edition has long been out of print and commands high prices in the antiquarian market.

Important Work on European Trade & Commerce and the Origins of Dutch Commercial Power, Including Sections on Trade with Japan, China, India, Ceylon, Persia, Siam, Africa & Brazil, and with 21 Pages by the Eminent Spanish Economist Jerónimo de Uztáriz

9. [HUET, Pierre Daniel]. Comercio de Holanda, o el gran tesoro histórico, y político del floreciente comercio que los Holandeses tienen en todos los Estados, y Señoríos del Mundo ... Traducido de francés en español por Don Francisco Xavier de Goyeneche .... Madrid: Por Carlos Rey, 1746. 8°, early nineteenth-century stiff vellum (some soiling), horizontal manuscript short title on smooth spine, gilt supralibros of Sir Charles Stuart, Lord Stuart d’Rothesay, on both covers, textblock edges sprinkled green. Top margin closely trimmed, without touching text. In very good condition. (36 ll.), 312 pp. $1,500.00

Second Spanish edition of Huet’s Le grand tesor historique, Rouen, 1714; the first Spanish edition appeared in Madrid, 1717, and a third was printed in 1793. The preliminary leaves include substantial discussions of Spanish commerce by Francisco de la Torre y Ocón, a member of the Council of the Indies (preliminary leaves 5r-9v) and by the translator (preliminary leaves 22v-33v). More importantly, there is a long section by Jerónimo de Uztáriz, the leading mercantilist author of Philip V’s reign and one of the most noted Spanish economists of the eighteenth century. This section was written in 1717, before his Teoría y práctica de comercio y de marina was published in Madrid, 1724. The first edition of the Teoría was suppressed, and it did not appear again until 1742, just before this translation of Huet was published. (On Uztáriz, see Colmeiro 381 and Carpenter, Economic Bestsellers before 1850, XI.)

The Comercio is an important work on European trade and commerce, on the origins and causes of Dutch commercial power, and on the East India Company. Chapter 15 deals with the Company’s trade in America, including Brazil (pp. 252-7). Later sections cover Dutch commerce in Japan, China, India, Ceylon, Persia, Siam (pp. 276-9) and Africa (including Benin, Carombo, Congo and Angola; see pp. 260-1 on the slave trade).

Provenance: Charles Stuart, 1st Baron Stuart de Rothesay of the Isle of Bute (1779-1845; title created 1828), known as Sir Charles Stuart between 1812 and 1828, was a British diplomat. Bertie, 1st Duke of Ancaster and Kesteven. Sir Charles Stuart was twice ambassador to France (1815-1824 and 1828-1830), and also served as ambassador to Russia between 1841 and 1844. It was he who negotiated Portuguese recognition of Brazilian Independence. He was also charged by D. Pedro I, Emperor of Brazil, and author of Portugal’s second constitution, the Carta constitucional, with bringing that crucial document in Portuguese history from Brazil to Portugal. Stuart held the titles of 1º Marquez de Angra, and 1º Conde de Machico in the Portuguese peerage. He was envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of Great Britain to Portugal (1810-1814), and served as a member of the Portuguese government during the Peninsular War. A keen bibliophile, his library, sold at auction in 1856, consisted of 4,323 lots, including many of the principal works of Peninsular history and literature, as well as numerous manuscripts. A library catalogue was privately printed in Paris in 1821, in an unspecified but very restricted number of copies.

FIRST and ONLY EDITION in book form, LIMITED to 300 copies. Some chapters had appeared previously, in whole or in part, in the newspapers Ler, O comércio do Porto, Nippon Times, and Mainichi. $100.00

Wenceslau de Moraes on Japanese Customs, Art, Literature, & History

19. MORAES, Wenceslau de [or Wenceslau de Morais; or Venceslau de Morais]. Osoroshi. Prefácio e notas de Álvaro Neves. Lisbon: Casa Ventura Abrantes Livraria Editora, 1933. 8°, twentieth century (third quarter?) maroon sheep over machine-marbled boards, spine gilt with raised bands in five compartments, gilt letter in second and fourth compartments, decorated endleaves, original illustrated wrappers bound in. In very good condition. 364 p., (1 l.), 3 plates, with footnotes and analytical index. $200.00

FIRST EDITION. A series of letters from Moraes to his close friend Alfredo E.D. Branco, written from Kobe and Tokushima, 1905-1929. They include comments on Japanese customs, art, literature, and history.

Wenceslau de Moraes (Lisbon, 1854-Tokushima, 1929) was one of the most important interpreters of Japan to the West, playing a role for the Portuguese similar to that of Lafcadio Hearn (a contemporary) for the English-speaking world. Moraes’s works are steeped in orientalism and exoticism. He was a noted translator of haiku, and wrote verse influenced by Symbolism.

After studying at the Naval College, Moraes served aboard several warships of the Portuguese Navy. In 1885 he traveled for the first time to Macao. Having settled there, he served as deputy to the captain of the harbor and taught at the Macao Secondary School from its creation in 1894. He also married Vong-To-Chan (a.k.a. Atchan), a Chinese woman with whom he had two sons, and he established a friendship with the celebrated poet Camilo Pessanha.

In 1889 Moraes traveled for the first time to Japan, a country that charmed him, and where he returned several times in the following years on official business. He visited Japan in 1897 with the governor of Macao and was received by the Emperor Meiji. The following year he deserted Atchan and his two sons to move to Japan, where he took up a post as consul in Kobe.

Over the next thirty years, Wenceslau de Moraes wrote prolifically, becoming the great Portuguese source of information about the East. He shared his intimate experiences of day-to-day life in Japan with readers in several Portuguese newspapers and magazines.

Moraes had a love affair with Ó-Yoné Fukumoto. After she fell ill and died, Moraes renounced his post as consul and moved to Tokushima, her birth place. In the face of growing hostility from the local inhabitants, he began to dress, eat and live like the Japanese. He lived with Ko-Haru, Ó-Yoné’s niece, until Ko-Haru’s death. The increasingly reclusive Moraes died in Tokushima in 1929. He is honored with a small museum atop Mount Bizan in that town.

Renascença Portuguesa was a cultural and civic group founded in 1911 by Teixeira de Pascoaes, Jaime Cortesão, Raúl Proença, António Sérgio, Leonardo Coimbra, Álvaro Pinto, Augusto Casimiro, and others. The group’s literary review, À Águia, continued publication until 1932. Pascoaes, Proença, and Sérgio soon disagreed on the long-term goals of Renascença Portuguesa, and the movement became the mouthpiece of Saudosismo. The educational influence of the Renascença Portuguesa continued to be felt through its Universidades Populares and hundreds of publications under the Renascença Portuguesa imprint on history, law, economy, literature, etc. On Renascença Portuguesa, see Mário Garcia in Biblos IV, 694.

22. MORAES, Wenceslau de [or Wenceslau de Morais; or Venceslau de Morais]. Relance da alma japoneza. Lisbon: Portugal-Brasil and Arthur Brandão, (1925 or 1926). 8°, contemporary black quarter calf over decorated cloth sides with Japanese scenes (rubbed, lower joint cracked but firm), red onlay at center of spine, gilt letter, original printed wrappers bound in. In good condition. One of 200 numbered copies on papel couché. 256 pp., (2 ll.). $250.00

FIRST EDITION. The prologue is dated September 1925, and the Grande enciclopédia gives the date of publication as 1926. NUC has two separate entries for this work, one dated [1925], and one dated 1922 (probably from misreading the verso of the title page, where a copyright law of that year is mentioned). Includes an overview, chapters on language, religion, history, family life, the tribu (p. 107), politics, love, death, and art and literature, followed by a synthesis, speculation on the future of the Japanese, and an appendix on education in Japan.

Having settled there, he served as deputy to the captain of the harbor and taught at the Macao Secondary School from its creation in 1894. He also married Vong-lo-Chan (a.k.a. Atchan), a Chinese woman with whom he had two sons, and he established a friendship with the celebrated poet Camilo Pessanha.

In 1889 Moraes traveled for the first time to Japan, a country that charmed him, and where he returned several times in the following years on official business. He visited Japan in 1897 with the governor of Macao and was received by the Emperor Meiji. The following year he deserted Atchan and his two sons to move to Japan, where he took a post as consul in Kobe.

Over the next thirty years, Wenceslau de Moraes wrote prolifically, becoming the great Portuguese source of information about the East. He shared his intimate experiences of day-to-day life in Japan with readers in several Portuguese newspapers and magazines.

Moraes had a love affair with Ô-Yoné Fukumoto. After she fell ill and died, Moraes renounced his post as consul and moved to Tokushima, her birth place. In the face of growing hostility from the local inhabitants, he began to dress, eat and live like the Japanese. He lived with Ko-Haru, Ô-Yoné’s niece, until Ko-Haru’s death. The increasingly reclusive Moraes died in Tokushima in 1929. He is honored with a small museum atop Mount Bizan in that town.

The Soul of the Japanese

23. MORAES, Wenceslau de [or Wenceslau de Morais; or Venceslau de Morais]. Relance da alma japoneza. Lisbon: Portugal-Brasil and Arthur Brandão, 1925 or 1926. 8°, contemporary red quarter calf over marbled boards, spine with gilt letter and bands, original printed wrappers bound in. In very good condition. 256 pp., (2 ll.). $125.00

FIRST EDITION. The prologue is dated September 1925, and the Grande enciclopédia gives the date of publication as 1926. NUC has 2 separate entries for this work, one dated [1925], and one dated 1922 (probably from misreading the verso of the title page, where a copyright law of that year is mentioned). Includes an overview, chapters on language, religion, history, family life, the tribu (p. 107), politics, love, death, and art and literature, followed by a synthesis, speculation on the future of the Japanese, and an appendix on education in Japan.

Wenceslau de Moraes (Lisbon, 1854-Tokushima, 1929) was one of the most important interpreters of Japan to the West, playing a role for the Portuguese similar to that of Lafcadio Hearn (a contemporary) for the English-speaking world. Moraes’s works are steeped in orientalism and exoticism. He was a noted translator of haiku, and wrote verse influenced by Symbolism.

After studying at the Naval College, Moraes served aboard several warships of the Portuguese Navy. In 1885 he traveled for the first time to Macao. Having settled there, he served as deputy to the captain of the harbor and taught at the Macao Secondary School from its creation in 1894. He also married Vong-lo-Chan (a.k.a. Atchan), a Chinese woman with whom he had two sons, and he established a friendship with the celebrated poet Camilo Pessanha.

Wenceslau de Moraes on Japanese History

24. MORAES, Wenceslau de [or Wenceslau de Morais; or Venceslau de Morais]. Relance da historia do Japão. Porto: Maranus, 1924. 8°, original illustrated wrappers with reproduction of a photograph tipped onto front cover (somewhat frayed at edges). Lightly browned. Uncut. In very good condition. Early title-page signature in ink of José de Paiva. $150.00

FIRST EDITION? The Grande enciclopédia states that the first edition appeared in 1921, but the “4” on the title-page is lightly printed, and could easily be mistaken for a “1”. NUC lists only one edition, dated 1924. Includes chapters on the Japanese; prehistoric Japan; Japanese religion; ancient Japan; the introduction of Buddhism; the Fujiwara, the Taira and the Minamoto; the Hojo and the Mongol invasions; the Ashikaga and the arrival of the Portuguese; the Nobunaga; the Hideyoshi; Tikugawa Ieyasu; the expulsion of the Portuguese; the arrival of the Americans; the imperial restoration; modern Japan; the two wars (i.e., the Sino-Japanese War of 1894-95 and the Russo-Japanese War of 1904-5); recent years; and the future of Japan. The appendix is on Fernão Mendes Pinto in Japan.

Voyage to Yedo in 1860

FIRST EDITION. The author was captain of the corvette D. João I during its 1860 voyage to Yedo, the capital of Japan. The purpose of the voyage—to negotiate a trade treaty—is described here with detailed accounts of Japanese customs and dress, politics, industry and geography. The second section of the work is a history of Luso-Japanese relations with references to Fernão Mendes Pinto, Diogo do Couto, the American Francis Hawks, and others. Like the United States, Portugal wanted to see Japan opened up to
